Cost estimate doubles

Flood basin plans on agenda tonight

The finance committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board will review plans for the Hasbrook flood-control basin and the McKinley Avenue grade crossing tonight.

The village's Citizens Action Committee Against Flood last month approved a redesigning of the flood-control facility at Hasbrook Park that more than doubles the estimated cost. The pond design was originally priced around $192,000, but the plan adopted by the flood committee will cost an estimated $409,000.

The biggest cost increase is a $145,000 storm sewer at Thomas Street and Walnut Avenue. An additional $76,000 was added for automatic controls to regulate the release of water from the pond.

TRUSTEE FRANK Palmatier, who chairs both the flood and the finance committees, said of the additional costs last month, "Clearly when you monkey around with this basin you ought to finish the job. It's nothing we like, but it's sort of unavoidable."

The suggested improvements must go through the committee before the village board votes on them. The board's approval is needed before bids for the work are accepted and construction contracts are let.

The finance committee also will consider what type of grade crossing will be built across the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks at McKinley Avenue.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said both gumwood and a new rubber base crossing are being studied.

The gumwood crossing is less expensive and is in more common use in the area. However the planks are subject to rotting and loosening of the bolts.

THE RUBBER crossings are more expensive but tests have shown them to be smoother and more durable. They were installed in a previously bumpy crossing on Euclid Avenue west of Wolf Road in Mount Prospect.

Hanson said the cost of the project will be split between the village and the state. However, he said, the division of each party's share has not been set.

The new crossing, which will probably not be built until next year, will be the only one between Arlington Heights and Central roads in Mount Prospect. Village officials hope the new crossing will take some traffic from the heavily traveled Central Road.

Plans for a crossing in the area date back to 1938. The plans were revived in 1966 with the crossing slated for Arthur Avenue but were changed because of engineering problems.

Family finds new life in suburbs

by Stirling Morita

THE CON-Bao Nguyen family, refugees of the Communist takeover in South Vietnam, have come to Arlington Heights to start a new life.

Saigon had been peaceful for two months, but then the word came. Twenty-four-year-old Thuy couldn't stop crying. She was leaving behind her family, her world.

In the scant two hours on April 28 before she, her husband, Con Bao Nguyen, son and nephew left for the airport, all they could gather were two handbags filled with clothing and precious wedding photographs.

There was no time or room for their furnishings as they prepared to travel to a country they had heard of, but never seen. The reason was simple — survival. Con and Thuy feared their military-linked jobs would make them targets of reprisal from the invading North Vietnamese.

It was the beginning of a journey that landed the four in Arlington Heights thanks to the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights.

"ARLINGTON Heights is a very nice place, and so are the people," Con said. His wife added, "We worried too much about not having friends, but the people from the church come visit here."

Con explained, "We wanted freedom. I think freedom is something precious to people like us."

In his new apartment, Con, 37, told of their evacuation to Wake Island, life at Ft. Chafee, Ark., their eventual sponsorship, 2½ months ago by the church, and their assimilation into the American mainstream.

The decision to leave their home country was a tough one, Con said. "My wife didn't want to leave her family in the province." But he added, "I felt it was very dangerous for my family. They might kill people, especially Thuy and me."

Thuy, who was from the Mekong Delta, worked for the U.S. military. Con, who has a degree in pharmacy, worked at a military hospital and at the ministry of health. His family had always been leery of Communists. They left Hanoi in 1954 when the French left Indochina.

THE WORD CAME from the American embassy to leave "as soon as possible," and Con and Thuy did not have time to say goodbye to friends.

They slept overnight at the airport and were flown to an aircraft carrier, which transported them to Wake Island. They were there for about a week completing paperwork.

Other churches help families

Two Vietnamese families sponsored by the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago have been placed in Palatine and Wheeling, and are busy adapting to life in the suburbs.

The Bul Vanninh family, locally sponsored by St. Theresa's Catholic Church, Palatine, has been in the village about three weeks.

Both parents and a 20-year-old son are employed at St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly, Rev. James Kehoe said. The working son is learning English at Conant High School, Hoffman Estates, while the younger children are "picking up English as they go" while attending St. Teresa's School, Kehoe said.

The Pham family, is sponsored locally by St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling.

"This family came into the U.S. through Catholic Charities and already had jobs and an apartment lined up when they came to Wheeling," Rev. Donald Simpson said.

The younger children attend St. Joseph the Worker School while a teenage daughter attends Sacred Heart of Mary High School and is learning English two mornings each week at Harper Junior College.

The four were then taken to a camp at Ft. Chafee and housed with 25,000 other refugees. People were friendly, Con recalled, but there was crowding and waiting for food in endless lines.

When someone left for another state, everyone went out for a picnic to celebrate, Thuy said. Then the word came that the church would sponsor them, but the red tape involved slowed the waiting more than the expected two weeks.

THE CONGREGATION has footed their bills. The four stayed with the Kenneth Stiles, the Rev. Leon Haring and the Dick Tailors. Members of the church have provided transportation for the family for job interviews and trips to school.

Friend David Almblad said, "They had some rough times."

Mrs. Almblad landed Arlington Heights Dist. 25 for working out a special program for the 14-year-old nephew, Hieu, at Miner Junior High School.

After about 50 job interviews, Con landed a job in the pharmacy at Osco Drugs. Thuy is working as a clerk-typist for the U.S. Reserve Center in Des Plaines.

ALMBLAD NOTED there was some "backfire" when Con applied for jobs. He was over-qualified for some of them, and the companies feared the government might find out a minority was working in a lower capacity, Almblad pointed out.

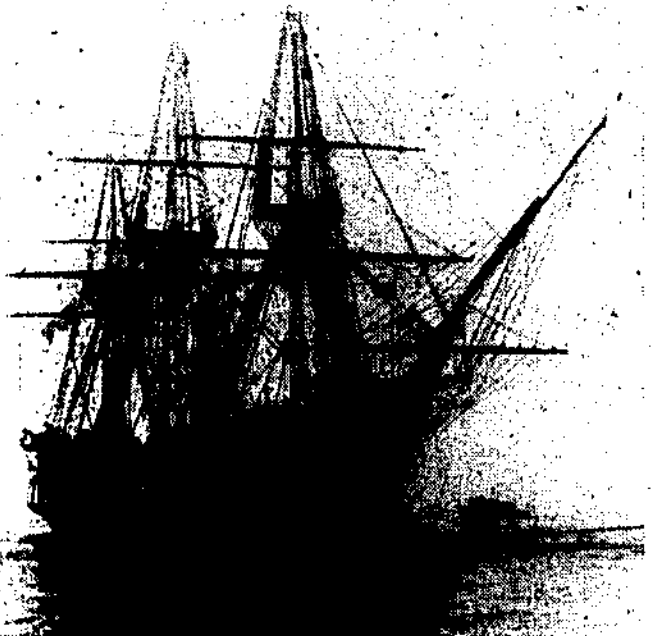

There are some adjustments. Thuy has never seen snow, and she had a difficult time understanding what boots were for, Mrs. Almblad said. Also Thuy has had a hard time finding shoes for her size 2½ feet.

But Con said he believes they'll be in Arlington Heights for a long time. There is worry about Thuy's family still in Vietnam, but the couple have not heard about their situation.

"There is hope that in five or six years we might be able to go back to visit," Con said.

Dist. 23 negotiators reach accord in talks

Board and teacher negotiators in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 have reached a tentative agreement in a teachers' contract for the 1975-76 school year.

Kenneth Bates, chief negotiator for teachers, said Saturday a "tentative agreement" was reached by the teams after a 4½-hour negotiating session Saturday morning.

Both negotiating teams agreed, but both teams feel it (the contract) will be a tough thing to sell to our respective groups," Bates said. Bates refused to give details of the contract but said it was "very different dollar-wise than what the teachers had expressed they wanted earlier."

Teachers unanimously turned down a board offer of an $85,000 increase for across-the-board and merit salary raises Sept. 27. Teachers then indicated they would stand firm on their request for a $106,500 increase which would maintain the present merit raise levels and provide a 7 per cent across-the-board raise for teachers.

Alan Krinsky, chairman of the board team, said "Things are not really settled yet. We have to go back to our respective groups and let them see it (the contract). There's still work to be done."

Krinsky, who also refused to release details of the contract, said the board would discuss the terms of the proposal in a special closed meeting Oct. 21.

BATES SAID teachers will learn of the details at a meeting Wednesday. Negotiating teams are expected to return to the table with their groups' decisions Oct. 22.

"I think we're going to have an easier time selling it to our people than they will," said Bates. "It was tough sledding on both sides" to reach an agreement.

Bates did disclose one area the negotiators settled on. A mini-grant program, which will cost the district $1,000 a year, was approved by both teams. Bates said teachers will be able to submit a proposal for a program to the superintendent's advisory committee for consideration. The committee will be able to approve a grant of up to $100 per program.

"The purpose of the mini-grant program is for teachers to be able to try out things in the classrooms," Bates said. The grant program will take effect in the 1976-77 school year if the contract is approved.

BATES SAID he was "very relieved" that negotiations went so well Saturday. "There was a lot of give and take — a lot of talking," he said.

The teams have been meeting since February. Negotiators previously agreed to a number of contract items including district reimbursement for professional fees, increased extra-duty and summer school pay, sick leave accumulation and professional travel allocation. Also agreed to is a new base salary of $8,950.

Woman charged with hiding fugitive

A 22-year-old Mount Prospect woman was free Sunday on $2,000 bond after Sheriff's police charged her with aiding and concealing an escaped prisoner from Cook County Jail.

Jolin Gauthier, 321 N. Main St., was charged following the arrest of Joseph Ganci, 25, a murder suspect, early Saturday. Ganci, one of six inmates who escaped the jail July 10 had to be forced from a hotel room in suburban Bridgeview with tear gas, police said.

Sheriff's police, along with Chicago and Bridgeview authorities went to the Clayton Motel, 7240 Harlem Ave., on information gathered by all three departments on Ganci's whereabouts.

Miss Gauthier was in the room with Ganci who sent her out when police surrounded the motel. Police said Ganci disregarded orders to give himself up and surrendered only after tear gas and several gunshots were fired into the room.

Centel strike near end

The 14-week-old strike of telephone workers at the Central Telephone Co., Des Plaines, is near an end after a tentative agreement this weekend between union representatives and company management. Details of the agreement were not revealed but a company official said he hopes workers will return to their jobs after a ratification vote Wednesday. The strike was called because of failure of union and the company to agree on work rules and overtime.

Accord reached in Dist. 23

Teachers and board members in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 have reached a tentative contract agreement for the 1975-76 school year, although negotiators for both sides said they believe the new contract will be "a tough thing to sell to our respective groups." No details were released but Kenneth Bates, chief negotiator for teachers, said the contract proposal "is very different dollar-wise than what the teachers had expressed they wanted earlier." Last month, teachers unanimously turned down a board offer saying they wanted a 7 per cent across the board raise and the current merit raise levels totaling $106,500. The board offered $95,000.

Inverness says no to library

Inverness residents Saturday voted 7 to 1 against joining the Palatine Library District. About 80 per cent of the village's registered voters went to the polls, and Leslie V. Bjork, president of the Inverness Assn., said the results showed "a strong reluctance against increased taxes." Passage of the referendum required a more than 50 per cent vote of Inverness residents as well as a more than 50 per cent vote of library district residents. The library district residents voted in favor of including Inverness 273 to 228. The average house in Inverness is assessed at $30,000 and passage of the referendum would have increased the average resident's taxes by $76.80 a year.

Hales enters 10th Dist. race

Daniel B. Hales, 34, Winnetka, a self-proclaimed "political unknown" announced Sunday he will enter a Republican primary battle in the 10th Congressional District. Hales, an attorney, will seek the Republican nomination to run against incumbent Abner Mikva who Hales says does not represent the views of the district. He cited the liberal Democrat's opposition to defense spending and his votes in favor of social programs as key issues in the upcoming campaign.

Crane, Mikva, Hyde, rap EPA on auto tests

by STEVE BROWN

Three Illinois congressmen Saturday denounced federal environmental officials for their lack of help in planning an auto emissions testing program for Cook County.

The lawmakers, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th; U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, and U.S. Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-6th, said they met with Russell Train, director of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency last week in an effort to clarify EPA orders to begin testing cars in Cook County for auto pollution.

Each noted that if the county does not come up with an acceptable testing program, millions of dollars in federal grants could be withdrawn by the EPA.

The criticism of the federal agency's lack of cooperation came as the trio addressed the Illinois Jaycees annual fall convention at the Sheraton-O'Hare Hotel in Rosemont.

HYDE SAID all 12 Congressmen whose districts include Cook County met with the EPA because county officials have been unable to develop a testing plan acceptable to the EPA.

"They say there is too much air pollution in the central business district and want a testing program developed to determine the levels of pollution," Hyde said.

"We asked how to do this and all they would say is they develop goals, not testing procedures," he added.

Crane said the agency's attitude is "arrogant and indifferent." He said the agency could "care less if millions of dollars had to be spent on a testing program."

Mikva said no firm answers came out of the meeting.

"I've never seen the agency so wrong on a matter," Mikva said.

THE EPA HAS ordered that upwards of 50,000 cars which enter the central business district of Chicago should be tested in order to determine air pollution standards. However the agency has already rejected six testing plans submitted by the county.

"All we heard from them is that they could cut off all environmental funds if the county does not comply," Mikva said.

The combined opposition from the three congressmen represented an unique situation because the lawmakers represent widely divergent political views.

Crane suggested that the county may have to ask the Illinois General Assembly to mandate a testing program for the entire state in order to develop a program acceptable to the EPA.

He also noted that there is a fundamental disagreement between the county and the EPA over present air conditions in Chicago's Loop.

"THEIR PRELIMINARY readings do not even agree," Crane said.

1 convict nabbed

Police trap four escapees in woods

SALEM, Ill. (UPI) — Police caught up with a carload of "extremely dangerous" escaped convicts Sunday, captured one of the inmates and believed they trapped the other four in a heavily wooded area nearby. Police said one of the convicts was wounded.

Some 150 law officers, using an airplane, a helicopter and dogs, hunted 5½ hours in a 10-square-mile area for the inmates, who used a remote control electronic device to rig their escape from the nation's top security federal prison at Marion, Ill., Friday night. They were spotted driving through Salem, 75 miles north of the prison, in a stolen car.

Victor Schaefer, special agent in charge of the FBI, said the search moved from the woods to an unbarbed wire cornfield.

Police had not sighted the four convicts by late afternoon, but authorities held firm in their belief the fugitives were in the 10-square-mile cordoned area where they left their stolen car after a police chase. Marion County Sheriff Charles Sanders said, "Unless they got out in the first hour and a half, I believe the chances are likely they are still around here and just lying low during the day and making a movement at night."

Authorities received several false alarms, and at one point they found four sets of footprints and blood on the ground. The canines were rested after tracking the convicts' scents for several hours.

"We're relying on the dogs," he said. "The fact that we just found some blood stains gives us pretty good indications that we're close."

Authorities said the inmates broke into a home 10 miles south of the prison late Saturday night, tied up a man and his wife, and stole the man's car, his shotgun and a rifle.

Police Officer James Baity spotted the car as it passed through Salem at about 5 a.m. He said he and another officers chased the convicts at speeds of 80 and 90 miles per hour until the escapees' car turned into a driveway five miles east of Salem, ran through the yard of a rural home, hurtled down an embankment and crashed through a fence.

Baity said the other officer, Larry Friend, "fired one shot at 'em with a shotgun" and a convict, who was armed, fell momentarily. Then he and three others dashed into the woods.

A fifth escapee, Arthur T. Mankins, of Germantown, N.C., who had been serving a life sentence for killing an FBI agent, was slow in getting out of the car and he was arrested at the scene. Police said he refused to make a statement. Police found a .20-gauge, sawed-off shotgun, some ammunition and a butcher knife in the car. It was assumed the inmates still had the rifle.

State Police, Salem police, sheriff's deputies from Marion and surrounding counties, prison officials and some 20 FBI agents cordoned off the area.

The four convicts still on the loose in the largest escape in the history of the 12-year-old prison were identified as Ed Roche, 38, Katonah, N.Y.; Henry M. Gargano, 43, Chicago; Dennis D. Hunter, 26, Salem, Ohio; and Maurice J. Philon, 40, Oakland, Calif.

The inmates staged the cunning escape shortly after 8 p.m. Friday by sabotaging the institution's modern electrical security system with a jury-built device, apparently fashioned by Roche in the prison electric shop.

Sinai meeting next week

Mideast parley set on pullout

Israeli and Egyptian negotiators will meet in Sinai next week to set the machinery in motion for Israel's pullout from 2,000 square miles of the desert under the interim peace pact, the Israeli military command said in Tel Aviv Sunday.

In Washington, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said that President Ford would discuss American military aid to Egypt only "in general terms" when he meets President Anwar Sadat this month.

The joint commission made up of high-ranking military officers and foreign ministry advisers, will convene Oct. 22 at U.N. Post 512 in northwestern Sinai in the present U.N. buffer zone that separates the Israeli and Egyptian armies, an Israeli military spokesman said.

The talks, reminiscent of the military negotiations held at Kilometer 101 of the Cairo-Suez Highway following the first troop disengagement agreement in early 1974, will be attended at times by the chiefs of staff of both sides.

"These talks will be on a smaller scale than Kilometer 101," the spokesman said. He said they are designed to smooth out problems that may arise during the handover of territory.

The commander of U.N. forces, Lt. Gen. Ennio Sillanvuo of Finland, will chair sessions of the commission. It can convene 24 hours after either side or the United Nations requests a meeting.

The commission will function for the duration of the withdrawal. On Feb. 22, 1976, Israel's forces must be out of the area and behind their new lines in Sinai.

By that time, the American civilian technicians will be in place operating three manned and four unmanned early warning stations in the U.N. buffer zone to monitor the peace between both sides.

Congress approved the dispatch of up to 200 technicians to Sinai last week.

Under the accord, Israeli forces are to pull out of the Ras Sudar oil field on the Gulf of Suez by Nov. 15, to move out of the Abu Rudeis oil field 60 miles farther south Nov. 30 and are to begin their first of five phases of withdrawal from the frontline area by Jan. 13, 1976.

Lawyers fear for Patty's safety

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patty Hearst is receiving up to 50 letters a day in hate mail, it was disclosed Sunday.

A postal official said the mail from all over the nation is streaming into the San Mateo County Jail where the 21-year-old newspaper heiress is being held.

One of her attorneys, F. Lee Bailey, said the public thinks the case against her is "open and shut." His associate, Albert Johnson, said the letters make him — and Miss Hearst — fear for her safety.

"The mail comes from the East, the South — you name it," said George Brook, head of the post office in Redwood City, site of the jail south of San Francisco.

"I would estimate it runs from 25 to 50 letters daily."

Johnson said Sunday that Miss Hearst, captured Sept. 18 with three other members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, was "drugged by force" by the SLA during her 19-month disappearance after being kidnapped.

His comment came after disclosure of an SLA manuscript which said she became an inspiration to the radical underground organization as she changed from kidnap victim to revolutionary.

"You made everyone feel so good because of your responsiveness and enthusiasm," the 200-page manuscript said, according to the Chicago Tribune.

Psychologist Dr. Joyce Brothers said in Spokane, Wash., she believes Miss Hearst changed her basic values as a result of being kidnapped.

"I believe Patty Hearst definitely was kidnapped and changed her basic values within a very short time," she said.

Smokers who puff 2 packs a day may cut their lives 15 years: report

EDINBORO, Pa. (UPI) — Men who smoke two or more packs of cigarettes a day cut their life expectancy 14 to 15 years and women smokers by 19 to 20 years, according to a study by Edinboro State College.

The study, which examined 4,000 men and women in northwestern Pennsylvania, also reported that cigar and pipe smokers live an average one year longer than non-smokers.

It also branded as "nonsense" the belief that women generally live longer than men. The study found that men who do not smoke cigarettes live just as long as women non-smokers.

The findings were published in the Journal of Breathing of the Illinois Lung Association. The research was undertaken by Dr. G.H. Miller, assistant director of Edinboro's Office of Institutional Research.

Among the findings:
• Women smokers die earlier than men smokers from heart attacks and cancer. Men smokers were found to die at an average age of 65, compared with 59 for women smokers.

• Non smokers, both men and women, were found to live an average of 75 to 76 years.

Miller, a statistician and educational psychologist, interviewed relatives of 4,000 persons who died at the age of 30 years or older between 1970 and 1973.

Argentina troops hunt guerrillas

Army troops and police, supported by reconnaissance aircraft, fanned out across Santa Fe province in Argentina Sunday in a hunt for leftist guerrillas involved in a bloody shootout at a highway checkpoint. Five rebels, including one woman, were killed and a policeman was seriously wounded Saturday when guerrillas in a motorcade opened fire on a police checkpoint near Santa Fe, the provincial capital 300 miles northwest of Buenos Aires. Police said as many as 40 guerrillas may have been in the motorcade. Argentina's bloody internal warfare has claimed at least 529 lives this year. The violence includes political assassinations by leftist and rightist gunmen and battles between security forces and guerrillas in five provinces — Santa Fe, Tucuman, Formosa, Cordoba and Buenos Aires.

Portugal 'heading to the brink of chaos'

Popular Democratic party leader Francisco sa Carneiro said Sunday Portugal was "heading to the brink of chaos." "There is a climate of violence and anarchy," sa Carneiro said. "When people and soldiers point weapons against other people and shoot at them, no one can be tranquil or secure. The country is in danger." Both the Communists and the left-of-center Popular Democrats staged rallies Sunday night in an intensifying political war that has the Communists openly opposing a government in which they still participate. The Socialists and Popular Democrats have swung firmly in line behind Prime Minister Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo's efforts to curb the anarchy that has swept the country. But the Communists have supported what they call the "popular offensive" by revolutionary leftist groups in the recent wave of civil and military disorders.

Irish police 'closing net' on kidnapers

Police said Sunday that they were "closing the net" on the kidnapers of Dutch businessman Tiede Herrama. The police hunt switched dramatically from Limerick to Dublin following several reported sightings of Eddie Gallagher and Marlon Coyle, two prime suspects in the abduction. Police also announced that they found an automobile they believe the kidnapers used as a getaway car. It had recently been resprayed and fitted with false license plates and showed "other modifications," police said. The tempo of police activity around Dublin quickened Sunday with road checks and house searches in many areas. "We are closing the net," one police source said.

Franco cracking down on military dissent

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's reshuffle of military commanders represents a crackdown on political dissent within the armed forces, Spain's Catholic newspaper Ya said Sunday. Ya said the shake-up, announced Friday, partly reflected the shouts of right-wing demonstrators, "The army to power." "We get the impression that the authorities are seeking at all cost to maintain a rigid discipline on the political ideas of the members of the armed forces," the newspaper said.

Crewman admits killing ship's officers

The president of the company that managed the sunken Panamanian freighter Milni said Sunday one of the ship's four Indonesian crewmen has claimed he killed its four German officers. "They were trying to get to Cuba," said Wilson Browning, president of Browning Transport Management Inc., of Norfolk, Va. "It's very confusing. The man who says he did the killing doesn't speak very much English. Their stories don't jive." Browning, who questioned the four crewmen and a Filipino cook after their arrival here Sunday, did not identify the seaman who claimed responsibility for the killings. The five were being held aboard the German freighter Laili, which rescued them from a life raft Saturday morning, until U.S. Immigration authorities decide what to do with them.

In education it's still a man's world: survey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Males generally outscore females in educational tests ranging from math and science to politics and grocery shopping, the National Assessment of Educational Progress said Sunday.

Calling the results of its national survey often "Inexplicable . . . puzzling . . . a paradox," the report concluded: "When it comes to educational achievement, it appears it's still a man's world."

The NAEP is a federally-financed periodic survey of how well children and young adults learn subjects traditionally taught in schools. The surveys are conducted by the Educational Commission of the States, based in Denver, Colo.

The latest report represents an evaluation of eight earlier surveys conducted among 640,000 persons aged 9, 13, 17 and 26-35.

The major conclusions:

• Of the eight learning areas surveyed, males generally did better in mathematics, sciences, social studies and citizenship.

• Females score better at reading and literature at age 9, but fall behind males in this area by the time they are young adults.

• Females maintain a slight advantage in music at all ages.

• Only in writing do females consistently outperform males by a wide margin.

"What is particularly puzzling when comparing male-female achievement is that in the male-dominated areas — mathematics, science, social studies and citizenship — males and females at age 9 show scholastic understandings that are fairly equal," the report said.

"By age 13, however, females have begun a decline in achievement which continues downward through age 17 and into adulthood."

San Antonio's female foot fonder captured in the act

Police in San Antonio, Tex. have arrested a 24-year-old man they think may be the infamous San Antonio female foot fonder. Faustino Collazo was arrested by an off-duty police officer as he ran from a screaming woman, who said a man had shoved her against her car, grabbed her ankle and removed her shoe. In recent weeks a man in his 20s has attacked three women, knocking them down and yanking off their shoes. After removing the shoe, he caressed the women's feet and kissed their toes.

The nation's unemployment rate has forced a Texas man to seek a prison term "Where they will teach me something so I can do something when I get out." Robert V. Jones, 40, pleaded guilty to interstate transportation of a stolen car and asked a judge in Houston to send him to prison. Jones complained that he had no training and could only get "casual labor." The judge sentenced him to three years in a federal prison.

Sally Gutierrez couldn't save her Quemado High school football team from defeat, but at least she helped ticket sales. Sally, a 5-foot, 8-inch, 135-pound senior became the first girl in New Mexico to play on a boys' football team. And although Quemado lost its sixth game this season, most of the town's 200 residents turned out to see the defensive guard with braided hair and a nervous stomach. During the game Sally made one key tackle stopping an opposing player from scoring a touchdown. But Sally was also called for a personal foul. "The referee said I was punching their players. It really made me mad," Sally said.

Clarence D. Long, D-Md., who sits on the House committee that oversees the Internal Revenue Service, has a fight going with the IRS over $5.48 in taxes. Long said he sent a check for that amount after he was informed he owed it, but he then received a $94.52 rebate for his 1974 taxes, which was $100 minus $5.48. Long said he would stop payment on the check and they agreed. But then he got another bill for $5.48 plus $5 he was told he owed for stopping payment on the check. Sometime later he received an IRS check for $5.48. He returned it uncashed but then, would you believe it, he got a bill for $10.94 for the original $5.48, the $5 penalty and 16 cents interest on the $5.48. The IRS says they believe the problem is with their computer.

Old horses never die, they go to Thompson's farm

Art Thompson first crossed paths with a broken down stable pony named Cherokee more than 20 years ago.

Thompson, a former trainer and jockey, remembers the brown and white horse came back from an early morning workout "badly crippled."

"They wanted to put him down but I gave them $50 for him. Since that time, thousands of kids have ridden on his back."

CHEROKEE, now 36 years old, was the first in a long line of injured and aged horses to find a home on Thompson's rented 12-acre farm in Palatine. He currently shelters 13 horses, including several broken down race horses he encountered in his job as stall superintendent at the Arlington Park Race Track.

"People might think I'm kooky but it seems perfectly natural to me to try to save lives. I've loved horses all my life and I can't stand to see them abused in any way whatsoever," he said.

Thompson began his long association with horses 45 years ago in the small English village of Preston.

"An Irish priest noticed how small I was and asked me if I'd like to be a jockey. It was during the Depression so I said yes," he said.

Thompson spent nine years as a jockey but left racing to join the British cavalry when World War II began. Following the war, he emigrated to the United States where he has served as riding academy master, trainer and stall superintendent.

"I LEFT THE track for a few years to concentrate on teaching children to ride but after awhile I got the yen for racing again. It's hard to leave when it's been your life," he said.

Thompson stables his horses in a 100-year-old barn weathered by time and the elements. He points proudly to the roomy box stalls assigned to each animal.

"I run this place almost like the race track. The horses never starve — they always have a good meal," he said.

The horseman speaks affectionately of all his charges but he admits feeling a special fondness for the older horses. One favorite — a thoroughbred mare named Modernistic — died last week.

"We called her Old Mama. She finally reached her age — she was 31. I think the next ones to go will be old Cherokee and Francis although I hope they still have a few years left in them," he said.

THE BOND SEEMS especially close between Thompson and Cherokee. He recalls an incident several years ago when the old stable pony almost had to be destroyed.

"We used to let Cherokee and his old buddy Francis wander around the place. One day Francis came to the gate whinnying away and then took off across the field. We found Cherokee in a ditch with mud up to his neck," he said.

Cherokee was saved by a passerby who brought a tow truck to pull the horse out of the ditch. Thompson remembers that the horse "ate 16 quarts of feed that night. Never in his life has he left any feed."

Thompson's barn is a collection of small miracles. He cites the case of Prince Ganzer — a thoroughbred horse destined for destruction after he broke down in a race.

"All the vets said he would never walk again. You should see him now — he has a funny motion in his knees when he trots but at least he is enjoying life," he said.

THOMPSON PAYS for the farm out of his salary at the race track. People have offered donations but he said he doesn't "want to be beholden to anybody."

He notes there are few livery barns left and points to the subdivision surrounding his farm.

"The handwriting is on the wall — this place has already been sold a couple of times. When it happens, I'll just find some tenderhearted farmer who will rent me a couple of acres. As long as I have a little place to put the horses in the winter, that's all I need," he said.

Possum power!

She's spittin' mad over a bevy of hungry possums who are spreading the word on her 'backyard buffet'

by JOE SWICKARD

Let Mrs. Henry Schroeder tell you, there is nothing worse than having possums in your zucchini unless it is when they are spitting out cucumber seeds.

Mrs. Schroeder, 402 S. Emerson, Mount Prospect, should know. For the past year, her garden has been a backyard buffet for just about every hungry possum that ambles by.

"We caught the first one last October. Now, the number's up to eight. They eat our acorn squash, the zucchini — and you should see what they do to the cucumbers," she said.

NOT ONLY ARE her vegetables getting eaten, but the beasts have taken to trampling her flowers on their way to the free feed.

They step all over everything. They've just crippled the zinnias," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder, who's lived there for 25 years, at first suspected dogs or cats were damaging her plants and vegetables. The droppings and paw prints in the lawn each morning lent support to such theory.

Upset by the nocturnal attacks on the garden and garbage cans, the Schroeders invested $15 in a live trap to see what was causing the ruckus. One morning, they found they had snared one very large possum.

On the advice of a naturalist, the possum was turned loose in a forest preserve so he could be with his own kind and raid an occasional litter basket.

THE SCHROEDER'S troubles were far from over, however. Soon the little visitors were back again, and the live trap was again put to use.

The possums have come in all sizes and both sexes, rulling out repeat performances by the original possum.

Now Mrs. Schroeder wonders if her garden is being passed along as a bit of possum family tradition.

"How many babies do they have? I'll bet they have 10 or 12," she said.

IF THE POSSUMS are passing the word to their friends about her garden, she's wishing somebody would tell them to knock it off already.

"We've taken them up to the Fox River and all the forest preserves. We've even given them to friends who are going some place," she said.

Not surprisingly, Mrs. Schroeder has become somewhat of an expert of the possum palate.

"Some policemen told me to use old chicken bones in the trap. But I found out what they like best. They love liver sausage on rye bread. I can tie that to the trap so they can't steal it without setting it off," she said.

SOME POSSUMS, though, turn up their snouts at liver sausage and go right for the vegetables.

"They just hollow out the acorn squash and we know they like cucumbers because they spit out the seeds all over," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder is just a little tired of catching possums, turning them loose somewhere only to have their cousin, or whoever, show up for a snack the next night.

Perhaps there is a possum repellent on the market that will keep the critters at bay. It's either that or Mrs. Schroeder is going to have to call out a possum posse and make those varmints vamoose once and for all.

Arlington High School's homecoming this week

Arlington High School's 1975 homecoming festivities begin this week with the theme "Cardinal's Book of World Records."

Festivities begin Tuesday with the football wizard contest. Students will try to guess the number of footballs contained in the "world's largest football."

Wednesday is "show-off day." King and queen nominees will be introduced in an all-school assembly followed by election of the homecoming court. Then the hotlips and muscles contest, and Arlington High School custom, will take place. The person with the largest increase in biceps and best lipstick print will be declared winners.

THURSDAY WILL be a day for school spirit when freshmen must wear sunglasses, sophomores will wear hats, juniors will wear their clothes inside-out and seniors will don their bathrobes.

Students will wear the school colors, red and white, Friday. School will be dismissed early for coronation of the king and queen in the gymnasium. The ceremony will be followed by the homecoming parade. The parade will start on Euclid Avenue, go east on Dunton Avenue, south on Campbell Street, west on Campbell to Ridge Avenue, and on to the Arlington Heights Public Works building where the parade will disband.

Float judges include Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan and state representatives Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Virginia B. MacDonald, R-Arlington Heights. Floats will be judged on their originality, workmanship and punch line.

THE FOOTBALL game against the Fremd High School Vikings will be held at 6 p.m. Friday for the sophomore game and 8 p.m. for the varsity. The Marching Cardinals and the Cardettes will perform during halftime.

Orchestra will be selling balloons in the Fremd and Arlington school colors. Cheerleaders will be selling mums and student council will have their homecoming buttons for sale.

Saturday will wrap up the week's festivities with a dance sponsored by the A Club in the gymnasium.

Activist nun to speak at St. James Oct. 14

Former college president and social activist, Sister Betty Barrett, will discuss "Joy through Social Awareness" at 9:15 a.m., Oct. 14, at St. James Parish Center, 800 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Sister Barrett is past president of St. Xavier College in Chicago. Fee for the lecture is $3.

Parents will have the opportunity to meet with teachers and discuss curriculum following Tuesday's PTA meeting at Park View School, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Wheeling-B.G. Dist. 21

"Learning and Visual Problems," will be the topic of a panel discussion, at Poe School, 2800 N. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights, Tuesday. Panel members include, Dr. Herbert Solomon, Dr. Lillian K. Vitterson and Virginia Kuczma, learning disabilities teacher. The program, which will begin at 8 p.m., is sponsored by the school's PTA.

Mount Prospect Dist. 57

Westbrook School 103 S. Busse Rd., Mount Prospect, invites parents to visit the school and meet with teachers.

Parents of children in Grades 1, 3, 5, and 6 should attend Tuesday; and grades 2, 4 and kindergarten on Thursday. Classrooms will be open both evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Prospect Hts. Dist. 23

Open house for parents and students at Eisenhower School, Schoenbeck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights, will be conducted Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

PTA members will sell school sweatshirts and bicycle safety flags at the open house. There also will be a bake sale that evening.

Police arrest four on drug charges

Arlington Heights police arrested four men on narcotics and other charges Saturday afternoon after three of them told authorities they had taken heroin.

Arrested were John W. Almdale, 24, of 903 W. Illinois Ave. and Michael J. Soprano, 24, both of Arlington Heights. Also arrested were Blaise H. Johnson, 22, of 1633 Banbury Rd., Palatine, and John P. Schuette, 25, of Itasca.

Police said they found Almdale lying on a staircase at 15 N. Vall, reportedly having overdosed on heroin, and were then led to Soprano's apartment and the other three men.

Quantities of suspected marijuana were found along with a gram scale reported stolen from Harper College, Palatine. No heroin was found in the apartment, police said.

Soprano, Almdale and Schuette were charged with use of heroin. Soprano was also charged with possession of marijuana, possession of stolen property and maintaining a public nuisance. Schuette and Johnson were charged with possession of marijuana.

All four were released on $1,000 bond pending an Oct. 21 court appearance in Arlington Heights.

Village's battle against weeds ends — for this year

The annual war on weeds has ended in Arlington Heights for 1975, with the issuance of the last five cutting orders.

George Weinand, village health director, said the village's battle has ended for the season. He said that while some scattered vacant lots may have weeds taller than the one-foot limit, frosts will soon take care of them.

This year, the village cut the weeds on 345 vacant lots. Weinand said most lots had to be trimmed at least twice and some vigorous growths had to be cut more often.

THE TRIMMING cost the village $9,187.45.

The cost of cutting is determined by the size of the lot, with the minimum charge $25. If the village bill is not paid by the owner, a lien is placed against the property title. The lien must be paid before the land can be sold.

The village ordinance requires owners to keep weeds cut below a height of one foot. Weeds can be cut voluntarily by the owner or by village order.

GERALD SCHROEDER, who had refused to bow to the ordinance, was fined $100 in circuit court this summer.

The village contended his land northwest of Hersey High School was a weed lot. He argued in appellate court he was growing asparagus.

THE COURT agreed with Schroeder that the village ordinance was not specific enough. The village later revised the ordinance to take into account crops, difficulty in controlling weeds and economic hardship.

However, the village never accepted Schroeder's argument that his growth was agricultural and issued a citation under the revised ordinance.

He was fined $100 when he failed to appear in court to answer the charges last month, Weinand said.

'Old Salt' remembers:

Clean life, hard work that's Navy

by JOHN MAES

Clarence Leis is an old sailor who remembers his days aboard ship as though they just ended, not in 1919.

The 77-year-old Des Plaines resident, ex-city park board commissioner and one of the area's oldest ex-Navy men still clings to many memories of his seafaring days when he served aboard the battleship Wyoming.

Among the more tangible are dozens of yellowed pictures portraying his Navy days, dog tags, and a prized possession, his old dress blue uniform complete with cap although he says it hasn't fit for years.

IT WAS SEVERAL days after the United States declared war on Germany in April 1917 that Leis, then 19 and living in Wilmette quit a job to enlist.

"There was a buddy of mine," he remembers, "and even before the war he wanted to join the Navy. So then after war was declared he said, 'let's go down and join the Navy,' so we went."

The pay was a far cry from the $363 a month a sailor earns today — Leis made $17.60 a month. "And I sent $10 back to my folks. Later I went up to $33 but I still only had $23 and that ain't much."

The Wyoming during World War I was assigned to convoy duty escorting cargo ships full of munitions and supplies to the Doughboys in Europe.

WHILE THE Wyoming never saw action, the temperamental North Sea at times proved a greater menace than the German U-boats that prowled the North Atlantic. "That was a rough place, that North Sea, it was worse than the Atlantic," he said. "The water wasn't as rough but it was always choppy."

Not having suffered battle scars, Leis' biggest service distinction actually came after the war when his fleet escorted President Woodrow Wilson on a journey to France.

Leis said he was tempted for a time to make a career out of the Navy but said he left after serving out his hitch when the routine of swabbing decks and helping bake 1,200 loaves of bread every day became "monotonous."

There were a lot of crewmen on board from New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts and Leis remembers feeling sorry for them when the crew was made to paint the ship on Christmas Day, 1918, something Leis has never been able to figure out.

"THEY PROBABLY wanted the ship to look nice but what difference did it make what a ship looked like when it came back from a war?"

"But I liked it," he said. "It was a nice bunch of guys, a clean life and I got to see a lot of places."

What does Leis think of the Navy today? His only complaint is over the scuttling of the time-honored uniform of flared pants, jumper and cloth cap in favor of the recently adopted shirt, tie, jacket and brimmed cap.

"They cut out the uniforms which I don't like — but maybe it's for the best, I don't know."

Out of the mouths of seamen . . .

In honor of its 200th birthday, the Navy information service has amassed a boatload of commonly-used words and phrases that had their beginnings in the parlance of the seafarer.

The nickname "yankee" for a U.S. citizen comes from the time when Dutch merchants tagged American sea captains "yankers," a Dutch word for one who drove a hard bargain.

The word "bootleggers" was coined from an old play by sea smugglers who used to hide contraband in tall baggy seaboots to avoid getting caught.

An old Navy custom has given us the term "feeling blue." The custom was to paint blue bands on the ship's hull or fly a blue flag upon returning to port showing that a crew member had been lost at sea.

Calling someone a "son of a gun" comes from the time when certain seamen, including gunners mates were permitted to bring their wives on ship and if a boy was born during a voyage, the term was directed at the youngster.

You've come a long way Navy . . .

Well happy birthday Navy — you're 200 years old today.

It was Oct. 13, 1775 when the Continental Congress authorized the outfitting of two warships, the Cabot and the Andrea Doria to halt the flow of war supplies to British troops in the colonies.

At the outset, the fledgling Navy made a dismal showing and was never able to muster a force of more than 27 ships, many of which were burned or captured.

The youthful Continental Navy was deactivated in 1785 with the sale of its last warship the Alliance. But in 1798, Congress remobilized her creating the Dept. of the Navy, mainly to carry out reprisals against the former ally France for attacks on American merchant shipping in the undeclared Tripolitan War of 1798-1801.

TODAY THE NAVY is a modern organization and Navy officials credit much of the move toward its modernization to retired Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, former Navy chief of operations.

One of the more significant changes of the "Zumwalt era" was expansion of the woman's role in the Navy, said Lt. Cmdr. William A. Ryan, public affairs officer at Glenview Naval Air Station. "Under him, there was more emphasis on the Navy man and woman as individuals," he said.

"They (women) are also not filling the old clerical type roles, they're working on planes, in supply shops, the things that were previously strictly men-only jobs," Ryan said.

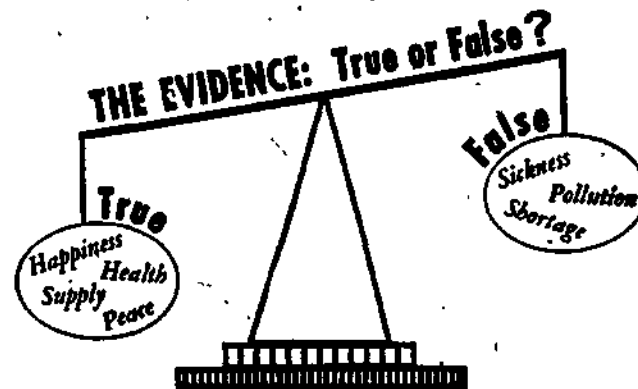

Some women have become aviators in the Navy. "We have at this point in time, approximately 20 females who have received their wings."

Navy recruiting has fallen slightly short of quotas in the Chicago area the last few months but recruiters say that's not necessarily a sign of "negativism" toward the military but rather an indication of higher enlistment standards. "We've had to maintain high standards," said Lt. Joel Keefer, head of Chicago-area recruiting for the Navy.

"But we're getting the type of recruits over-all that are a better quality individual," he said.

Guido slipped and broke his leg

A sour grapes version of Valley Forge misery

by ANTONETTA GINETTI

Two hundred years ago today, an Italian Immigrant, Guido Patafazzula and his family, landed in New York harbor.

Guido, his wife Rosa and their young children, Gulseppe and Antonio, had come to America from Naples to seek their fortune in the land which, coincidentally, their countryman Christopher Columbus had discovered 283 years before.

Guido, a shoemaker by trade, settled in the Pennsylvania territory to pursue a dream — a grape farm of his own. The land and people were good to him and soon he came to adopt the revolutionary fervor of the American-English settlers who were his neighbors.

Two years later, toasting Columbus Day and the anniversary of his arrival in America, Guido had come to a decision — he would join the Revolutionary cause.

"Rosa, dis landa she'sa no good for jesta growin' tobacco and cotton lika de Englese wanna. We gotta plantia tomatoes, zucchini and my grapes!

"WHENA CRISTOFORO comma 'here, he salla for de Spanish anda for his countrymen, too. We gotta do something to help Mistera Jefferson and Mistera Washington so Gulseppe anda Antonio canna grow up in a free landa."

"Ma, Guido, you jesta simple shoemaker," his wife said gently. "Whata you canna do to help?"

"I'ma gonna talk to Mistera Washington, dat'sa whata I'ma gonna do," he said rising from the table. "I'ma gonna leave domani to see him."

As it happend Guido's meeting with General Washington came at an opportune time. Washington was amassing manpower for the Revolutionary Army at the main American military camp at Valley Forge, Pa.

"Guido," he told the eager immigrant, "we could use willing men to fight."

"Mistera Washington, I'ma no fighter, but I wanna help. Howsa 'bout I makea some shoes for da men. You gotta nice uniformas, buta da boots you gotta no looka so good."

"FINE. THAT'S what you'll do," the general agreed, shaking hands with Guido and accepting the gift of homemade wine the Italian rebel had brought.

So Guido went home to begin work on the boots for the troops. But fate would not be on Guido's side.

For October is wine-making time and the vines had yielded the Pastafazzulas a bumper crop. But while stomping on a bin full of the precious harvest, Guido slipped and fell, broke an arm and a leg and was laid up for the rest of the winter.

Needless to say there was no shoe-making for Guido that year. The rest, of course, is history. The 11,000 American troops at Valley Forge suffered through a severe winter in 1777-78 and with no shoes, had to wrap their feet in cloth and paper.

And dat'sa da way it was . . .

The way we see it

Conciliation is necessity now

The Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education and its teachers are on the verge of a strike because of a stalemate in contract negotiations. We think it's time for a neutral third party to sit in on negotiations and help bring the 10-month-long talks to a reasonable conclusion.

Seventy-five per cent of the union teachers Friday voted in favor of giving their union governing board the power to call a strike. A strike seems to be a good possibility if there is no conciliatory step taken by either side.

The board met in executive session Thursday night to discuss their strategy should a strike be called. Board Pres. Dr. Edgar Feldman said after the meeting that the board would take "immediate counteraction" to a walk out by teachers.

Dist. 54 teachers are currently in the third year of a three-year contract that expires next summer. Teachers reopened discussion of the salary agreement in the contract in January and have been negotiating with the board ever since.

The latest contract proposals leave the two sides about $400,000 apart, with the board offering teachers a 9.1 per cent increase and teachers asking for a 12.94 per cent raise. During the last several negotiation sessions, neither side had budged from their offers.

We are disturbed with the attitude of both sides that the strike is a near certainty. A strike by teachers is illegal in this state, and we must agree with Feldman that it is "the most destructive tool of any labor negotiations."

Teachers prefaced the strike vote by asking the board to allow a neutral third party to sit in on negotiations to help bring about a resolution of the stalemate. We must agree with teachers that this is the best course of action available.

The Dist. 54 teachers contract does not allow for impasse or arbitration — procedures used by many local school districts when negotiations break down.

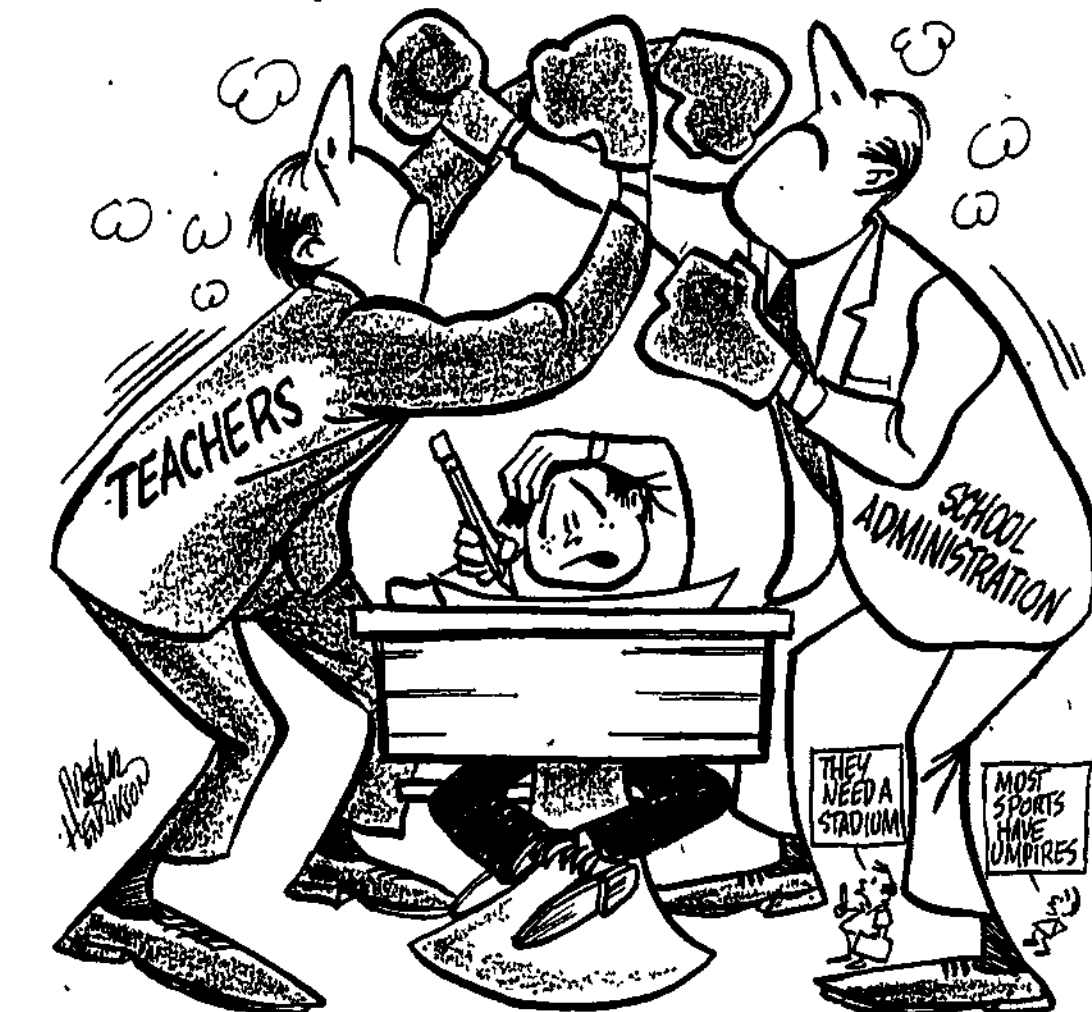

Board members have rejected the "third party" role saying they were elected by the people to negotiate teachers salaries and they cannot relinquish that duty.

The recommendations of a third party would not be binding on the board or teachers and may help both sides reconcile their differences.

Allowing a third party to enter into the talks might also avert a walkout this week and we believe residents of the district — if asked — would prefer the assistance of an outsider to a strike.

which have home-rule powers have climbed faster than in non-home-rule communities.

This shouldn't be so. Communities with more than 25,000 population could be using their home-rule powers to enact other taxes, and in turn could be cutting the property tax rate.

Sportsmanship lesson for today: how adults settle their differences.

Union rebuts District 54 statement

The Dist. 54 Board of Education, in its press release read by Board Pres. Edgar Feldman at Thursday's meeting, accused the Schaumburg Education Association of spreading "misinformation" throughout the community. This accusation is not supportable. Moreover, it ignores the old proverb about people who live in glass houses, for the entire statement is a classic example of being less than fully candid with statistics.

The statement claims that the board has "offered" a 9.15 per cent increase. In fact, this figure includes the annual experience increment, which has been a built-in feature of teacher salary schedules and a course of dealing for years. This increment has never been treated or accepted as a cost-of-living adjustment. The clear evidence for this is the fact that after either 12 or 16 years, depending on his or her level of education, the increment is no longer available to a teacher. Thus, we strongly feel that it is factually improper for the Board to claim that it has offered 9.15 per cent. The board had already contracted for a schedule with experience increments so in no sense can they be included as part of a new "offer." We are getting darned sick and tired of seeing them included as such. They are not. In fact, therefore, the board has offered a cost-of-living adjustment of exactly 5.47 per cent, despite the fact that the rate of inflation in the past year was 8 per cent; and despite the fact that in the previous year Dist. 54 teachers suffered a real loss in purchasing power of over 5 per cent (5.9 per cent cost-of-living adjustment, but 11.5 per cent inflation rate). Even the figure 5.47 per cent is actually a slight overstatement (of about half a percentage point) in view of the great number of starting-level teachers hired to replace teachers who left the district. The statistics which are used are actually convenient but imprecise shorthand figures, used for bargaining purposes, which are based on the fiction that all 845 teachers returned last year. In fact, we estimate that about 50 had to be replaced and the district has hired replacements with an average of three years less experience than those who left.

THE NET RESULT of the board's "offer" is that the most experienced teachers, as noted above, who no longer receive experience increments, will suffer a loss of 7.5 per cent in real dollars since the contract was signed two years ago (check it for yourself). If this were to continue for another 12 years, these teachers, who number over 100, would have salaries which in real dollars would be worth less than half what they were in 1973-74. The other 800 teachers, meanwhile, would never advance in purchasing power beyond that received in the first year because the true purpose of the experience increment would have been obliterated.

SEA, on the contrary, has proposed a cost-of-living adjustment — exclusive of the annual experience increment — of 9.08 per cent. This is hardly unreasonable in view of the real dollar losses which our teachers have experienced in the past two years.

What the board statement, conveniently ignores is the fact that two years ago, in exchange for getting the stability of a multi-year contract, the board implicitly agreed to keep the salary schedule even with the cost-of-living so long as it was financially feasible. Now, despite having several millions of surplus dollars with which to do this many times over, the board is misusing its bargaining position in order to avoid giving effect to that promise. In the process, it is creating unrest and conflict in the district by alienating teachers who justifiably feel that the board, in playing the negotiations "game to the hilt, is ignoring their genuine, demonstrable needs. When there is so much money available, game playing is unnecessary.

The fact that the contract makes no provision for third-party aid in impasse resolution is no deterrent to bringing such help in, for all we need to do is agree mutually to the process and the person. Moreover, neither does the delegation of authority issue present a problem so long as the third-party does not have binding power. Although binding arbitration was a suggested topic for discussion, at no time have we insisted on binding arbitration. We are open to such non-binding methods as fact-finding or advisory arbitration, by which the third-party would weigh the equities of the S.E.A. proposal and the board offer and make public recommendations as to which is more reasonable. We are willing to submit our proposal to a neutral observer who would not have binding authority, and we see no reason why the board should not be willing to do so, too — at least if its offer is as reasonable as claimed.

We challenge the legality of keeping secret the votes of the board members on the third-party question. The general rule for public bodies is that meetings and votes should be open to the public. One valid exception to this is that meetings dealing directly with negotiations should not be public, because a degree of secrecy is widely viewed as necessary for the negotiations process to work. However, we seriously question whether the vote taken on this question bears directly on negotiations as such. In no way does disclosure of this vote tip the board's hand in terms of offers that may be made at the bargaining table. Thus, there really is no valid reason for keeping this information secret. Indeed, in view of the slow progress toward an agreement, members of the public have a right to know how each member of the board has voted on this question each time the issue has been raised.

THE ASSERTION that teacher salaries must be kept down because of inflation and high unemployment is, of course, ridiculous. Paying Dist. 54 teachers less will have no salutary effects on either condition. Moreover, the board's major responsibility is to secure the best possible education for children in this district, not to advance poorly thought-out economic ideology.

The stubborn stance which the board negotiator has taken to date, while it might be entirely appropriate to private sector or industrial bargaining, casts doubt on how seriously the board really cares about the quality of education in this district. From all appearances, it almost seems that some board members may be more concerned with the thrill of exercising power than with providing for the best possible educational atmosphere. Obviously a school board must be concerned with costs, but there also must be a concern with quality. One doesn't, for example, purchase equipment simply because it is the cheapest. The relationship between cost and quality must be brought into the best possible balance. So far it appears that the board is merely concerned with getting the cheapest cost without consideration for whether the teachers feel that they have been treated fairly.

State law has given the board many powers in the bargaining process. Concomitant with this power is a duty to use those powers with great discretion: This duty is not fulfilled by playing on the patience of teachers and their desire to avoid conflict in order to force a resolution which teachers, with very good reasons, feel is manifestly unfair.

Home rule communities face dilemma on taxes

If recently released statistics have validity, Illinois' much-claimed home-rule powers aren't being used as extensively as they could be used.

Last week the Civic Federation, a watchdog group which regularly charts the performance of local government, reported that tax levies in suburbs

Obviously, many communities have had to exhaust every source of revenue to cope with rising expenses. Nonetheless, there's a message implicit in the Civic Federation's findings, a message which should be observed by every area home-rule community.

Citizens are fed up with escalating real estate tax rates, and home rule is designed to help stabilize or cut those tax rates. If real estate tax rates continue to soar in home rule communities, citizens might just become angry enough to try to toss out home rule. It's a potential threat which should not be neglected by local governments.

Phyllis Cretors

She is the boss

by BILLIE BACHUBER

Anything might pop up in Phyllis Price Cretor's hectic business day. And for this Elk Grove Village businesswoman, the more popping, the better business.

Phyllis is general partner and owner of Hi-Jinks Carmel Corn Co. which sells caramel, fudge and cheese popcorn coatings, and recently added a soft pretzel to their line. And right now the company is readying a prepackaged popcorn ball and a popcorn garland stringing kit for the holiday market.

"Yes, I am the boss. Everything goes through this office," claims Mrs. Cretors, smoothing down her maternity smock and assuming an executive's pose. But at the same time she leaves little doubt, she's serious about the business she inherited from her father.

ALONE AT THE TIME and with a child to support, Phyllis was determined to make good. "I needed the involvement and the income. At first I thought people were waiting for me to fail; then I began to like the challenge!"

Mrs. Cretors' only previous business experience was "working in offices." Now three and a half years later, she does it all: delivers supplies, works the forklift truck, orders raw materials, oversees the whole operation.

"But not without help from others," she recalled.

Phyllis learned her business lessons on the job. She read trade journals, files and any other useful information she put her hands on. She "picked brains" talking to distributors customers and others in the business willing to help her.

HENRY CRETORS, inactive partner in Hi-Jinks and president of Iroquois Popcorn Co. located across the street, gave her much invaluable assistance, she said. Now married a year and a half and expecting their first child, the couple combined their offices and warehouses six months ago.

"Already our facilities are bulging, and we are expanding and hiring!" said Phyllis proudly.

Hi-Jinks got off to a wobbly start because of the zoom in sugar prices just when Phyllis was taking over. To continue operating and make a profit, the company added a soft pretzel line.

"We sell the whole pretzel to a retailer who cooks and sells it warm across the counter," she explained. All Hi-Jinks mixes are prepared in automatic machines, on the premises, she added.

TO FURTHER establish product identification and to explore growth potential, Mrs. Cretors now is manufacturing a candy-coated popcorn ball with a three-month shelf life. This retail pack is designed for trimming Christmas trees as well as for eating. The bright orange bag is decorated with a little red clown, Hi-Jinks' symbol.

Along with the popcorn ball Hi-Jinks is preparing a popcorn garland stringing kit for trimming Christmas trees. The kit contains enough white popcorn to string a 24-foot garland, brightly colored red and green popcorn kernels (not for eating but non-toxic) and a large needle and heavy thread. Both products will be for sale in Sears' Christmas catalog.

The popcorn stringing kit is assembled at nearby Clearbrook Rehabilitation Workshop. "We couldn't do it without them!" said Phyllis.

OF THE BABY expected in January, Mrs. Cretors said the child is awaited with joy and eagerness by all the family. "This will be Henry's first and Laura's (her 14-year-old) first sibling."

Phyllis expects to be able to combine motherhood responsibilities and business ones by bringing the new baby to work with her three days a week at first. She hopes the caramel and popcorn venture will eventually make enough money so she has freedom to do just what she wants. She has diverse interests.

A piano player, she enjoys playing classical music and likes attending symphony and ballet. Under Henry's influence she has learned to both water and snow ski and play tennis.

BUT PHYLLIS also relishes the role of homemaker. She and Henry entertain often from informal barbecues to formal dinners. She also gardens, both indoors and out, likes pets and collects antiques, an interest her husband shares.

Member of a long-time American family (in 1885 makers of Cretors Popcorn Wagons) Henry leans toward the conservative and traditional like old clocks, lamps and Oriental rugs.

Recalling their honeymoon, she said, "Henry and I went to Galena where we added to his family antiques."

Phyllis Cretors pops corn in a big way — it's her business.

American motherhood: it's not all apple pie

by ELEANOR RIVES

Call it "Motherhood — American Style," bring in a few experts, register a couple dozen women for a Harper College workshop, and chances are you will find yourself in a roomful of authorities on the subject.

Seasoning the workshop with a Bicentennial flavor was Adade Wheeler, history professor at College of DuPage, who is currently compiling the history of women in Illinois for the Bicentennial Commission.

She deftly traced the role of women and children in American history, beginning with the strict behavior demanded by the Puritan ethic, an influence, which, along with Blackstone's Law, is still felt in women's lives today.

IN COLONIAL days, when a woman married, her being became consolidated into that of her husband. Her only role in life was to be a wife and to mother children.

"That there is such a thing as childhood is a recent idea," said Ms. Wheeler. "Even more recent is the idea that there is such a thing as adolescence."

Discipline and training of children was all-important. A well trained child never cried aloud after the age of 1. Parents were advised to curb their children's wills with incredible firmness. Children could be punished by law. Indeed, an incorrigible, disobedient child really deserved death.

Dr. Susan Andrews, clinical psychologist at MacNeal Hospital, Berwyn, how patho-psychology can develop in how patho-psychology can develop in marriage and following the birth of a child.

"SAY, FOR EXAMPLE, a man and woman marry, each looking to the other to solve a deficiency in their own personalities. Marriage is no solution. You can't find the answer in someone else for your own problems," said Dr. Andrews.

"When they have a child, one or both may try to relate to the child to solve these problems. The child figures out what he must do to keep Mom and Dad comfortable — he develops a symptom."

Dr. Andrews explained that in a kinship structure, one's needs can be diffused, but in our society we don't have this. The mother-father-child structure must take all the stress and strain.

"An important ingredient in parenthood is to find a variety of ways to meet your needs," she said. "If your only focus is your husband and kids, it is a terrible strain on all."

DR. ROBERT S. MENDELSON, pediatrician and associate professor of preventive medicine and community health at the University of Illinois School of Medicine, described today's family concept as a mixture of two major historical strains: the Old Testament strain and the Greek strain.

"The Old Testament strain emphasizes the family as the unit," he said. "The Greek strain emphasizes the individual as the unit. In the 1920s, America turned in the Greek direction. Since that time it has ever increasingly moved in the direction of weakening family life."

Dr. Mendelson, well known for his controversial, often humorous, comments gave a satirical recipe guaranteed to weaken family life.

"A MAN AND WOMAN marry," he said. "Both are working. The woman gets pregnant. So we take away her job security both before and after the baby is born. The family must live at a lower standard. Maybe we can get her to feel resentment toward the child."

He continued, "We can always weaken the family by separating family members at times of crisis. The obstetrician may insist the mother have her baby in a hospital rather than at home. Then he bans the husband from the delivery room. He separates the mother from the baby with anesthesia and analgesia. He sees that the baby is whisked off to a nursery and brought to the mother only at four-hour intervals."

Then, according to the recipe, the pediatrician accelerates the harm already perpetrated by the obstetrician.

Tradition offers little help in child-rearing

by BARBARA LADD

Rearing children today is not like it was 20 years ago. Or 40 or 60 years ago. In a rapidly changing society, customs and traditions once relied upon by parents become a less reliable guide in the "how to" of child-rearing.

"People try to look to tradition for the answers," said Lynda Harriman, child and family expert from the University of Illinois. "But the traditions are changing so rapidly."

Speaking recently in Mount Prospect at a workshop on "Discipline in a Changing Society" sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service, Mrs. Harriman pointed out the changes in child-rearing philosophies.

IN 1910, she said, spanking was the major discipline method and was reflected in the old saying "Spare the rod and spoil the child."

By 1920, however, spankings were replaced by deprivation, and the admonition "Give them an inch and they will take a mile" became popular.

"Children should be seen and not heard" took over in the 1930s as ignoring the child became a popular technique for discipline.

The 1940s saw reason, the '50's supported love and the '60s encouraged "loving" spankings, said Mrs. Harriman.

PARENTS OF THE 1950s and '60s grew up in what Mrs. Harriman termed "the parent's era." These persons were born between 1915 and 1935 and were reared in the hard times of the Depression.

When they were children, popular belief emphasized they were born evil and rebellious, said Mrs. Harriman. It was the responsibility of their parents to break down the children's evil.

On the other hand, parents of the 1970s were born in the "children's era," said Mrs. Harriman. At this time (between 1945 and 1965) the overriding philosophy in child-rearing was that children are helpless and need tender loving care. But the 1970s have imposed a variety of situations not seen in past families, she noted.

TODAY WE SEE a push for preschool education and small families. The sky-rocketing divorce rate implies the absence of at least one parent in the home, she said.

More mothers are working now than ever before, which often means non-family people are becoming involved in the child's rearing, Mrs. Harriman said, and it can also mean parents are sharing responsibilities in the home and that children are learning "people" roles — not boy and girl roles.

Statistics show that one-fourth of the American families move every year, said the child-rearing expert. This takes the family away from the grandparents and other relatives, leaving the child-rearing philosophy completely up to the parents.

"BECAUSE OUR traditional and societal ideas on child rearing have changed, we have to define our own personal philosophies," Mrs. Harriman stressed.

Everybody has a different way of bringing up children now, she said. "If parents can't decide on an approach to an issue, the children or the neighbors decide."

It often helps clear up confusion in the parent's mind if he tries to identify his own philosophy, Mrs. Harriman advised.

She views disciplining children as a continuum from extremely restrictive to extremely permissive.

A RESTRICTIVE parent tends to agree with the statement "The best discipline is that where parents control children's actions."

The permissive parent generally agrees that children should be allowed to make decisions appropriate to their capabilities. And a democratic parent thinks children should be encouraged to express their views, but the final decisions should be made by the parents.

Regardless where individuals fall along the continuum, Mrs. Harriman emphasized that giving the child reasons for the discipline — reasons beyond "Because I say so," etc. — re-strong institutions. "And the institutions are getting stronger," he said.

"Be aware of the two parallel strains that influence American culture," he said. "To strengthen the family, look to role models such as the fringe religious groups: the Mennonites, Orthodox Catholics, Covenanters, Orthodox Jews, the Amish, most Mormons, all those out of the mainstream of American culture."

"THE THING THAT keeps marriages together is the belief that a marriage is sacred," he said. "If science works long enough, it may discover some Old Testament truths."

"Motherhood — American Style" provided a banquet of mind-provoking ideas, many more than can be presented here, lively conversation and eager audience discussion.

Women who missed this stimulating workshop may be interested in attending its "sister" session on Thursday entitled "Who is Jane Doe?" It will focus on whether there is such a thing as the typical American woman. Tuition, including a hearty lunch, is $8 for the 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. day. Reservations may be made by calling 397p3000, extension 410.

yond "Because I say so," etc. — re-even if he doesn't like the restrictions imposed upon him."

THERE ARE currently four guidance principles in the child development field, Mrs. Harriman said.

The first is acceptance of each child as an "OK" person. "Displeasure should be directed toward undesired or bad behavior — not the child as a person," she said.

Protection is another principle and involves stopping children's harmful actions or even setting curfew times for them to be home.

Encouragement supports the child, praising his real efforts and successes.

And a relatively new concept in guidance is respect for the child's goals and attitudes as an individual.

"I don't have a recipe book for rearing children," she concluded. "There are many techniques that work in discipline — but we have to ask what they are learning by them."

Sandra, Joe Okopinski work for same company

Both Deborah E. Bobek and her bridegroom, Joseph J. Okopinski, are employed by Procon Inc. in Des Plaines. The couple, married Sept. 13 in St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, honeymooned a week in Florida and are now making their home in Streamwood.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Florian Bobek, Mount Prospect, is a graduate of Prospect High and Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, and the groom, son of John Okopinski, Lamar, Ark., is a graduate of Chicago Technical College, Midwest College of Engineering.

For the 3 p.m. double ring service Deborah chose a sheer gown trimmed in Chiny, Venise and Chantilly lace. A lace headpiece held her fingertip veil and she carried orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

ROSALIE SORENSON, Des Plaines, was maid of honor, and Sandra Bobek, a cousin of the bride from Melrose Park, and Sharon Larson, Arlington Heights, were bridesmaids. All wore yellow Empire gowns with white jackets, and they carried lotus pods with roses, yellow Starburst mums and ivy.

Timothy Gottschalk, cousin of the

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Okopinski bride from Arlington Heights, was best man, and ushers were Patrick O'Connor, Aurora, and John H. Smith, Elmwood Park.

A reception for 150 guests was held at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines.

Hersey pair wed Aug. 31

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Komorowski

A romance at Hersey High School culminated in marriage Aug. 31 for Brigitte Maria Popovitschak and Richard Alan Komorowski of Mount Prospect.

They exchanged vows and rings at 3 p.m. in St. Raymond Catholic Church, then greeted 115 guests at a dinner at Casa Royale in Des Plaines.

Brigitte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Popovitschak, chose her sister, Linda, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids included the groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. James Komorowski, Mount Prospect, and three of the bride's friends, Monica Roby, Michigan City, Karyn Peterson, Mount Prospect, and Margaret Allen, Mundelein.

ALSO IN THE wedding procession, Sarah Blunt, 4, of Lombard was flower girl and Patrick Luchsinger, 4, Oak Forest, ring bearer. They are the groom's niece and nephew.

Rick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Komorowski. He had Paul Lepinski, Des Plaines, as best man and Robert Roby of Michigan City, Craig Benes of Milwaukee and the couple's brothers, James Komorowski and Gunther Popovitschak, as groomsmen.

Back home after a week in the Bahamas, the newlyweds are living in Mount Prospect.

Brigitte works for Allstate Insurance Co., Northbrook, and Rick for IBM Corp., Chicago. He attended Harper College after graduation from Hersey.

Compost pile worthwhile if you have space, energy

Dear Dorothy: I keep hearing and reading about the value of compost heaps and heaven knows we have enough leaves this time of year. They always sound complicated, but then so is the weary job of raking and bundling leaves. Do you think they're worthwhile? —Johanna Merson

If you have a garden, compost not only is the best of fertilizers but, obviously, the cheapest. First thing to settle is whether your yard space is large enough because a smelly compost pile near the house can be annoying. What's called for is a simple, sturdy open bin, big enough to meet your needs. You stack leaves in this bin three to six inches thick, add some nitrogen and phosphorus and half an inch of soil, then you start a fresh layer. Nice thing is you can add vegetative matter like outside lettuce leaves and carrot tops and so on. Nitrogen is vital to keep the decomposition going on. The whole thing needs to be moist, but not soggy, and the pile has to be turned every once in a while. So while the end answer is yes, it's a bit complicated; yes, it's worthwhile — if you have the need, ample room and reasonable energy.

Dear Dorothy: I've not seen it in your column and maybe nobody else is doing it — car pooling for shopping. Three of us who are friends live in the same neighborhood. So we plan all our shopping trips together in one car — saving on mileage, gas and wear.

Dear Dorothy: Is salad oil the best thing to use in oiling a meat grinder before putting it away? —Barbara Maggio

I'd use glycerine. It has no taste whatever. Whichever you choose, though, remember a few drops are all you need.

Ask Andy

Vicuna—shy relative of the camel

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Lynette Price, 11, of Portland, Ore., for her question:

WHAT SORT OF ANIMALS ARE VICUNAS?

Let's take an imaginary trip down to South America and visit a herd of vicunas. You might mistake them for rather odd sheep with extra-long necks. But chances are you would never suspect they are related to the stately camels of Africa and Asia. The vicunas seem too small and have no humps on their backs.

Spanish explorers met the vicuna in Peru and borrowed his Inca name, pronounced vi-con-yah. He is a shy animal who prefers to live in the wilds of Chile and Peru, high on the Andes where the air is quite thin.

The vicuna story began 40 million years ago. At that time, herds of ancestral camels shared our continent with herds of ancestral horses. The camel resembled smallish sheep with long necks, and the horses were no bigger than Lassie. Some of the little horses crossed long-forgotten land bridges into Asia and spread through Europe and Africa. Those that stayed home failed to survive.

Some of the little camels reached Asia and Africa. Through the ages they became huge animals with humps on their backs. Other ancestral camels left North America and wandered down into South America. They remained smallish and humpless, more like the original camels. Some are llamas; others are guanacos, alpacas and vicunas.

Before Columbus arrived, the super-fine hair of the wild vicunas was used to weave cloth for the ruling Inca of Peru. Compared with these soft alken threads, the finest human hair seems like wire. Fabric woven from vicuna hair is called cumpli cloth, and it is softer than cashmere. In the days of the Inca, ordinary folk were not allowed to wear this precious fabric.

The llama and the alpaca were domesticated long ago. But most attempts to tame the shy vicuna have failed. He lives with his small herd on slopes too high for most humans to live in comfort. This is possible because his blood can absorb plenty of oxygen from the thin air. Human red blood cells live about 100 days, while the superior red cells of the vicuna live 235 days.

The male vicuna may tend a herd of a dozen females and their offspring. While this well-dressed family grazes, their devoted guardian keeps a look-out from a high peak. When visitors approach, he utters a shrill warning whistle and the herd trots off to safety. Since they are genuine members of the Camelidae family, they travel by moving two right feet, then two left feet.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Teddy Wasikawich, 9, of Niagara Falls, Ont., Canada, for his question:

WILL THERE BE ANOTHER ICE AGE?

Some experts suspect that another ice age is on the way, and it may arrive quite soon. Other experts suspect that there is no ice age in sight, and in fact the world may expect a long spell of warmer weather than we now have. But no true expert knows the answer for sure. There are many signs that the world's weather may be changing. But nobody in the know is certain whether we can expect things to get warmer or a lot colder.

For more than 100 years, the ice ages have mystified the scientists. Maybe they were caused by changes in the sun or by changes in the earth. Maybe they were caused when the solar system moved into a different part of the Milky Way. But since they happened many times in the past, most likely they will happen again. However, nobody can say for sure when the next ice age will arrive.

Do you have a question to ASK ANDY? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 686, Arlington Heights, 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

be the best defense. It turned out not to be."

Jim: "Betty Castle, the attractive lady expert sitting South, wasted no time end playing the defense. She won the trump, led a spade to dummy, ruffed a spade, led a second trump, rufed dummy's last spade and led a diamond."

Oswald: "Holmes and Watson took three diamond tricks and then Watson had to lead a club. Betty played for the club honors to be divided and wrapped up the rubber."

Jim: "Had Holmes opened a diamond there would have been no end play and no way to make the contract."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXX is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Stroke symptoms may subside

My husband was hospitalized 25 days for cerebral hemorrhage more than two years ago. For two weeks he lay semi-conscious, vomiting every bit he ate and hiccuping constantly. When they could finally make angiograms no surgery was necessary. The neurosurgeon said there was no medical help. It was up to nature and God. The blood had to be absorbed.

There was not the slightest improvement for two weeks. Then one day he was better. He slowly regained some strength, some coordination, by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

The doctor says

and his speech gradually got a little better. Neither our medical doctor nor the neurosurgeon recommended any kind of therapy. He takes regular walks and does chores in the yard and around the house. His balance is still bad and his walk and speech are poor. I keep thinking that years from now we may look back and think if only he had had some therapy. Do you agree with these doctors?

Your husband had a marked improvement because the swelling (edema) in the brain around the area of injury from the damaged artery gradually subsided. It is common for the brain to accumulate fluid and get swollen with the stroke. This causes pressure on brain cells and makes things look worse than they will be eventually if the patient recovers. It is plain swelling as you see with any injury.

The cells that were destroyed by the stroke, as opposed to those temporarily not functioning from the swelling, are permanently destroyed, and their function cannot be regained. That is why the difficulty in walking and talking remains.

Your husband might get some improvement with special training in the use of his muscles by a physical therapist or specialist in physical medicine. Also some stroke victims can improve their speech with speech therapy. The latter is a long process. The feasibility of using these aids depends a lot on what is available in your community.

Physical therapy for stroke victims is most successful when it is begun as soon as the patient's condition will permit it. Early therapy sometimes will help maintain muscle functions that might otherwise be lost.

Strokes are like heart attacks and are usually caused by diseased arteries. The arteries are damaged by deposits of fatty-cholesterol particles in the wall of the arteries. The artery is then blocked off with a clot or hemorrhage. The area of cells, depending on blood from that artery, die from lack of circulation. The functions of the body that depend upon those cells is then lost.

The best approach to strokes is to prevent them when possible. As with heart attacks, the first symptoms may be a severe stroke or even a fatal one. You prevent strokes by the same type of dietary treatment, treating elevated blood pressure and eliminating cigarette smoking. In those who survive a stroke, these same measures are important in helping to prevent another one.

Gamma Theta sponsors St. Jude teen march

Accepting an appointment from Danny Thomas, founder of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, Gamma Theta Chapter of ESA International is sponsoring the area Teenagers March for the fifth consecutive year.

To be held during the week of Oct. 28 through Nov. 2, in Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hanover Park and Streamwood, the march will help raise money to build a research institution where pediatricians and biological scientists seek cures for childhood diseases.

Members of the seven area ESA chapters in the Woodfield Area Council will entertain the teen volunteers at a mixer Nov. 2, where Bob Dearborn, disk jockey for WCFL, will be a guest. Prizes will be awarded to top collectors and winners will be announced when the drive is completed and finalized.

Teenagers and adult helpers wishing further information may call the following: Arlington Heights: Leanna Wu, 439-1828; or Jamie Bartnicki, 259-4754; Buffalo Grove, Carol Sturgis, 537-8903; Elk Grove Village, Gerry Kearns, 856-0132; Hoffman Estates: Marge Floyd, 885-7660; or LaVonne Reamer, 882-3994; Palatine, Sara Seligman, 991-0100 or Gloria McCullough, 359-8077; Schaumburg, Bonnie Shirk, 894-2029; or Arlene Gruber, 894-0220.

'Bop Day, Cinderfroh,' in Sacred Heart spirit week

Sacred Heart of Mary High School's traditional "Spirit Week" will be celebrated at the Rolling Meadows school this week.

Students will attend classes in a modified schedule to allow time for games, skits and costumes. The festivities, which are designed to promote school unity, are being planned by faculty member Joe Lane and the class officers including Sue Skarzynski, Karen Pelletier, Katie Botterman, Roberta Donor and Maryann May.

The week will begin with color day Tuesday when students will wear class colors. On Wednesday, students will dress "Bop Day" style and compete in a dance contest and fashion show.

Game day is Thursday and features races, a tug-of-war between classes and a whipped cream eating contest.

Freshmen will be dressed in costumes by sophomores before school on Friday and will be at the bidding of upperclassmen for the day. A mock homecoming king and queen will be crowned in the afternoon and the sophomores will present a "Cinderfroh" skit.

Area attorneys named to panels

Four Northwest suburban attorneys were named recently to leadership positions in the Illinois Bar Assn.

John L. Kirkland, Arlington Heights, was named chairman of the bar organization's insurance law council.

Bar association committee members will include Paul A. Retberg, Elk Grove Village; John F. White, Arlington Heights; and William E. Fogel, Wheeling.

Fogel was named to the long-range planning committee. Retberg will be on the legal education and admission committee, and White was named to the traffic laws and courts committee.

The committees study ways of making lawyers' services readily accessible to the public through legal aid for the indigent and lawyer referral and prepaid legal services for those who are not indigent; promotion of American citizenship activities; study of state and federal legislation; computerized legal research; investigation of unauthorized practice of law and other activities.

Redlegs whip Boston 3-2 to knot World Series

Dave Concepcion, whose sixth-inning error had set up the go-ahead run, shed his goat's horns by singling home the tying run with two-outs in the ninth inning and then scored the winner on Ken Griffey's double to give the Cincinnati Reds a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox Sunday, knotting the World Series at one game apiece.

Rick Wise will start for the Boston Red Sox and Gary Nolan for the Cincinnati Reds in the third game of the World Series Tuesday night at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium.

The Reds, the gears of their "Big Red Machine" stripped by southpaw Bill Lee for eight innings, struck for their winning rally against Dick Drago in the ninth inning after Johnny Bench, a failure at the plate in four previous post-season games, had opened the inning with a double.

Lee, who had battled the bone-chilling and rainy 54-degree weather masterfully to that point, then was replaced by Drago, who proceeded to retire the next two batters easily.

But, Concepcion bounced a grounder past the mound over second base that second baseman Denny Doyle fielded but could not get out of his glove. Bench, who had moved to third on Tony Perez' grounder, scored on the play to tie the game at 2-2.

The Reds, whose running game had been virtually halted by catcher Carlton Fisk and the pinpoint moves of the Red Sox' pitchers, then completed their first steal of the series as Concepcion just beat Carlton Fisk's strong throw to second. A moment later Griffey, who had not hit the ball out of the infield in three previous attempts against Lee, laced a double to left-center to score Concepcion with the go-ahead run.

Until the ninth-inning spurt, the Reds had been virtually helpless against Lee, who held them to just four hits over the first eight innings in his first start since Sept. 19.

It also appeared that the usually surehanded Concepcion was going to wear the goat's horns. An error by the Venezuelan shortstop on Fisk's grounder in the sixth inning following a single by Carl Yastrzemski had set up the run that broke a 1-1 tie.

World Series

Rico Petrocelli, who got a chance to bat because of the error, produced that run with a single to right and Lee protected it until the Reds' ninth-inning rally.

Actually, some careless base-running by the Red Sox in the first two innings ended up costing them the game. Boston had Reds' starter Jack Billingham in trouble twice in the first two innings only to botch their opportunities with mental mistakes on the bases.

Cecil Cooper opened the Red Sox' first by linking a double over the head of left fielder George Foster, who first misjudged the ball then slipped on the wet turf. Doyle moved Cooper to third with a single off Billingham's glove, but the Reds appeared out of trouble when Cooper committed a mental error and was doubled off third on Carl Yastrzemski's grounder to Billingham.

Billingham was ready to concede the run and went for the forceout at second, but Cooper hesitated in running home and Concepcion, after stepping on second for the forceout, threw to the plate and Cooper was tagged out in a rundown. Yastrzemski managed to get to second on the play, however, and scored a moment later when Fisk lined a single to right.

The Red Sox put runners on first and second with one out in the second but blew their chance for a score when Bench picked Dwight Evans off second.

The Reds, who had been held scoreless in the series for 12 consecutive innings, finally broke through to tie the score in the fourth. Joe Morgan walked with one out, moved to third when Bench broke a 1-18 post-season slump with a single to center and scored as Perez bounced into a force-out.

After the Red Sox went ahead in the sixth, they were virtually handcuffed the rest of the way by a parade of Reds' relievers. Pedro Borbon, Will McEnaney and Rawly Eastwick succeeded in blanking them the rest of the way with Eastwick getting credit for the victory.

The rain, which fell intermittently all day, succeeded in stopping the game for 27 minutes in the middle of the seventh inning. It was the first rain delay in World Series competition since Oct. 6, 1968.

There was no way Dave Concepcion was going to be the last out in a losing cause for the second straight day.

At least that's what the Venezuelan-born Cincinnati Reds shortstop was thinking just prior to driving home the tying run with a two-out ninth-inning single in the Reds' 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox that tied the World Series at one game apiece.

"I was the last out on Saturday," said Concepcion, who later scored the winning run on Ken Griffey's double, "and I made up my mind there was no way I was going to be the last out again. Somehow, I was going to get on base."

Concepcion was more concerned about being the last out than with being the game's "goat" because of a sixth-inning error that led to the Red Sox' go-ahead run.

"I wasn't thinking about the error," he said. "That had happened three innings earlier and it was already out of my mind. I just wanted to get that hit."

As for his error on Carlton Fisk's grounder in the sixth, Concepcion refused to blame the damp, rainy conditions. "The ball was hit hard and at

Huskies tip Bison in two dramatic overtimes

by KEITH REINHARD

The sun was already beginning to settle on the horizon when Matt Zakula took Scott Topczewski's handoff and plowed into the Buffalo Grove line.

It was nothing fancy . . . just a simple one-yard plunge off left tackle. But it gave Hersey their first lead of the game, and the only one they needed to ring out a dramatic 28-21 conquest of the host Bison in two overtimes Saturday.

"This was probably the biggest victory we've ever had over at Hersey . . . a helluva win and one of the most exciting games I've ever been involved in," a spent Huskie head coach Joe Gliwa exclaimed afterwards.

The marathon triumph allowed his team to retain their perfect overall record (5-0) and at 3-0 left them as the only undefeated club in the Mid-Suburban's North Division.

After being blanked over the whole first half, and eventually falling behind 14-0 in the third period, the Huskies rallied behind a basic ground attack to knot things up three minutes under the final gun.

Both sides then took turns striking paydirt in the first extra session before Hersey applied the clincher, dampening the Grove's capacity homecoming crowd and pinning a first conference setback on the Bison.

Buffalo Grove probably deserved a lesser fate. Their defense, for the most part, played a brand of inspired football previously unmatched this season. An offense sparked by junior handyman Ben Orcutt and super hustler George Bastable provided BG with all the explosive power required for most gridiron wars.

But the ever-platooning Huskies are not exactly your average, run-of-the-mill football team. When its predominantly air-minded attack had been thwarted through the first half, Hersey settled on conventional ground routes for further invasions and came up with much more beneficial results.

"It was a definite change in our game plan," Gliwa admitted. "We came over prepared to pass but weren't very successful during the early stages. In the second half we decided to simply run at them and after they scored their second TD we stuck pretty much to this commitment."

Buffalo Grove had drawn first blood early in the second period on a flat pass to Orcutt near the left sidelines, a block by Wayne Eischen springing him free on an 88-yard scoring scamper. The conversion kick went wide left and the 6-0 lead held up into intermission.

Early in the third quarter an interception by Scott Groot allowed the hosts to set up shop in good field position and on the very next play Dave Zimmer uncorked a 36-yard touchdown pass to Bastable. Groot moved into the quarterback slot on the conversion and flicked to Orcutt for two points and a 14-0 Grove lead.

Hersey replied with a lightning-quick march that covered 55 yards in six plays. Zakula and Wally Hommerding accounted for 54 yards on hard charges up the middle and Topczewski dove over from the one to cap the advance.

Bob Schackner then kicked the extra point to cut the Bison lead to 14-7.

In the fourth quarter the guests put together their most impressive drive. It spanned 80 yards and consumed 16 plays. Topczewski picked up a pair of crucial first downs on short passes, but otherwise it was strictly an overland trail that Hersey followed with Zakula going off right tackle from the five to score.

And there was 3:06 showing on the clock as Schackner converted again to tie up the contest at 14-14 and send the game into overtime.

In period five Buffalo Grove went on offense first. Zimmer picked up Mike Valentine at the deep edge of the end zone on the first play and zeroed in for a 10-yard score. Orcutt converted and it was 21-14.

Hersey had to initiate their four-play crack at the goal line from the 15-yard stripe because of an offside penalty on the previous extra point play. It mattered little for Topczewski fired into the left corner on the second play and Bob Huber came up with a diving catch for the touchdown.

And one more time Schackner converted to create a stalemate, this time at 21-21.

Now it was Hersey's turn to go first on offense. Hommerding picked up five down to the four. Then Zakula cracked off four to the one and finally it was Zakula going over.

This put the pressure on the Bison and it was complicated further when Zimmer saw two passes fall incomplete. Finally a Hersey interior line sparked by Steve Johnson, Steve Marsh and Dave Koelper, that had been devastating all afternoon, caved in on the hosts, forcing up a fumble, and Huskie Mark Knittel recovered to end the game.

Impressive offense; defense

Harper finds right combination

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Only one first down allowed in the second half. Only one yard allowed in the second half. No points allowed the entire game.

You guessed it, Harper's defense was playing again Saturday and they were reciprocated on the other side of the scrimmage line by the most powerful Hawk offensive showing of the year as Thornton's Bulldogs came away 31-0 believers.

"What can I say about the defense?" head coach John Eliasik wanted to know. "They were super once again. It was good that they finally got the shutout because they'd been cheated a couple other times by touchdowns late in the game."

Aside from keeping the Thornton offense in neutral all afternoon, the Hawks forced four Bulldog turnovers: a pair of interceptions by Dugan McLaughlin, one pass theft by John Spores and a clutch fumble recovery by Joe Lange.

Lange's fumble recovery may have marked the beginning of the end for Thornton. The Bulldogs took advantage of a Harper fumble and moved to the Hawks' three yard line before Willard Wilson gave up the ball to Lange.

Thornton never had it so good the rest of the day.

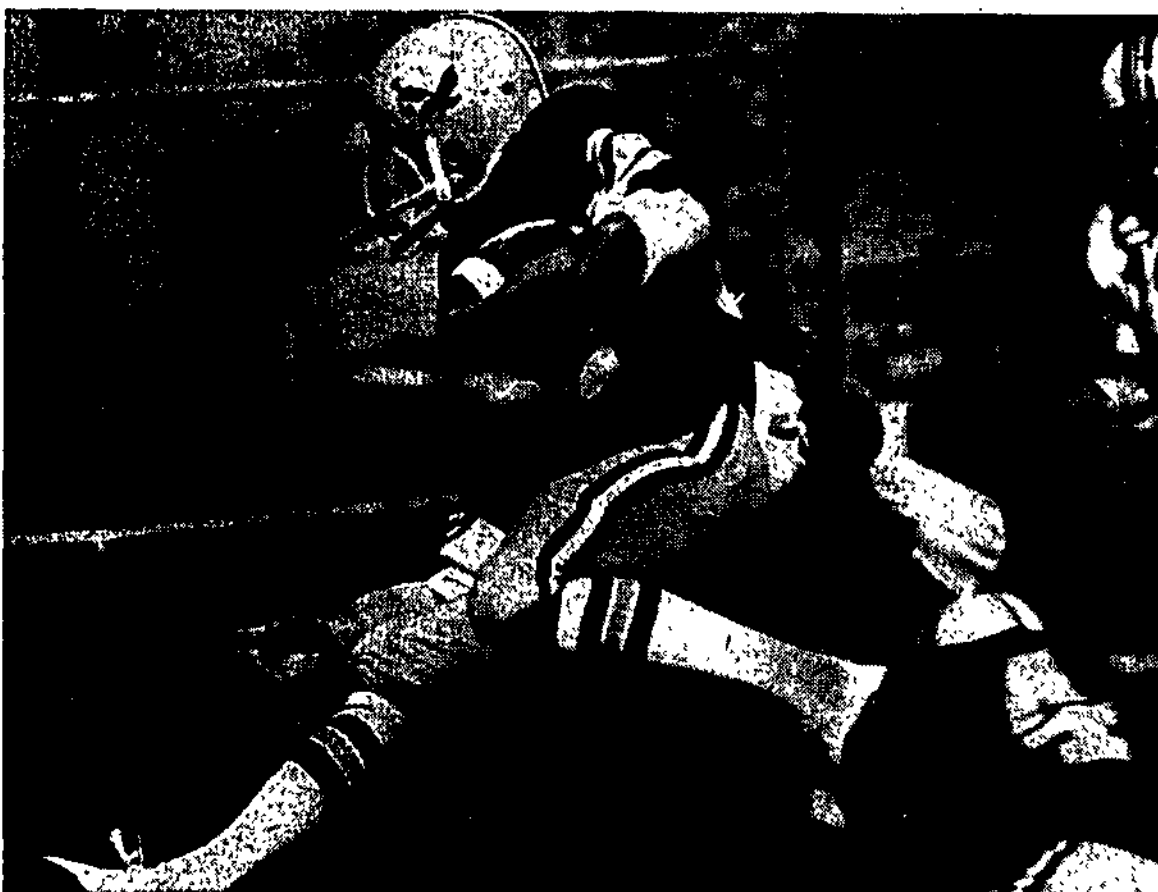

"The offense made a couple of mistakes early, the result of a mix-up between (Gary) Mueller and the center," Eliasik said. "But after that first quarter we were able to do pretty much what we wanted."

Thornton advanced the ball to Harper's seven-yard-line to start the second period and the Hawk pass defense had to do double duty to keep the Bulldogs off the board.

McLaughlin and DuWayne Mill made back-to-back acrobatic plays in the end zone to keep Thornton in shut-outland and moments later the defense came up with their first blocked punt of the season.

The likes of Kevin Kristick, Greg Tyson, Kent Knudson, John Spores, Joe Lange, Kevin Koppert and Greg Goldman had come within a chewed fingernail of stuffing a dozen punts

Detroit Lions hammer Chicago, 27-7

Quarterback Bill Munson, making his first start of the season, threw three touchdown passes Sunday and the Detroit Lions' defense dominated the Chicago Bears for a 27-7 victory.

Chicago was held to 56 net yards in the first half and didn't get inside Detroit's 20 until the opening minutes of the fourth quarter.

Early in the fourth quarter Chicago got to the six, but Len Barney intercepted the 49th pass of his career and ran his career interception return yardage total to 888 yards with a 10-yard return out of the end zone. In the last minute of the game Chicago got to the four yard line and Bob Griz avoided the shutout on the last play of the game when he caught an eight-yard touchdown pass.

Munson drilled touchdown passes of 11, 14 and 12 yards to help the Lions win their third game in four contests. Charles Sanders, Ray Jarvin and Jon Staggers were on the receiving end of the touchdown tosses. The Bears are 1-3.

The upstart Kansas City Chiefs used a pair of interceptions by Kerry Readon and Emmitt Thomas as a springboard to three touchdowns in three minutes during the first quarter Sunday and stunned the previously unbeaten Oakland Raiders, 42-10.

The 32-point margin was the worst loss suffered by Oakland since a 42-7 waxing by Kansas City in 1964.

Fullback Jim Braxton bulled his way into the end zone three times Sunday to carry the Buffalo Bills' 38-31 win Sunday over the Baltimore Colts.

Braxton, who had accumulated 243 yards in the first three games of the season, gained only 13 yards on nine carries as a determined Colt defense forced Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson to go to the air. O.J. Simpson fared better, rushing for 158 yards, to boost his four-game total to 897 yards.

Rich Szaro, playing his first game in the National Football League, kicked a 20-yard field goal with 22 seconds left Sunday, to give the New Orleans a 20-19 victory over the Green Bay Packers for the Saints' first victory of the season.

The Saints spotted Green Bay 16 points, including two Packer touchdowns in the first 1:05 of play, then came from behind to win it.

The Cincinnati Bengals raced to their fourth straight victory Sunday by scoring two touchdowns within 51 seconds late in the third quarter to break a 10-10 tie enroute to a 27-10 ramp over the winless New England Patriots.

Cincinnati's 4-0 record represents the best start in the eight-year history of the franchise.

With the score tied 10-10, Bengals' halfback Essex Johnson dashed 12 yards for a touchdown with 1:50 left in the third period.

Rookie quarterback Steve Bartkowski, playing before the home fans for the first time as a pro, spearheaded the underdog Atlanta Falcons to all their points before leaving with an elbow injury late in the third quarter Sunday but his effort was enough for a 17-3 over the mistake-plagued San Francisco 49ers.

Bartkowski, who gained collegiate fame playing at the University of California, threw nine yards to tight end Jim Mitchell for one score hit on five passes for the second and took advantage of San Francisco errors to set up the third.

Terry Bradshaw, who achieved a Steeler milestone Sunday, threw two touchdowns to lead Pittsburgh to their first regular season victory over the Denver Broncos, 20-9.

Bradshaw needed only 29 yards pressing to become the third Steeler quarterback to go past the 8,000 yard mark and he picked that up with his first pass of the game as Lynn Swann leaped between two Bronco defenders at the goal line for a 43-yard touchdown.

Bradshaw, who finished the day with 16 completions on 26 attempts for 291 yards, joined Bobby Layne and Jimmy Finks as the only Steeler quarterbacks to pass for more than 8,000 yards.

Joe Blahak blocked a Greg Gant punt out of the end zone for a safety midway through the final quarter Sunday and Chuck Foreman scored his third touchdown of the game minutes later to rally the unbeaten Minnesota Vikings to a 29-21 victory over the New York Jets.

Foreman gained a total of 201 yards, 98 rushing and 103 receiving, helping the Vikings hike their records to 4-0. Fran Tarkenton completed 18 of 28 passes for 244 yards for Minnesota. The Jets fell to 2-2.

Dan Pastorini threw three touchdown passes to Mack Alston and Billy Johnson scored on a dazzling 81-yard kickoff return Sunday to lead the Houston Oilers to a 40-10 victory over the Cleveland Browns.

Pastorini, who hit 12 of 20 passes for 124 yards, had scoring passes of six and five yards to Alston in the second quarter, giving the Oilers a 20-10 lead at the half.

Johnson, one of the AFC's leading kick returners, took the second half kickoff at his own 19, burst through a cluster of players at the 30, and outran Don Cockroft and Clarence Scott down the right sideline to break the game open at 27-10.

Bob Griese hit Nat Moore for one second half touchdown and former Eagle Norm Bulach crashed up the middle for another Sunday to give the Miami Dolphins a 24-16 win over Philadelphia.

After a see-saw first half which ended with the Dolphins ahead 10-9, Griese and the Dolphin offense took charge with two scoring drives, one capped by Griese's 13-yarder to Moore and the other by Bulach's 7-yard run.

Roger Staubach hit Jean Fugett with a four-yard touchdown pass four plays after a Mark Washington interception to give the Dallas Cowboys a 13-7 triumph over the New York Giants, spoiling the Giants' return to New York City after a two-year absence.

Washington picked off a Craig Morton pass at the New York 40 and returned it 23 yards to the 17, setting up the Cowboys' lone touchdown.

Veteran Tom Dempsey kicked a pressure-packed 22-yard field goal with 5:33 remaining in overtime Sunday to give the heavily favored Los Angeles Rams a 13-10 sudden-death victory over the stubborn San Diego Chargers.

Dempsey's second field goal of the game came after an 86-yard drive, featuring a key third-down pass from James Harris to tight end Bob Klein for 29 yards, on a fourth-and-one situation on the Chargers' six.

Pan Am Games open in Mexico

The Cuban team upstaged the United States contingent Sunday at the spectacular opening of the VIII Pan American Games, a colorful spectacle that included ritual Indian dancing on this the 625th Birthday of Mexico City.

The Cubans, who have made it clear all along their only concern is to defeat the United States in the 13-day competition, received a thunderous cheer when they entered the 105,000 capacity Aztec soccer stadium.

When the American team, with marksman Maj. Lones Wigger of Columbus, Ga., carrying the stars and stripes, entered the arena, the Cubans pulled miniature Cuban flags from their pockets to wave to the capacity crowd and this led to more cheers for the Latin team.

The Americans, the only team to wear hats, looked smart in blue uniforms, but the Mexican public received them with a mixture of whistles and polite applause.

Littler, Irwin and Player win

Defending champion Gene Littler won the $300,000 Taiheyo Club Masters Golf Tournament Sunday, shooting a one under par 70 in a day-long rain for a come-from-behind one stroke margin victory.

Littler, 43, captured the $65,000 first prize for the second straight year with a six under par 278 on the difficult 7,187-yard, par-71 Sohu Country Club course.

Third-round leader Lee Elder, Allen Miller, Hubert Green and Masahiro "Jumbo" Ozaki of Japan tied for second place with a five-under-par 270.

Defending champion Hale Irwin, who played two flawless opening rounds, cooled off in the blustery winds that swept Wentworth's Burma Road course Saturday, but still managed a 4 and 2 victory over Al Gelberger to retain his Piccadilly World Match Play golf title.

Overnight leader Gary Player of South Africa mastered strong winds to fire a one-under-par 71 Sunday to win the $40,000 Lancome golf tournament.

Player, who picked up a $25,000 winning purse, took a six-stroke lead into Sunday's final round and played safe golf to finish with a 72-hole total of 278, six strokes ahead of Lanny Wadkins.

Kodes wins Madrid Grand Prix

Czech Jan Kodes defeated Adriano Panatta of Italy, 6-2, 3-6, 7-6, 6-2, Sunday to win the Madrid Grand Prix tennis tournament on a chilly day at the Club del Campo.

Panatta stayed with Kodes up to 5-5 in the third set. But the Italian double-faulted to lose the game and then his game fell apart.

Kodes won the tiebreak, 7-4, and swept through the final set with some spectacular shots.

Panatta, who fired lots of aces Saturday in his win over Swede Bjorn Borg, could not repeat that performance.

In the women's doubles final, the American pair of Jane Bostrom and Janet Melcalf defeated West Germans Heidi Elsterlechner and Iris Riedel, 6-4, 6-4.

Reds top Boston to knot Series

the last minute it came up and hit my glove," he said.

Griffey, meanwhile, called the game-winning double into the left-centerfield gap, "the biggest hit of my career."

"No doubt about it," smiled the 25-year-old rightfielder, "the only thing that even comes close to it was a three-run homer I hit in Double A ball that won a championship game for Three Rivers against Sherbrooke. That one broke up a 3-0 tie and came on a 3-2 pitch."

For awhile, it didn't look as if the Reds would be having any celebrating to do Sunday. Stymied on four hits by southpaw Bill Lee into the ninth, the Reds looked and almost felt like a beaten team.

"I've never seen our clubhouse so quiet," said Pete Rose. "During the rain delay especially, we just didn't have too much to cheer about. The breaks weren't going our way and they (the Red Sox) were playing great ball."

Hawks escape upset bid in crosstown battle

Hoffman Estates tips Conant, 14-6, for Mayor's Cup

by PAUL LOGAN

The game was played with the emotional frenzy of an ancient rivalry, but it was the first meeting ever.

One team outgained the other 264 to 89, but the high school contest's outcome was in doubt right up to the end.

It was just what you'd expect from crosstown foes — going all out, trying to be the best in the village with the Mayor's Cup hanging in the balance.

Hoffman Estates, heavily favored to win, escaped the upset bid by Conant at the Hawks' field Saturday afternoon, 14-6.

Long after the hard-hitting "civil war" had concluded and Hoffman Estates had proudly accepted the trophy from Mayor Virginia Hayer, Hawk coach Bill Gourley was still shaking his head.

Gourley said that game had driven him crazy because of the three fumbles lost and two interceptions, "and every one of them was crucial." One freak play in particular had him talking to himself — Conant's only touchdown.

Minutes after the Hawks had taken the lead on a dazzling punt return by Kevin Stalley, 7-0, the weird happening occurred. Hoffman quarterback Wayne Jackson pitched back to star tailback David Lipko, but the ball bounced off his hands and into the air. Before he could catch it again, defensive back Sam Assil caught it on the run and went 45 yards for the score.

"How many times does that happen?" said Gourley. "It was unbelievable."

That was the beginning of a costly streak of Hoffman turnovers, including two more that ruined scoring opportunities in the second quarter.

Kevin Stalley

One was an interception by Jerry Etchingham, one of two he had, and another was a fumble recovery by Ron Burhite when the Hawks had first-and-goal from the three.

Hoffman, 3-1 in the MSL and 4-2 over-all, finally put itself a touchdown in front in the fourth period after a good punt return by Kevin Stalley of 15 yards. After using the running of Lipko (who had a game high 156 yards in 31 carries) and Joe Parille to take it down to the one, Jackson sneaked over with 8:52 remaining. Jim Moore kicked his second extra point.

Stalley had put the Hawks on the scoreboard the first time, bringing the crowd to its feet with an electrifying punt return. He took the ball at the 35 and headed for the Hoffman sidelines. En route to the end zone he received numerous blocks, including those from Lipko, Parille and Schmalz.

Hoffman's offensive line of center Doug Rush, guards Jim Thomas and Frank Gurecki and tackles Jim Moore and Jim Broucek played a fine game, opening holes that helped the Hawks to 238 of their 264 total yards.

Sam Assil

"They did a nice job," said Gourley, "but the backs hurt us by making mistakes."

Conant coach John Ayres said some of those "mistakes" were brought about by the hitting of his Cougars. Although winless in five games and having been outscored 155 to 20 coming into the Mid-Suburban League South Division game, the Cougars wouldn't quit, even after losing their starting quarterback, Scott Schafer, for the second half.

Ayres praised almost everybody on defense, adding that his "secondary was outstanding."

Conant's defensive backs helped hold MSE leading passer Jackson to just two of seven passes for 26 yards.

"They mixed up their coverage a great deal," said Gourley. "They were confusing our people."

Gourley also praised his defense: "Everybody was just swarming. It was a real team effort."

It was also a real crosstown rivalry ... and the first of many.

Schaumburg rolls, 42-14, in trip outside conference

by DOUG PALM

"If this is the wishbone, then where are your boots?"

Those who claim that Texas and Oklahoma have cornered the market on the wishbone offense had better consider the Schaumburg Saxons. Saturday's 42-14 non-conference romp over Elmwood Park is a case in point.

Except for the lack of ten-gallon hats and the cries of "Hook'em Horns," one might have thought, eyes open or not, that Tiger Stadium in Elmwood Park was actually the Cotton Bowl in Dallas during the Texas-Oklahoma weekend.

This was still Illinois, but the awesome offensive performance by the undefeated Saxons was not diminished by the geography.

In the process of recording its sixth victory of the season, Schaumburg amassed an even 500 yards in total offense. Of that total, 372 yards were rolled up on the ground with quarterback Russ Zonca and halfback Scott Mielke leading the never-ceasing, pressure offense.

Zonca topped the Saxon charts with 108 yards in nine carries, while playing only the first half. Mielke, after an inauspicious start, finished with 105 yards, the result of 17 rushes.

Schaumburg wasted little time in getting itself untracked, scoring on its initial possession following an Elmwood Park punt.

With Zonca and Steve Knudsen demonstrating the wishbone's versatility, the Saxons drove 84 yards in 13 plays in a most impressive manner. Faced with a third and 12 at the Elmwood Park 10-yard-line, Zonca completed a deftly-executed screen pass in the right flank to Mark Godinez, who bulled his way to the three. The ensuing play showed the difficulty in defending the wishbone. Zonca worked the quarterback option, as it is diagrammed on the blackboard and the Saxons were seemingly off and running. Bob Cavazos converted the first of his six extra point placements for a 7-0 margin.

Elmwood Park showed little regard for Schaumburg's lofty ratings and marched 79 yards to score with only four seconds remaining in the first quarter.

Spurred on by their leading rusher,

Tom Wojtas, the Tigers attacked the Saxon flanks for several long gains before fullback Steve Anderson burst over left tackle from three yards out for the touchdown.

Wojtas, who had ripped off runs of 39 and 23 in the drive, then took a pitchout around right end for the two-point conversion, which gave the hosts a rather surprising 6-7 lead.

Instead of taking the initiative away from the Saxons, the Elmwood Park touchdown and conversion seemed to spur them to greater heights. Mielke returned the kickoff 40 yards to his 47. Three plays later, Zonca went all over the field during a 51-yard touchdown scamper off of the option keeper.

The Saxon defense, not to be overlooked by their counterparts on offense, quickly shut off the hosts' next possession and the Schaumburg wishbone was off and running again.

An eight-play, 58-yard drive resulted in the third Saxon tally, which was again registered by Zonca. This time the 5-11, 190 pound senior swept to his right, only to cut in, behind his pursuit, for an 18-yard jaunt.

Up 21-8, the Saxons added another score before the half on a three yard blast off left tackle by Mielke.

The second half found Zonca resting on the sidelines to avoid the risk of injury for the return to Mid Suburban South warfare Saturday against Prospect.

His spot, normally filled by Steve Conrad, was taken over by sophomore Dave Fink, who turned in a commendable tour of duty in directing the wishbone in the second half. He guided Schaumburg to a total of 242 yards, only 16 less than recorded in the first half. His nine yard run on the option keeper in the final quarter closed out scoring parade for this latest Saxon blitz.

Defensively, Schaumburg was led by linebackers Scott Scholtz (16 total tackles) and Gary Bolger (12). Steve Skipworth (nine) and Bob Connell (four total tackles and several key break-ups of passes) also played key roles.

Arlington sweeps to league net honors

Arlington's girls tennis team won four individual titles to sweep to the team championship in the Mid-Suburban Conference tennis meet Saturday.

The Cardinals of head coach Mary Lou Hundt totaled 115 points throughout the season to place over Fremd (84 points), Prospect (70 points) and Hersey and Palatine who tied for fourth with 70 points.

Buffalo Grove's Lisa Smart gave notice that she will be a power in tennis for the next several years as the freshman Blson knocked off Arlington's Leslie Grabitz 5-7, 6-1, 6-1 to win the No. 1 singles championship.

At No. 2 singles Arlington picked up the first of their quartet of individual crowns as Joann Skovaneck bested Prospect's Lorel Allsells 6-3, 1-6, 6-1.

The No. 3 singles final matched Palatine's Cheryl Hetman with Wheeling's Sandy Phillip. Hetman had the strong hand on Saturday and turned back Phillip 6-1, 7-5 for her championship.

Three of the four doubles titles were captured by Arlington.

At No. 1 doubles Flynn and Coleman topped Gelsler and Warder of Fremd 6-1, 6-1.

Palatine's duo of Runte and Charlier swept to the No. 2 doubles crown as they whipped Hersey's Wendley and Votta 6-4, 6-4.

Arlington's Anders and Richey were the class of the No. 3 doubles field, beating Prospect's Wineinger and DiPrima 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.

At No. 4 doubles, Ohlstrom and Broderick of Arlington completed the Cardinals' championship afternoon with a 6-2, 6-1 decision of Prospect's Sandstrom and Mache.

The rest of the teams in the conference finished as follows: 6th — Hoffman Estates (58); 7th — Wheeling (55); 8th — Buffalo Grove (47); 9th — Elk Grove, Forest View and Rolling Meadows (40); 12th — Schaumburg (21); 13th — Conant (8).

this year and they finally pulled it off against Thornton, giving Mueller and the offense the ball on the Bulldog seven-yard-line.

Butch Allen, who led the Hawks to 197 rushing yards with 76 in seven carries, blasted for five and then Mueller got the scoring started with a two-yard plunge.

Dave Patterson, the Hawks leading scorer, booted the first of four extra points to make it seven-10.

Mueller, who passed for 108 yards in the first half, dumped a 12-and seven-yarder to DuWayne Mill on the Hawks' next possession then laid a 24-yard touchdown loaf to Kristick as the half ended.

Then it was Allen's turn. Dancing around the left corner the freshman from Carmel used a pair of blocks to spring for a 47-yard touchdown run. Jim Stump, who rushed for 83 yards in 12 carries, then cut off the right side for 34 yards and three plays later rushed from the three for a 28-0 Harper lead.

The subs came out then, and Herd towards the end of the game. Mill, who gobbled up six passes for 57 yards, caught a nine-yarder going out of bounds and set up Patterson's field goal attempt.

The sophomore from Maine South, who has settled back into the groove as the Hawks' nitro-legged kicker, exploded for five punts that all carried at least 44 yards. He also was slightly short on a 53-yard three-pointer earlier.

"I hit it a little low," Patterson explained from the sidelines, "and didn't quite get all of it."

He got everything and then some to complete the Harper scoring from the 33-yard line to end the game and set up a showdown with the DuPage Chaparrals next Saturday.

Three individuals join them...

Three area golf teams advance

by KETH REINHARD
Golf Editor

Three and three.
Those were the number of local qualifiers coming out of district golf outings at a trio of sites.
Three teams — Prospect, Buffalo Grove and Forest View — and three individuals from the area will now advance to sectional action this weekend on the road to the state finals in Champaign Oct. 24-25.

The Knights and Bison annexed runner-up finishes at Lake Forest and Grayslake districts respectively while the Falcons were fashioning a third-place windup at a Forest View-hosted gathering.

At Grayslake, St. Viator's Chuck Lynch, Hersey's Ed Stubbs and Chalkine's Nick Zambale qualified on an individual basis for sectional competition to be hosted by New Trier West this Friday.

High winds and hard ground detracted from the temperate weather and sent scores soaring in most cases. Only five golfers cracked the 80 barrier at the Lake Bluff layout hosting the Lake Forest District and just seven came in under 80 at Forest View's Mount Prospect Country Club course.

At Grayslake, played on the Brae Loch layout, favored Barrington copped team honors and defending state medalist Bronco Gary Hallberg fired a 69 to earn the individual title. Lynch came in at 70 for second place and Stubbs and Zambale tied for third at 71.

The top three individuals not belonging to one of the three qualifying teams earn sectional berths according to IHSA rules.

The Falcon district was won by East Leyden at 318 while Proviso West fashioned a 320 for second place and Tim Schaap's hosting unit notched a 322 for third. Joe Carcerano paced the View cause with a 79, Tom

Nick Zambale

Martindale and Tom Starkey chipped in 80s and Jim Moran added an 83. Forest View will advance to sectional action at Glenbard East this Friday.

Lake Forest was won by Waukegan East at 322, paced by Dave Ogryn's 76. Prospect came in at 323. Buffalo Grove was edged out by Barrington 194-300.

Forest View girls earn spot in state golf meet

Paced by the shooting of Donna DeGrande, Forest View captured team honors at the Sycamore District Golf Tournament to qualify for the girls state finals in Bloomington this weekend.

DeGrande fired a 69, third best individual effort of the meet over the par 74 Sycamore community layout and the Falcons finished with a 419 aggregate. They were the only squad of six original entries to field a complete team.

Rounding out scoring for Forest View were Bonnie Rogosch at 100, Marita Rhea at 202, Judy Fleckhardt at 119 and Barb Baylis at 121.

Dorothy Lasker of Hinsdale Central carded an 81 to capture medalist honors and Mary Jo Wildenrad of Sycamore finished second at 95.

Arlington entered three girls in the tourney and Terri Groves headed up scoring with a 125. Kathy Ostler had a 131 for the Cardinals and Marleen Barrier notched a 133. The 36-hole state finals will be conducted at the Illinois State University course Oct. 17-18.

Agreement reached on Centel pact

by STEVE BROWN

A tentative contract agreement between members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 338 and the Central Telephone Co. was reached Sunday, ending a 14-week-old strike by the workers.

The tentative agreement was reached after lengthy weekend bargaining sessions. Details of the tentative pact were not revealed.

Both company and union spokesmen said the terms of the contract will be presented to the membership of the union Wednesday. The ratification vote will be taken at the Des Plaines American Legion Hall.

W. T. GEARY, Centel's division manager, said he was pleased the two sides had reached an agreement and added he hopes workers will return to their jobs.

Although talks had been stalled during much of the strike, both sides met in lengthy sessions during the past four days. Martin Brown, a spokesman for the company, said negotiators met late into the night Saturday and had a brief session on Sunday to wrap up final details of the pact.

Workers walked off the job July 1 after negotiators failed to reach agreement on a new contract. Talks had stalled when the two sides failed to reach agreement on several company proposed changes in work rules. The company had insisted the union agree to a mandatory overtime provision, but the union had rejected the proposal. A number of employees had been laid off just before the strike and the union had questioned the reason for mandatory overtime at a time when the company was laying off people.

AN INCREASED amount of vandalism to company equipment also developed during the strike. Phone service to some of the 70,000 customers served by the company in Des Plaines, Park Ridge and a portion of Mount Prospect has been interrupted by cable cuts. The company also reported that tires on a number of their vehicles had been slashed.

Another union representative for one IBEW local, was charged with vandalism. Another worker was held in contempt of court by a Circuit Court judge after the judge found the man guilty of violating his restraining order.

The two sides had been scheduled to appear last week at a public hearing ordered by the Illinois Dept. of Labor to discuss the issues of the strike. However, the state agreed to postpone the sessions after the two sides asked for a delay so that contract talks could continue.

ANCHORS AWEIGH. Naval officers from the recruiting office in Des Plaines visited Frost School in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to kick off the school's Bicentennial activities. The officers presented the Naval colors and raised the Bicentennial flag.

Girl, 14, raped at knifepoint

A 14-year-old Des Plaines girl was raped late Friday by a man who threatened her at knifepoint and forced her into some bushes near 1814 Dexter Ln., police said.

The girl was reportedly walking in the area shortly before midnight when she was assaulted. She then went to a nearby residence for help, police said.

The man was described as about 17 to 18 years old, 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet tall, medium build with long frizzy hair and a dark complexion. He wore a plaid shirt and blue jeans, police said.

Local girl runner-up in yule seal contest

A Maine West High School junior was a runner-up Friday in the Chicago Lung Association's Christmas Seal Contest.

Sue Shakespeare, 16, of 1365 Jeanette Ave., was a runner-up in the competition which attracted 107 entrants.

Ms. Shakespeare will appear with other winners in the annual Chicago Christmas parade.

She is a model for Wieboldt's, a cheerleader and honor student at the high school.

Help plan O'Hare development

Group gains in anti-noise battle

The battle to quiet airplane noise is apparently going to open up on two new fronts in the near future.

Des Plaines Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, an officer with the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment (NOISE) said a federal judge has allowed the group to name Chicago as a defendant in a lawsuit seeking more stringent regulations regarding aircraft noise.

Abrams also said that new rulings by a federal agency will allow local communities and pro-noise abatement groups to have a hand in the preparation of a master plan for any future development of O'Hare Airport.

U.S. DIST. Court Judge Frank McGarr accepted a request to bring Chicago into a lawsuit filed last year by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott against the Federal Aviation Administration and the Civil Aeronautics Board seeking greater noise abatement procedures for the airport.

The suit also asks that a night curfew be imposed at O'Hare and that flights be shifted from O'Hare to Midway Airport in an effort to reduce airplane noise.

Several officials have noted that the suit puts Chicago into an interesting legal position. Mayor Richard J. Daley has often called on the federal government to shift more flights from O'Hare to Midway. Since the lawsuit includes that aspect also it is questionable how strong a defense Chicago might put on in the case.

Abrams also noted that NOISE and suburban communities around O'Hare will be entitled to participate in the master plan development for the airport.

ABRAMS SAID the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission ordered the action last year, but Chicago's Dept. of Aviation is just beginning the plan. The study is being funded with a $1.5 million federal grant.

"They will not be able to develop plans for 14 new runways without anyone knowing about it now," Abrams said in explaining the value of local community involvement in the airport planning.

Abrams added that both the trial on Scott's suit and the planning for the airport should begin in the near future.

Dry storage turns down financing

The first Des Plaines businessman to get involved with the city's industrial revenue bond program has decided to pull out.

James McIlrath, president of the Dry Storage Corp., 1800 S. Wolf Rd., said details of the program became too complicated.

McIlrath had received city council approval to obtain $3 million in financing for an addition to his Des Plaines warehouse. The program involved the use of tax-exempt bonds. The bonds would have been paid off through revenue from the company, but would have been issued by the city.

McILRATH SAID the lending companies he was negotiating with for the project said they wanted the property divided. The project involves the construction of additional warehouse facilities that will cost about $3 million, but McIlrath only wanted to finance one portion of the project with industrial revenue bonds. He said the separate financing plan would have required going before the zoning board of appeals to obtain variations for side yards and rear yard requirements, and he just decided the process was becoming too complicated.

However McIlrath explained the program is worthwhile for businessmen with less complicated projects.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said he would have no comment on the pull-out. Behrel also noted that the city may have to consider the possibility of having a fee for companies that seek city approval for financing under the industrial revenue bond program.

The mayor noted that if businesses go ahead with the financing program, the ordinances set out certain legal and financial fees that must be paid by the business.

"We do not have any fees if a business decides not to go through with the program," Behrel said.

THE MAYOR said he did not know how much the research for the project by the city attorney and the city bond consultant would be.

"We are not sure that we will get a bill from the bond consultant," Behrel noted.

The financing for the Dry Storage Project was the first to be considered by the city council. The council has also agreed to sell similar bonds to finance the construction of additions at the Northwest Suburban YMCA and Holy Family Hospital.

'Unknown' seeks GOP bid for 10th Dist. congress

by STEVE BROWN

A self-proclaimed "political unknown" announced Sunday that he will enter the battle for the Republican nomination for the 10th District Congressional seat.

Daniel B. Hales, 34, of 110 Appletree Rd., Winnetka, said he feels the district needs a fresh face to run against U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th.

An attorney, Hales echoed a theme used by many Republicans in the area by stating that Mikva does not represent the views of the district. He cited the liberal Democrats opposition to many defense spending programs and his votes for many social programs as key issues in the campaign.

HALES SAID he expects three or four candidates in the GOP primary for the congressional seat. Former congressman Samuel H. Young of Glenview already has announced he will run for the nomination. Several other persons, including Joe Matthews, son, an aide to Illinois Atty. General William Scott, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston, have been mentioned as likely candidates.

Hales said he sees the primary as a run against Mikva rather than a struggle within the Republican party.

When pressed by newsmen, Hales said that Young did not do a good job in articulating the issues in the 1974 campaign.

"I feel that I have a better chance to do this than Young," he said.

Hales said he has been active in the New Trier Republican Organization.

Hales said he would actively seek the endorsement of all five township organizations in the district. Northfield Township Republican Committeeman William Bringham has already indicated his support for Young.

RICHARD SIEBEL, the deputy committeeman in Northfield Township, will be Hales' campaign manager. The move suggests a possible division of GOP regulars in the township.

Hales cited the economy as a major issue of the upcoming election. He suggested that a tax cut coupled with a reduction in spending might help to ease the situation, however he said he was not able at this time to recommend possible areas where government spending could be trimmed.

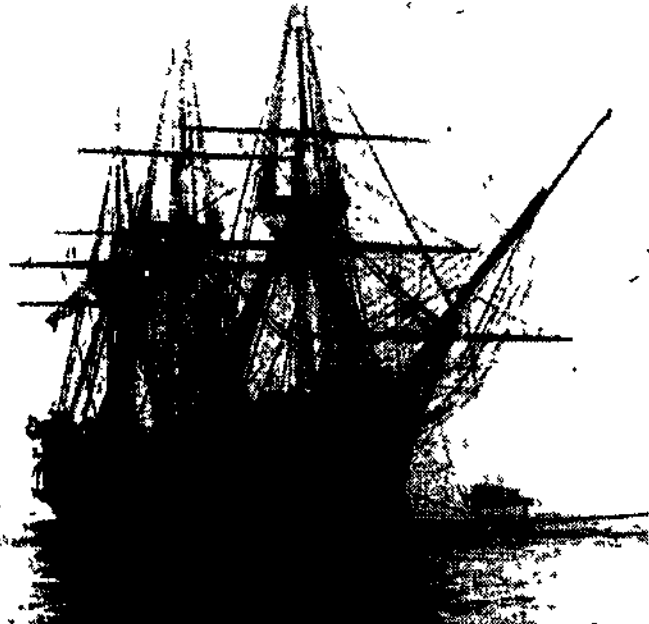

Hales also predicted that crime and gun control will be major issues, but said he was not prepared to take a stand on possible legislation at this time.

Hales is married with three children. He has been active with Project Leap, an anti-vote fraud group. In 1974, he served as finance chairman for Lola Flamm's unsuccessful campaign for county clerk.

He is a partner in the law firm of Peterson, Ross, Rall, Barber and Sidel of Chicago.

150 treated at center each month

Suburban alcoholics find help for their illness

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Roger Boekenhauer and his staff have been working for one year to bring alcoholism out of its dark, quiet corner in suburbia by offering counseling and treatment to those who want it.

Clientele has tripled since Boekenhauer first opened the Alcoholism-Drug Dependence Program outpatient center in Rolling Meadows in October 1974.

The increase indicates that "alcoholism does exist in the suburbs, and that there is need for a place where people can talk about the problem and get help," he said.

ABOUT 150 residents of Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling townships receive counseling each month at the center, 5005 Newport Dr., Suite 210.

The center is open Mondays through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Most of the clients are middle-aged men who have steady jobs and families. But, they come in as young as 18 and as old as 70. Some of them are in the late stages of alcoholism and require medical attention; others find themselves compelled to drink on the weekends or at parties, Boekenhauer said.

The person who is compelled to drink more than he wants to, when he doesn't really want to, has an alcoholism problem and needs help, he said.

"PEOPLE ARE reluctant to come in here because they feel there is a lot of stigma attached to alcoholism. They see it not as an illness, but as a weakness or a moral problem. Yet, they don't realize how many people it really touches," Boekenhauer said.

He's estimated that about 72 percent of the people in the four-township area drink alcohol, and that about 1 out of every 12 has or will develop an alcoholism problem.

"Some people will argue with figures, they can be frightening," he said, but so are some of the cases.

ONE COUPLE, married for 20 years, has a poor relationship. The husband often comes home late from work drunk, beats up on the children and yells at his wife. The local police have responded to civil disturbance calls at their house and have picked up the children, who are doing poorly in school, for truancy.

IN ANOTHER case, a housewife who is "bored" with her daily chores finds herself drinking a few too many before her husband gets home from work, at which time she's irritable and depressed.

"It's always the family members, who are being hurt by the alcoholics problems of their loved ones, who come into us first looking for help," he said.

Individual counseling, group sessions, membership in national organizations like Alcoholics Anonymous or hospitalization for a four-week crash course on "getting along without alcohol" are some of the treatments employed when a client comes to ADD on his own, he said.

Most of the 429 clients the center has served during the past year have been successful at improving their situations, he said.

THEY PAY on a sliding-scale basis for weekly individual counseling and other treatment, depending on the client's financial situation.

A prevailing concern for Boekenhauer now, however, is how to continue funding the center if the federal revenue-sharing program for townships and other municipalities is discontinued after next year.

The center's $80,000 yearly budget is mainly supported by revenue-sharing allocations from the four townships. Alternatives to this funding would be seeking tax revenue allocations from the townships or going to the community funds for help, he said.

Boekenhauer said he would be "reluctant to fully charge clients for treatment" because ADD is a social service agency, operated by the Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois, that provides help despite a person's income.

ASIDE FROM funding, there is little question about the future of the center.

Present clients, local police departments and schools continue to refer persons with an alcohol dependence to the center.

"We also make at least a dozen presentations to civic groups each month to tell them about our program and talk to them about alcoholism," Boekenhauer said.

"It's something that people are learning to talk about and because of it, they are learning to help themselves," he said.

Maine East Thespians stages weekend comedy

"You Can't Take It With You" will be presented by the Maine East High School Thespians Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the School auditorium, 2601 W. Dempster St., Park Ridge.

The comedy has turned the Sycamore family into a comedy of the business world to enjoy life. The plot centers on the love affair of Alice Sycamore, played by Debbie Neff, and Tony Kirby, played by Tom Hansen. Tony's parents object to the affair because of the Sycamores' peculiar habits.

Paul Sycamore, the head of the household, played by Jeff Klonas, makes firecrackers while his wife Penelope, played by Barbara Ross, keeps busy writing plays. Their 30-year-old daughter Essie, played by Sheri Zager, is studying ballet, while her husband Ed, played by Marc Smith, plays the xylophone and operates a printing press.

Tickets for the production are $1.50 and can be purchased at the school in advance or at the door.

Negotiators reach accord in Dist. 23

Board and teacher negotiators in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 have reached a tentative agreement in a teachers' contract for the 1975-76 school year.

Kenneth Bates, chief negotiator for teachers, said Saturday a "tentative agreement" was reached by the teams after a 4½-hour negotiating session Saturday morning.

"Both negotiating teams agreed, but both teams feel it (the contract) will be a tough thing to sell to our respective groups," Bates said. Bates refused to give details of the contract but said it was "very different dollar-wise than what the teachers had expressed they wanted earlier."

Teachers unanimously turned down a board offer of an $83,000 increase for across-the-board and merit salary raises Sept. 27. Teachers then indicated they would stand firm on their request for a $106,500 increase which would maintain the present merit raise levels and provide a 7 per cent across-the-board raise for teachers.

Alan Krinsky, chairman of the board team, said "Things are not really settled yet. We have to go back to our respective groups and let them see it (the contract). There's still work to be done."

Krinsky, who also refused to release details of the contract, said the board would discuss the terms of the proposal in a special closed meeting Oct. 21.

BATES SAID teachers will learn of the details at a meeting Wednesday. Negotiating teams are expected to return to the table with their groups' decisions Oct. 22.

"I think we're going to have an easier time selling it to our people than they will," said Bates. "It was tough sledding on both sides" to reach an agreement.

Bates did disclose one area the negotiators settled on. A mini-grant program, which will cost the district $1,000 a year, was approved by both teams. Bates said teachers will be able to submit a proposal for a program to the superintendent's advisory committee for consideration. The committee will be able to approve a grant of up to $100 per program.

"The purpose of the mini-grant program is for teachers to be able to try out things in the classrooms," Bates said. The grant program will take effect in the 1976-77 school year if the contract is approved.

BATES SAID he was "very relieved" that negotiations went so well Saturday. "There was a lot of give and take — a lot of talking," he said.

The teams have been meeting since February. Negotiators previously agreed to a number of contract items including district reimbursement for professional fees, increased extra-duty and summer school pay, sick leave accumulation and professional travel allocation. Also agreed to is a new base salary of $8,950.

Possum power poses a problem

by JOE SWICKARD

Let Mrs. Henry Schroeder tell you, there is nothing worse than having possums in your zucchini unless it is when they are spitting out cucumber seeds.

Mrs. Schroeder, 402 S. Emerson, Mount Prospect, should know. For the past year, her garden has been a backyard buffet for just about every hungry possum that ambles by.

Center treats 150 each month

Suburban alcoholics find help

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Roger Boekenhauer and his staff have been working for one year to bring alcoholism out of its dark, quiet corner in suburbia by offering counseling and treatment to those who want it.

Clientele has tripled since Boekenhauer first opened the Alcoholism-Drug Dependence Program outpatient center in Rolling Meadows in October 1974.

The increase indicates that "alcoholism does exist in the suburbs, and that there is need for a place where people can talk about the problem and get help," he said.

ABOUT 150 residents of Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling townships receive counseling each month at the center, 5005 Newport Dr., Suite 210.

The center is open Mondays through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Most of the clients are middle-aged men who have steady jobs and families. But, they come in as young as 16 and as old as 70. Some of them are in the late stages of alcoholism and require medical attention; others find themselves compelled to drink on the weekends or at parties, Boekenhauer said.

The person who is compelled to drink more than he wants to, when he doesn't really want to, has an alcoholism problem and needs help, he said.

Present clients, local police departments and schools continue to refer persons with an alcohol dependence to the center.

"We also make at least a dozen presentations to civic groups each month to tell them about our program and talk to them about alcoholism," Boekenhauer said.

"It's something that people are learning to talk about and because of it, they are learning to help themselves," he said.

Scavenger license hike on tonight's agenda

An increase in the number of licenses for village scavenger operators is expected to be discussed tonight by the Wheeling Village Board.

Trustee Otis Hedlund, chairman of the judiciary and purchasing committee, said the board has three alternatives to consider in the matter, including increasing the number of licenses, reducing the number or creating special categories for limited operation. The village currently issues only four scavenger licenses.

The board also is scheduled to act on a resolution approving an agreement between the village and Preter-ence Homes, Inc., developer of the Highland Glen subdivision.

Although details of the agreement are not known, Village Atty. John Burke said the arrangement calls for George Harhen, the developer, to complete installation of three streets in the subdivision.

Homeowners in the subdivision filed suit against Harhen last year to force him to complete work on Berkshire Drive, Mockingbird Lane and Holly Court.

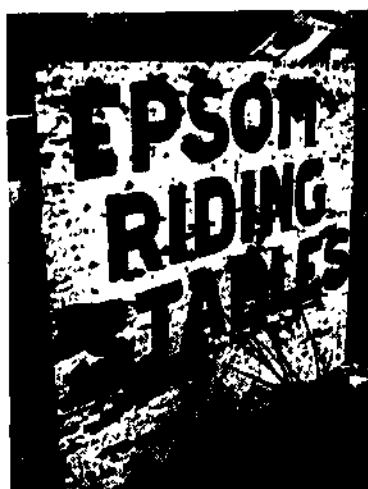

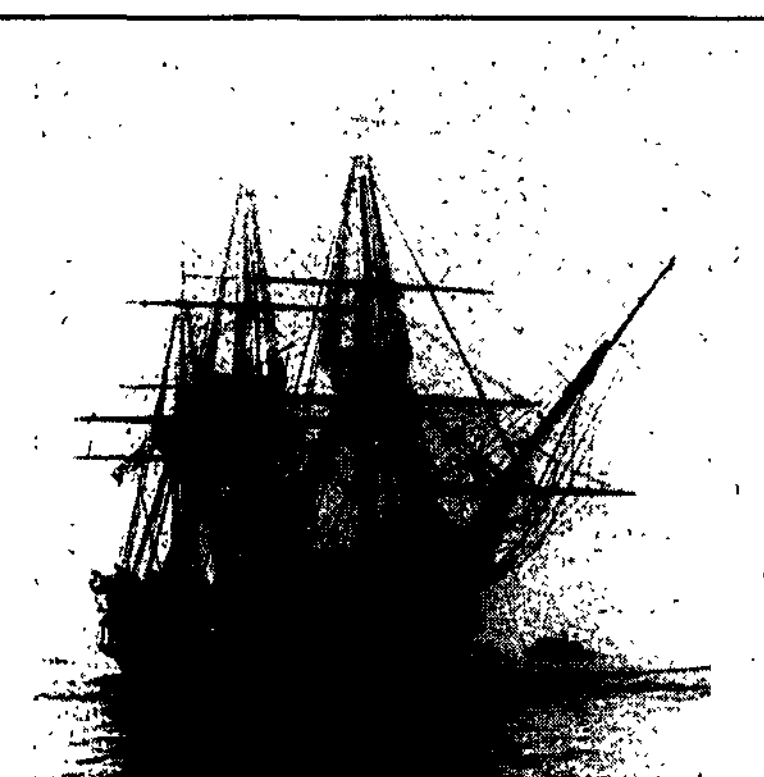

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

THE CON Bao Nguyen family, refugees of the Communist takeover in South Vietnam, have come to Arlington Heights to start a new life.

Saigon had been peaceful for two months, but then the word came. Twenty-four-year-old Thuy couldn't stop crying. She was leaving behind her family, her world.

In the scant two hours on April 28 before she, her husband, Con Bao Nguyen, son and nephew left for the airport, all they could gather were two handbags filled with clothing and precious wedding photographs.

There was no time or room for their furnishings as they prepared to travel to a country they had heard of, but never seen. The reason was simple — survival. Con and Thuy feared their military-linked jobs would make them targets of reprisal from the invading North Vietnamese.

It was the beginning of a journey that landed the four in Arlington Heights thanks to the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights.

"ARLINGTON Heights is a very nice place, and so are the people," Con said. His wife added, "We worried too much about not having friends, but the people from the church come visit here."

Con explained, "We wanted freedom. I think freedom is something precious to people like us."

In his new apartment, Con, 37, told of their evacuation to Wake Island, life at Ft. Chafee, Ark., their eventual sponsorship 2½ months ago by the church and their assimilation into the American mainstream.

The decision to leave their home country was a tough one, Con said. "My wife didn't want to leave her family in the province." But he added, "I felt it was very dangerous for my family. They might kill people, especially Thuy and me."

Thuy, who was from the Mekong Delta, worked for the U.S. military. Con, who has a degree in pharmacy, worked at a military hospital and at the ministry of health. His family had always been leery of Communists. They left Hanoi in 1954 when the French left Indochina.

Family finds new life in suburbs

by Stirling Moritz

THE WORD CAME from the American embassy to leave "as soon as possible," and Con and Thuy did not have time to say goodbye to friends.

They slept overnight at the airport and were flown to an aircraft carrier, which transported them to Wake Island. They were there for about a week completing paperwork.

The four were then taken to a camp at Ft. Chafee and housed with 25,000 other refugees. People were friendly, Con recalled, but there was crowding and waiting for food in endless lines.

When someone left for another state, everyone went out for a picnic to celebrate, Thuy said. Then the word came that the church would sponsor them, but the red tape involved slowed the waiting more than the expected two weeks.

THE CONGREGATION has footed their bills. The four stayed with the Kenneth Silles, the Rev. Leon Haring and the Dick Talbours. Members of the church have provided transportation for the family for job interviews and trips to school.

Friend David Almblad said, "They had some rough times."

Mrs. Almblad lauded Arlington Heights Dist. 25 for working out a special program for the 14-year-old nephew, Hieu, at Miner Junior High School.

After about 50 job interviews, Con landed a job in the pharmacy at Osco Drugs. Thuy is working as a clerk-typist for the U.S. Reserve Center in Des Plaines.

ALMBLAD NOTED there was some "backfire" when Con applied for jobs. He was over-qualified for some of them, and the companies feared the government might find out a minority was working in a lower capacity, Almblad pointed out.

There are some adjustments. Thuy has never seen snow, and she had a difficult time understanding what boots were for, Mrs. Almblad said. Also Thuy has had a hard time finding shoes for her size 2½ feet.

But Con said he believes they'll be in Arlington Heights for a long time. There is worry about Thuy's family still in Vietnam, but the couple have not heard about their situation.

"There is hope that in five or six years we might be able to go back to visit," Con said.

Other churches help families

Two Vietnamese families sponsored by the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago have been placed in Palatine and Wheeling and are busy adapting to life in the suburbs.

The Bul Vanminh family, locally sponsored by St. Theresa's Catholic Church, Palatine, has been in the village about three weeks.

Both parents and a 20-year-old son are employed at St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly, Rev. James Kehoe said. The working son is learning English at Conant High School, Hoffman Estates, while the younger children are "picking up English as they go" while attending St. Teresa's School, Kehoe said.

The Pham family, is sponsored locally by St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling.

"This family came into the U.S. through Catholic Charities and already had jobs and an apartment lined up when they came to Wheeling," Rev. Donald Simpson said.

The younger children attend St. Joseph the Worker School while a teenage daughter attends Sacred Heart of Mary High School and is learning English two mornings each week at Harper Junior College.

Girl, 14, raped at knifepoint

A 14-year-old Des Plaines girl was raped late Friday by a man who threatened her at knifepoint and forced her into some bushes near 1814 Dexter Ln., police said.

The girl was reportedly walking in the area shortly before midnight when she was assaulted. She then went to a nearby residence for help, police said.

The man was described as about 17 to 18 years old, 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet tall, medium build with long frizzy hair and a dark complexion. He wore a plaid shirt and blue jeans, police said.

en to trampling her flowers on their way to the free feed.

They step all over everything. They've just crippled the zinnias," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder, who's lived there for 25 years, at first suspected dogs or cats were damaging her plants and vegetables. The droppings and paw prints in the lawn each morning lent support to such theory.

Upset by the nocturnal attacks on the garden and garbage cans, the Schroeders invested $15 in a live trap to see what was causing the ruckus. One morning, they found they had snared one very large possum.

On the advice of a naturalist, the possum was turned loose in a forest preserve so he could be with his own kind and raid an occasional litter basket.

THE SCHROEDER'S troubles were far from over, however. Soon the little visitors were back again, and the live trap was again put to use.

The possums have come in all sizes and both sexes, ruling out repeat performances by the original possum.

Now Mrs. Schroeder wonders if her garden is being passed along as a bit of possum family tradition.

"How many babies do they have? I'll bet they have 10 or 12," she said.

IF THE POSSUMS are passing the word to their friends about her garden, she's wishing somebody would tell them to knock it off already.

"We've taken them up to the Fox River and all the forest preserves. We've even given them to friends who are going some place," she said.

Not surprisingly, Mrs. Schroeder has become somewhat of an expert of the possum palate.

"Some policemen told me to use old chicken bones in the trap. But I found out what they like best. They love liver sausage on rye bread. I can tie that to the trap so they can't steal it without setting it off," she said.

SOME POSSUMS, though, turn up their snouts at liver sausage and go right for the vegetables.

"They just hollow out the acorn squash and we know they like cucumbers because they spit out the seeds all over," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder is just a little tired of catching possums, turning them loose somewhere only to have their cousin, or whoever, show up for a snack the next night.

Perhaps there is a possum repellent on the market that will keep the critters at bay. It's either that or Mrs. Schroeder is going to have to call out a possum posse and make those varmints vamoose once and for all.

Centel contract accord reached

by STEVE BROWN

A tentative contract agreement between members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 336 and the Central Telephone Co. was reached Sunday, ending a 14-week-old strike by the workers.

The tentative agreement was reached after lengthy weekend bargaining sessions. Details of the tentative pact were not revealed.

Both company and union spokesmen said the terms of the contract will be presented to the membership of the union Wednesday. The ratification vote will be taken at the Des Plaines American Legion Hall.

W. T. GEARY, Centel's division manager, said he was pleased the two sides had reached an agreement and added he hopes workers will return to their jobs.

Although talks had been stalled during much of the strike, both sides met in lengthy sessions during the past four days. Martin Brown, a spokesman for the company, said negotiators met late into the night Saturday and had a brief session on Sunday to wrap up final details of the pact.

Workers walked off the job July 1 after negotiators failed to reach agreement on a new contract. Talks had stalled when the two sides failed to reach agreement on several company proposed changes in work rules. The company had insisted the union agree to a mandatory overtime provision, but the union had rejected the proposal. A number of employees had been laid off just before the strike and the union had questioned the reason for mandatory overtime at a time when the company was laying off people.

AN INCREASED amount of vandalism to company equipment also developed during the strike. Phone service to some of the 70,000 customers served by the company in Des Plaines, Park Ridge and a portion of Mount Prospect has been interrupted by cable cuts. The company also reported that tires on a number of their vehicles had been slashed.

One man, a union representative for another IBEW local, was charged with vandalism. Another worker was held in contempt of court by a Circuit Court judge after the judge found the man guilty of violating his restraining order.

The two sides had been scheduled to appear last week at a public hearing ordered by the Illinois Dept. of Labor to discuss the issues of the strike. However, the state agreed to postpone the sessions after the two sides asked for a delay so that contract talks could continue.

Officials develop a village heart

by GERRY KERN
A news analysis

Buffalo Grove has been characterized as a village without a heart. It's not that residents are unfriendly, but the village has mushroomed in population from 1,500 to more than 19,000 in the last 10 years without corresponding development of a community center.

It is a trend which is common to many "bedroom" communities. But village officials have taken a step toward creation of a heart—a downtown village center—and that is very uncommon.

The village is in the enviable position of seeing where other communities have failed in good growth planning, learning from those mistakes and making the right decisions here. Whether those right decisions are made is still unknown, but at least the option is there.

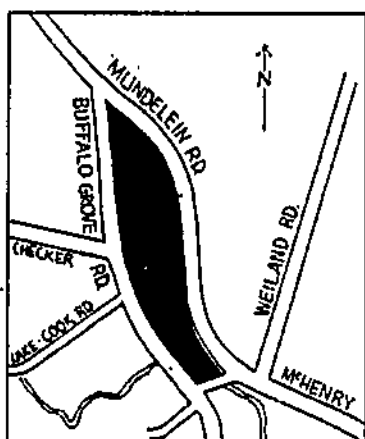

PLANS ARE currently being developed to carve that business district, called a village center, out of an 80-acre piece of land at the intersection of Mundelein and Buffalo Grove roads in Lake County.

The village initiated the village center study in 1974, after learning that projections put the population of Buffalo Grove at between 50,000 and 60,000 by 1985. The village decided that the $24,000 needed by three firms, Economic Research Associates, Toups and Olsen Inc., and Alan M. Voorhees and Associates, to conduct the study would be a good investment in the future stable growth of the village.

It is common, planning experts say, for support facilities, both private and public, to lag behind residential development in communities which experience explosive growth.

Experts doing the village center study said this is particularly true of Buffalo Grove, especially in the area of commercial development.

THE VILLAGE currently has only two full-service neighborhood commercial centers: Buffalo Grove Mall, Dundee and Arlington Heights roads; and Ranch Mart, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads. A third center, Plaza

THE 'HEART' of Buffalo Grove is likely to be the new village center planned at Mundelein and Buffalo Grove roads.

Verde Shopping Center, is partially completed.

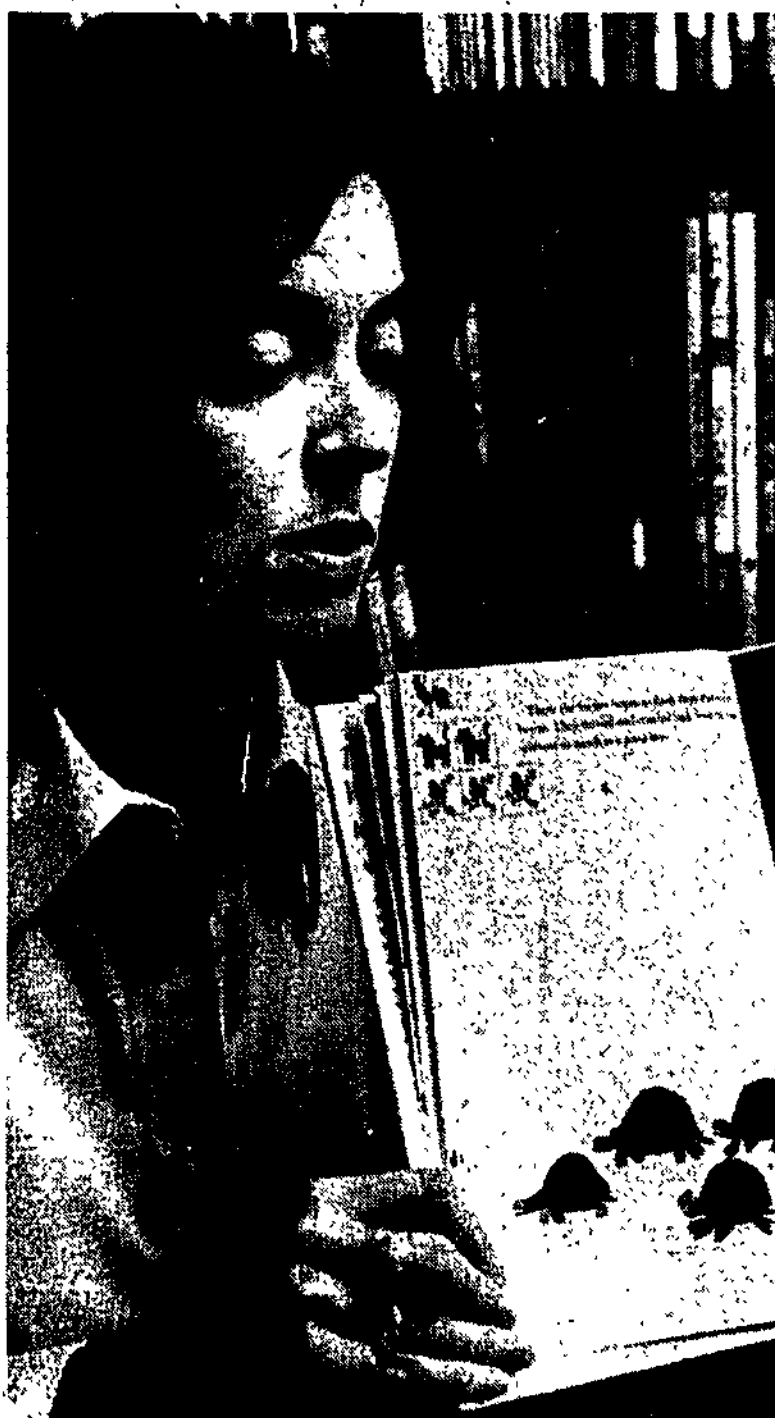

But their location at the southern edge of the village is actually more accessible to Arlington Heights residents than those who live in Buffalo Grove. For many shopping needs, experts say, village residents go to the regional shopping centers.

Failure to develop an adequate commercial base restricts the tax base and takes out revenue which otherwise might be put to use in the village.

Although commercial development is most important, officials and planners do not want to create just another regional shopping center.

Enough office and shop space will be set aside to support a population of 60,000 by 1985, but the development will also feature a variety of other services.

IN ACTUALITY, the village center could be a village in itself. Plans currently call for public-use space including a possible library, post office and village governmental center. Other public sector space has been tentatively set aside for the establishment (Continued on Page 5)

Proposed by Marienthal

Trustees to review ethics law

A proposed ethics ordinance calling for financial disclosures and conflict of interest disclaimers will be examined by Buffalo Grove Village Trustees tonight.

Ethics legislation was proposed by Trustee John Marienthal, who pushed for an ethics law in his election campaign this spring.

Marienthal will introduce the ordinance, much of which was modeled after Palatine's ethics ordinance.

The proposed ordinance will apply to both elected and appointed public officials, including consultants hired by the village.

The law will ask officials to disclose:

- Ownership of property other than principal residence, including the nature of ownership, location and real estate tax identification numbers of property.

- Any interest in any business enterprise which deals with the village.

- Any debts greater than $5,000 or 25 per cent of annual income to persons or businesses doing business with the village.

- Any gifts more than $25 in value either given or received to or from persons and businesses dealing with the village.

- Releases from debts exceeding a principal amount of $200 by persons or business dealing with the village.

If approved, the ordinance will require each official to sign a conflict of interest disclaimer. The provisions of the disclaimer stipulate:

- Officials may not own more than 5 per cent interest in any contract or performance of work valued at more than $500 that would be acted or voted on in village action.

- Officials may not receive income for approval or favorable recommendation by the village.

- Officials may not receive income from owners of property petitioning to the various departments of village government for zoning or use classification.

- Officials may not vary or amend zoning or use classification or receive money from owners of property.

- Officials do not own stock in any bank or financial institution doing business with the village.

Upon review of the proposed ordinance, some officials objected to ethics legislation.

"You cannot legislate ethics," Police Chief Harry J. Walsh wrote in a memo to Village Mgr. Daniel T. Larson. "To presume to think that you can make a person ethical by legislative act is as ridiculous and insulting as to tell an ethical man that he can or will be compromised by a cheap gift or benefit."

Trustee Thomas Mahoney agreed.

"I personally have serious reservations about the efficacy of this sort of thing," he wrote Marienthal. "I doubt that the best ordinance we could draft would furnish two cents worth of real protection to the citizenry against an official who was in fact motivated to act other than in the public interest."

Although the ordinance does not include disclosure of personal income, several officials said they would resign from their positions if they had to disclose incomes.

"I have no desire to make public my financial worth," said Dr. David A. Saldel, president of the board of health.

OTHERS SAID they were concerned that the disclaimer statement may be used to harass or intimidate public officials.

Village Pres. Edward A. Fabish asked that the ordinance free appointed officials from financial disclosure because the law would discourage citizens from serving on various commissions and committees.

Village Atty. Richard Raysa said an ethics ordinance with personal income disclosure would exceed the power given in state ordinance. The ordinance would be difficult to enforce he said.

The workshop session will be conducted after the board meeting which will begin at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Center offers help to suburban alcoholics

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Roger Boekenbauer and his staff have been working for one year to bring alcoholism out of its dark, quiet corner in suburbia by offering counseling and treatment to those who want it.

The center is open Mondays through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Most of the clients are middle-aged men who have steady jobs and families. But, they come in as young as 16 and as old as 70. Some of them are in the late stages of alcoholism and require medical attention; others find themselves compelled to drink on the weekends or at parties, Boekenbauer said.

The increase indicates that "alcoholism does exist in the suburbs, and that there is need for a place where people can talk about the problem and get help," he said.

ABOUT 150 residents of Palatine,

Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling townships receive counseling each month at the center, 5005 Newport Dr., Suite 210.

The center is open Mondays through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The person who is compelled to drink more than he wants to, when he doesn't really want to, has an alcoholism problem and needs help, he said.

"PEOPLE ARE reluctant to come in here because they feel there is a lot of stigma attached to alcoholism. They see it not as an illness, but as a weakness or a moral problem. Yet, they don't realize how many people it really touches," Boekenbauer said.

He's estimated that about 72 per cent of the people in the four-township area drink alcohol, and that about 1 out of every 12 has or will develop an alcoholism problem.

of a small museum and child day-care center.

The village center will consist of many buildings, not just one large structure as is the case with regional shopping centers. Both single- and multi-family housing areas on the outside of the development have been planned.

Bike paths, walkways and greenbelt areas also will be included in addition to other recreational facilities, possibly including an auditorium.

If the center is developed in the way planners and village officials hope, it will be not only a commercial, but a social focal point for Buffalo Grove — something it now lacks.

Possum power!

She's spittin' mad over a bevy of hungry possums who are spreading the word on her 'backyard buffet'

by JOE SWICKARD

Let Mrs. Henry Schroeder tell you, there is nothing worse than having possums in your zucchini unless it is when they are spitting out cucumber seeds.

Mrs. Schroeder, 402 S. Emerson, Mount Prospect, should know. For the past year, her garden has been a backyard buffet for just about every hungry possum that ambles by.

"We caught the first one last October. Now, the number's up to eight. They eat our acorn squash, the zucchini — and you should see what they do to the cucumbers," she said.

NOT ONLY ARE her vegetables getting eaten, but the beasts have taken to trampling her flowers on their way to the free feed.

"They just hollow out the acorn squash and we know they like cucumbers because they spit out the seeds all over," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder is just a little tired of catching possums, turning them loose somewhere only to have their cousin, or whoever, show up for a snack the next night.

Perhaps there is a possum repellent on the market that will keep the critters at bay. It's either that or Mrs. Schroeder is going to have to call out a possum posse and make those varmints vamoose once and for all.

said, but so are some of the cases.

ONE COUPLE, married for 20 years, has a poor relationship. The husband often comes home late from work drunk, beats up on the children and yells at his wife. The local police have responded to civil disturbance calls at their house and have picked up the children, who are doing poorly in school, for truancy.

IN ANOTHER case, a housewife who is "bored" with her daily chores finds herself drinking a few too many before her husband gets home from work, at which time she's irritable and depressed.

"It's always the family members, who are being hurt by the alcoholic problems of their loved ones, who come into us first looking for help," he said.

Individual counseling, group sessions, membership in national organizations like Alcoholics Anonymous or hospitalization for a four-week crash course on "getting along without alcohol" are some of the treatments employed when a client comes to ADD on his own, he said.

Most of the 429 clients the center has served during the past year have been successful at improving their situations, he said.

THEY PAY on a sliding-scale basis for weekly individual counseling and other treatment, depending on the client's financial situation.

A prevailing concern for Boekenhauer now, however, is how to continue funding the center if the federal revenue-sharing program for townships and other municipalities is discontinued after next year.

The center's $80,000 yearly budget is mainly supported by revenue-sharing allocations from the four townships. Alternatives to this funding would be seeking tax revenue allocations from the townships or going to the community funds for help, he said.

Boekenhauer said he would be "reluctant to fully charge clients for treatment" because ADD is a social service agency, operated by the Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois, that provides help despite a persons' income.

ASIDE FROM funding, there is little question about the future of the center.

Present clients, local police departments and schools continue to refer persons with an alcohol dependence to the center.

"We also make at least a dozen presentations to civic groups each month to tell them about our program and talk to them about alcoholism," Boekenhauer said.

"It's something that people are learning to talk about and because of it, they are learning to help themselves," he said.

Agreement reached on Centel work pact

by STEVE BROWN

A tentative contract agreement between members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 336 and the Central Telephone Co. was reached Sunday, ending a 14-week-old strike by the workers.

The tentative agreement was reached after lengthy weekend bargaining sessions. Details of the tentative pact were not revealed.

Both company and union spokesmen said the terms of the contract will be presented to the membership of the union Wednesday. The ratification vote will be taken at the Des Plaines American Legion Hall.

W. T. GEARY, Centel's division manager, said he was pleased the two sides had reached an agreement and added he hopes workers will return to their jobs.

Although talks had been stalled during much of the strike, both sides met in lengthy sessions during the past four days. Martin Brown, a spokesman for the company, said negotiators met late into the night Saturday and had a brief session on Sunday to wrap up final details of the pact.

Workers walked off the job July 1 after negotiators failed to reach agreement on a new contract. Talks had stalled when the two sides failed to reach agreement on several company proposed changes in work rules. The company had insisted the union agree to a mandatory overtime provision, but the union had rejected the proposal. A number of employees had been laid off just before the strike and the union had questioned the reason for mandatory overtime at a time when the company was laying off people.

AN INCREASED amount of vandalism to company equipment also developed during the strike. Phone service to some of the 70,000 customers served by the company in Des Plaines, Park Ridge and a portion of Mount Prospect has been interrupted by cable cuts. The company also reported that tires on a number of their vehicles had been slashed.

One man, a union representative for another IBEW local, was charged with vandalism. Another worker was held in contempt of court by a Circuit Court judge after the judge found the man guilty of violating his restraining order.

The two sides had been scheduled to appear last week at a public hearing ordered by the Illinois Dept. of Labor to discuss the issues of the strike. However, the state agreed to postpone the sessions after the two sides asked for a delay so that contract talks could continue.

Anti-noise group opens new fronts

The battle to quiet airplane noise is apparently going to open up on two new fronts in the near future.

Des Plaines Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, an officer with the National Organization to Inure a Sound-controlled Environment (NOISE) said a federal judge has allowed the group to name Chicago as a defendant in a lawsuit seeking more stringent regulations regarding aircraft noise.

Abrams also said that new rulings by a federal agency will allow local communities and pro-noise abatement groups to have a hand in the preparation of a master plan for any future development of O'Hare Airport.

U.S. DIST. Court Judge Frank McGarr accepted a request to bring Chicago into a lawsuit filed last year by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott against the Federal Aviation Administration and the Civil Aeronautics Board seeking greater noise abatement procedures for the airport.

The suit also asks that a night curfew be imposed at O'Hare and that flights be shifted from O'Hare to Midway Airport in an effort to reduce airplane noise.

Several officials have noted that the suit puts Chicago into an interesting legal position. Mayor Richard J. Daley has often called on the federal government to shift more flights from O'Hare to Midway. Since the lawsuit includes that aspect also it is questionable how strong a defense Chicago might put on in the case.

Abrams also noted that NOISE and suburban communities around O'Hare will be entitled to participate in the master plan development for the airport.

ABRAMS SAID the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission ordered the action last year, but Chicago's Dept. of Aviation is just beginning the plan. The study is being funded with a $1.5 million federal grant.

"They will not be able to develop plans for 14 new runways without anyone knowing about it now," Abrams said in explaining the value of local community involvement in the airport planning.

Abrams added that both the trial on Scott's suit and the planning for the airport should begin in the near future.

Elk Grove High homecoming starts Thursday

Homecoming at Elk Grove High School begins royally this year when the homecoming court is presented to the student body Thursday at 10 a.m.

Queen candidates are Pam Bona, Marti Latal, Judy Leaf, Kathy Schmidt and Debbie Wellman.

Sparks will fly Thursday at 7 p.m. when students stage a bonfire and pep rally and powder puff football game.

Friday's festivities begin with a 1:15 p.m. coronation followed by the homecoming parade at 2 p.m. The Elk Grove Grenadiers will take over the football field at 6 p.m. to compete with the Hoffman Estates Hawks in the annual homecoming game.

Saturday from 6 to 8 p.m. the alumni and senior reception is scheduled in the gymnasium. The homecoming dance is planned for 8 to 11 p.m. in the gym.

THERE'S NO BETTER time to "capture the beauty of fall and autumn colors than now and no better way to take in the view than a horseback ride through the forest preserves. Marie Duncan, left, and Dottie Hamel do just that.

Village asks one year extension

MSD delays sewer work ruling

Metropolitan Sanitary District officials have delayed a decision on an Elk Grove Village request that it be given an additional year to complete sanitary sewer system inspection and rehabilitation.

The latest meeting between officials of the village and the sanitary district Friday stalled over a "general discussion" of the sewer inspection requirements, said Robert Rurka, principal civil engineer of the MSC sewer rehabilitation unit.

"Not too much was resolved," Rurka said, adding the meeting was continued to Oct. 21.

RURKA SAID no decisions were made with regard to dates or any possible extensions of the December deadline. However, he said he expected "substantive" results from the next meeting.

Village officials have said their sewer system is too large and they lack sufficient funds to complete the inspections within the deadline. "Even if we were to go out and hire 10 to 15 more men we couldn't meet the deadline," said Village Eng. Donald L.

Ciaglia earlier this week.

The village, according to Ciaglia, already has completed inspection of the residential areas, which he estimated was about half of the village's approximately 130 miles of sewers. Remaining to be inspected, he said, are the sewers in the industrial areas.

THE SANITARY DISTRICT has required all communities and sanitary districts within its boundaries to inspect all sanitary sewers systems for infiltration of storm water and to correct any deficiencies. Also the communities and districts are to look for illegal connections from sump pumps and other devices that handle storm water.

Several communities, including Elk Grove Village, have been criticized by the sanitary district for not doing the rehabilitation work fast enough. Lawsuits have been threatened by the sanitary district in its efforts to gain compliance.

Elk Grove Village has yet to begin inspections for illegal connections, according to Ciaglia, who added that a door-to-door type search would be needed to discover such illegal connections.

Friday's meeting was at the sanitary district offices in Chicago. The Oct. 21 meeting will be held there also.

Village OKs Jeep purchase for $5,198

The Elk Grove Village Park Board has awarded a $5,198.96 contract to Roseille Jeep for a new four-wheel drive vehicle.

The contract involves a trade-in of an older jeep, owned by the village. Two other higher bids were received.

Delivery of the new Jeep is expected within seven to 10 weeks.

Center offers help to suburban alcoholics

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Roger Boekenbauer and his staff have been working for one year to bring alcoholism out of its dark, quiet corner in suburbia by offering counseling and treatment to those who want it.

Clientele has tripled since Boekenbauer first opened the Alcoholism-Drug Dependence Program outpatient center in Rolling Meadows in October 1974.

The increase indicates that "alcoholism does exist in the suburbs, and that there is need for a place where people can talk about the problem and get help," he said.

ABOUT 150 residents of Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling townships receive counseling each month at the center, 5005 Newport Dr., Suite 210.

The center is open Mondays through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Most of the clients are middle-aged men who have steady jobs and families. But, they come in as young as 16 and as old as 70. Some of them are in the late stages of alcoholism and require medical attention; others find themselves compelled to drink on the weekends or at parties, Boekenbauer said.

The person who is compelled to drink more than he wants to, when he doesn't really want to, has an alcoholism problem and needs help, he said.

"PEOPLE ARE reluctant to come in here because they feel there is a lot of stigma attached to alcoholism.

They see it not as an illness, but as a weakness or a moral problem. Yet, they don't realize how many people it really touches," Boekenbauer said.

He's estimated that about 72 percent of the people in the four-township area drink alcohol, and that about 1 out of every 12 has or will develop an alcoholism problem.

"Some people will argue with figures, they can be frightening," he said, but so are some of the cases.

ONE COUPLE, married for 20 years, has a poor relationship. The husband often comes home late from work drunk, beats up on the children and yells at his wife. The local police have responded to civil disturbance calls at their house and have picked up the children, who are doing poorly in school, for truancy.

IN ANOTHER case, a housewife who is "bored" with her daily chores finds herself drinking a few too many before her husband gets home from work, at which time she's irritable and depressed.

"It's always the family members, who are being hurt by the alcoholic problems of their loved ones, who come into us first looking for help," he said.

Individual counseling, group sessions, membership in national organizations like Alcoholics Anonymous or hospitalization for a four-week crash course on "getting along without alcohol" are some of the treatments employed when a client comes to ADD on his own, he said.

Most of the 428 clients the center has served during the past year have been successful at improving their situations, he said.

THEY PAY on a sliding-scale basis for weekly individual counseling and other treatment, depending on the client's financial situation.

A prevailing concern for Boekenbauer now, however, is how to continue funding the center if the federal revenue-sharing program for townships and other municipalities is discontinued after next year.

The center's $30,000 yearly budget is mainly supported by revenue-sharing allocations from the four townships. Alternatives to this funding would be seeking tax revenue allocations from the townships or going to the community funds for help, he said.

Boekenbauer said he would be "reluctant to fully charge clients for treatment" because ADD is a social service agency, operated by the Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois, that provides help despite a person's income.

ASIDE FROM funding, there is little question about the future of the center.

Present clients, local police departments and schools continue to refer persons with an alcohol dependence to the center.

"We also make at least a dozen presentations to civic groups each month to tell them about our program and talk to them about alcoholism," Boekenbauer said.

"It's something that people are learning to talk about and because of it, they are learning to help themselves," he said.

Police probing 15 break-ins at O'Hare Plaza

Elk Grove Village police are investigating break-ins at 15 businesses Friday at O'Hare Plaza, 2620 Higgins Rd. At least $2,700 in typewriters and office machines were stolen.

Police said the burglars forced their way into the main building early Wednesday and then broke into office suites, apparently looking for office machines.

Thefts were reported from three of the suites while 12 others were broken into with nothing reported stolen.

Police said the burglars also caused a sizable amount of damage while forcing open doors. Investigators said all the locks were broken.

Three typewriters and a calculator worth $2,100 were stolen from American Hoechst Corp. offices while a $500 typewriter was stolen from Wright Line Corp. A briefcase containing a calculator worth $80 was reported stolen from offices of North American Turbine Corp.

Police said there was probably more than one burglar involved and said the thieves could have been inside the building as little as two hours.

Schools

High School Dist. 214

The Prospect High School Marching Knights and Rhythmettes will march down State Street in the Columbus Day Parade today in Chicago. Two hundred members of the band were invited to march by the Joint Civic Committee of Italian Americans. The 1 p.m. parade will be televised on WGN Channel 9.

The architectural drawing classes at Buffalo Grove High School recently went on a field trip sponsored by the Northern Illinois Gas Co.

The class visited a number of construction sites where they were shown various sequential steps of building construction from the preparation of soil to the finished product.

River Trails Dist. 26

An open house will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Fehsenville School, 1400 E. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect. Parents will be able to visit their children's classrooms, meet the teachers and learn about the school programs.

Parents will have the opportunity to meet with teachers and discuss curriculum following Tuesday's PTA meeting at Park View School, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Wheeling-B.C. Dist. 21

"Learning and Visual Problems," will be the topic of a panel discussion at Poe School, 2800 N. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights, Tuesday. Panel members include Dr. Herbert Solomon, Dr. Lillian K. Vitterson and Virginia Kucma, learning disabilities teacher. The program, which will begin at 8 p.m., is sponsored by the school's PTA.

Mount Prospect Dist. 57

Westbrook School 103 S. Busse Rd., Mount Prospect, invites parents to visit the school and meet with teachers.

Parents of children in Grades 1, 3, 5, and 6 should attend Tuesday; and grades 2, 4 and kindergarten on Thursday. Classrooms will be open both evenings from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Prospect Hts. Dist. 23

Open house for parents and students at Eisenhower School, Schoenbeck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights, will be conducted Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

PTA members will sell school sweatshirts and bicycle safety flags at the open house. There also will be a bake sale that evening.

Drug awareness sessions set

Elk Grove Village Jaycees are planning two drug awareness sessions, one for later this year and one in the spring.

Jaycee President Frederick C. Gelnosky said Friday the public service group is trying to line up speakers and brochures for the drug awareness sessions.

"We will contact groups like the PTA's, he said, "as a means to promote attendance."

A special Jaycee committee, headed by Michael Smith, is in charge of the project. Details are yet to be completed by the committee.

In a related matter, Village Pres. Charles J. Zetek is scheduled to sign a proclamation Tuesday designating October as Drug Awareness Month.

Literacy Center seeks volunteers

Volunteers are needed to train as leaders for the Literacy Center now operating from Elk Grove Township offices in Arlington Heights.

Workshops are planned for men and women interested in teaching adults who cannot read or write English. No previous experience in teaching is necessary. The sessions will explain the ease with which the Lauerbach System of reading and writing English can be administered.

The workshops will be conducted at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, Nov. 2 and 9 from 1 to 5 p.m. and Nov. 6 and 13 from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Anyone interested in offering their help at the center may contact Mrs. Marilyn Ruben, 437-7442.

'More information needed'

Parks delay action on village bike path

by LINDA PUNCH

Schaumburg Park District will postpone a decision on assuming responsibility for a 25-mile village bicycle path until more information is available on the project, said Paul Derda, park director.

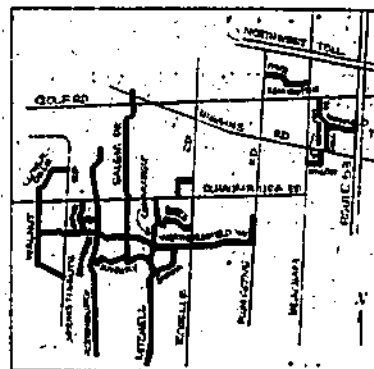

"The board decided to take action on the path in light of new things that have come up regarding dollar cost and liability factors," Derda said.

Park officials want "to know a little more about the commitments that have been made" before making a decision on the bike path, he said.

"All I have is second hand information but there's talk of spending in excess of $100,000 on things that have to be done. We can't do that," Derda said.

THE PARK DISTRICT was asked to take responsibility for the path last month by an informal committee of Schaumburg residents. The committee, headed by Thomas Conley, helped village officials plan and mark a bike route.

The group's interest in bicycle paths

THE QUESTION OF responsibility for a 25-mile interim bikeway path in Schaumburg has yet to be resolved. Park district officials have decided to hold off on their plans to maintain the system.

stemmed from opposition to a proposed cycle route planned earlier by the park district on a natural gas pipeline easement. Residents of the Weathersfield subdivision, particularly homeowners whose property abut the easement, believed the path would create problems. The residents said they would be willing to work on planning routes in other areas of the village.

Conley said last month there is "much more work and planning needed" on the route system which he believes can "be better done by the park district."

DERDA SAID a bike path is part of the park district's total program but "we can't commit the district to these kinds of expenditures."

"We're responsible for the taxpayers money — we need to know what we're getting into. We've heard some feedback from people who are unhappy about this project and we don't want to jump into a kettle of worms," he said.

Derda said park officials hope to meet with Conley and Assistant Village Mgr. Ken Oleksy within the month.

In Winston Knolls area

Residents favor pet limits: survey

The results of a questionnaire distributed in the Winston Knolls subdivision of Hoffman Estates indicate residents there support limiting the number of pets per household.

Karl Boehmer, president of the Winston Knolls Homeowners Assn. which distributed the questionnaire, said he will attend the village judiciary committee tonight to discuss the results.

"We have yet to tabulate everything, but it looks like the people do feel there should be a specific number of pets," Boehmer said Friday.

THE QUESTIONNAIRE asks residents to comment on several pet-related issues, including if the number of dogs and cats per household should be limited, what that number should be, if yearly pet licenses should be limited and if stricter sanitation requirements should be instituted.

Revisions in the village's pet laws have been under study for several months by the judiciary committee. The revised ordinance proposals originally called for a restriction limiting the number of pets to three per home, but the provision was later dropped.

The proposed ordinance does call for a new licensing rate for pets, with neutered and spayed animals licensed for $3 and unaltered pets licensed for $5.

THE COMMITTEE will take up the matter again tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the village hall, 1200 N. Gageon Dr.

The committee is also scheduled to discuss again a proposal to limit overnight on-street parking in residential areas.

Trustees have discussed limiting parking to one side of the street, restricting parking during evening hours or a total ban on parking in some areas.

Limitations on parking have been studied because officials have said emergency vehicles have difficulty maneuvering through narrow residential streets especially when cars are parked on both sides.

At zoning committee meeting

New Laurelwood plans to be presented tonight

New plans for Laurelwood, a 40-acre housing development near Roselle and Wiso roads, will be presented to members of Schaumburg's development, zoning and building committee tonight.

The plan calls for approximately 84 houses and 216 rental apartments in three-story buildings, architect Duane Linden said. Also planned is a three-acre commercial development, he said.

Linden said the houses would be built on lots ranging from a minimum of 7,200 square feet, with an average lot size of approximately 8,000 square feet. The minimum lot size on which cluster development has until recently been permitted was 4,700 square feet.

LINDEN SAID lot sizes in the development will be "similar to those in Kingsport Village," a 174-house subdivision he designed on 60 acres south of the Lancer Park subdivision. In approving Kingsport Village, the village board agreed to allow cluster development on lots ranging from 7,500 to 9,300 square feet.

The property, now owned by Chicago investor Melvin Isenstein, was zoned for 417 condominium apartment units in 1973 when 3-H Building Corp., Hanover Park, planned to develop the project.

The builder later lost interest and the land was sold to Isenstein.

OTHER ITEMS scheduled for discussion at Monday's, 8 p.m. development committee meeting include: land development planned on Rodenburg Road; a review of zoning about to expire on several Schaumburg developments; Schaumburg Green, a subsidized apartment complex; and The Treehouse, land near Algonquin and Quentin roads being considered for purchase by Shell Oil Co.

The meeting, open to the public, will be held in Schaumburg Civic Center, Washington Room, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct.

The Conant High School marching band, Hoffman Estates, took second place Saturday in the Northern Illinois University marching competition out of six other competing bands in its class.

First place in the competition went to Crystal Lake High School.

German province sends second gift to namesake

by PAT GERLACH

Schaumburg will receive its second gift from the West German province of Schaumburg-Lippe at Tuesday's 8 p.m. meeting of the board of trustees in the village Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct.

Village Pres. Raymond Kessell is scheduled to accept a copper plaque on which a likeness of the province has been etched, a village spokesman said Thursday.

The spokesman said the plaque will be presented to Kessell by a representative of Burgermeister (mayor) Friedrich Donno of Schaumburg-Lippe, an area of about 130 miles containing more than 80 hamlets, which includes the city of Hameln, of Pied Piper fame. The northwest central part of Germany is also the home of the Brothers Grimm and Baron Munchausen.

SCHAUMBURG-LIPPE takes its name from the oldest member of the ancient Lippe family whose first name was Schaumburg.

Portions of what is now known as the American village of Schaumburg were originally settled by English immigrants who called the area Sarah's Grove.

In 1850, newcomers from Schaumburg-Lippe formed Schaumburg Township, then Schaumburg Center in about 1900, with final incorporation of the village taking place in 1956. Reportedly descendants of the early German settlers are among some of the present residents.

Center treats 150 each month

Suburban alcoholics find help

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Roger Boekenbauer and his staff have been working for one year to bring alcoholism out of its dark, quiet corner in suburbia by offering counseling and treatment to those who want it.

Clients have tripled since Boekenbauer first opened the Alcoholism-Drug Dependence Program outpatient center in Rolling Meadows in October 1974.

The increase indicates that "alcoholism does exist in the suburbs, and that there is need for a place where people can talk about the problem and get help," he said.

ABOUT 150 residents of Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling townships receive counseling each month at the center, 5005 Newport Dr., Suite 210.

The center is open Mondays through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Most of the clients are middle-aged men who have steady jobs and families. But, they come in as young as 16 and as old as 70. Some of them are in the late stages of alcoholism and require medical attention; others find themselves compelled to drink on the weekends or at parties, Boekenbauer said.

The person who is compelled to drink more than he wants to, when he doesn't really want to, has an alcoholism problem and needs help, he said.

"PEOPLE ARE reluctant to come in here because they feel there is a lot of stigma attached to alcoholism. They see it not as an illness, but as a weakness or a moral problem. Yet, they don't realize how many people it really touches," Boekenbauer said.

He's estimated that about 72 percent of the people in the four-township area drink alcohol, and that about 1 out of every 12 has or will develop an alcoholism problem.

"Some people will argue with figures, they can be frightening," he said, but so are some of the cases.

ONE COUPLE, married for 20 years, has a poor relationship. The husband often comes home late from work drunk, beats up on the children and yells at his wife. The local police have responded to civil disturbance calls at their house and have picked up the children, who are doing poorly in school, for truancy.

IN ANOTHER case, a housewife who is "bored" with her daily chores finds herself drinking a few too many before her husband gets home from work, at which time she's irritable and depressed.

"It's always the family members, who are being hurt by the alcoholic problems of their loved ones, who come into us first looking for help," he said.

Individual counseling, group sessions, membership in national organizations like Alcoholics Anonymous or hospitalization for a four-week crash course on "getting along without alcohol" are some of the treatments employed when a client comes to ADD on his own, he said.

Most of the 429 clients the center has served during the past year have been successful at improving their situations, he said.

THEY PAY on a sliding-scale basis for weekly individual counseling and other treatment, depending on the client's financial situation.

A prevailing concern for Boekenbauer now, however, is how to continue funding the center if the federal revenue-sharing program for townships and other municipalities is discontinued after next year.

The center's $80,000 yearly budget is mainly supported by revenue-sharing allocations from the four townships. Alternatives to this funding would be seeking tax revenue allocations from the townships or going to the community funds for help, he said.

Boekenbauer said he would be "reluctant to fully charge clients for treatment" because ADD is a social service agency, operated by the Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois, that provides help despite a person's income.

ASIDE FROM funding, there is little question about the future of the center.

Present clients, local police departments and schools continue to refer persons with an alcohol dependence to the center.

"We also make at least a dozen presentations to civic groups each month to tell them about our program and talk to them about alcoholism," Boekenbauer said.

"It's something that people are learning to talk about and because of it, they are learning to help themselves," he said.

Ice Follies trip Nov. 16

The Hoffman Estates Park District will sponsor a trip to the Ice Follies from 12:30 to 6 p.m. Nov. 15.

Woman honored for heroism

Mrs. Dan Glassmaker, Schaumburg, has been awarded the Outstanding Citizen Award by the Rotary Club of Arlington Heights in recognition of her heroic act of helping save the life of 4-year-old Nicole Fanshier, Hoffman Estates.

Nicole had waded into a lake near her home to feed the ducks. When she floundered because of the water being too deep, her friend called for help, attracting the attention of Mrs. Glassmaker, who pulled Nicole from the water.

The award is the second of a series of such honors being granted by the Rotary Club to outstanding citizens of the area.

City panel to review funds tonight

by JILL BETTNER

The Rolling Meadows City Council finance committee tonight will review the city's financial situation and determine whether some projects postponed earlier this year now may be rescheduled.

Ald. Raymond H. Neuckranz, 1st, finance committee member, said the panel will review an updated cash-flow report to determine if the city's financial situation has improved sufficiently to reschedule the projects.

A number of budgeted expenses were delayed during the past several months in an effort to make up for a mistake in the budget that cost the city about $200,000.

CITY TREASURER Robert Cole said last week revenues from sales tax and building permits are beginning to ease the financial bind. The city also is starting to receive the first batch of property tax receipts.

"If it looks like things are loosening up, we might be able to tell the other committees they can go ahead with some of the things they want to do," Neuckranz said. "We just won't know until we look at the cash-flow report."

The committee intended to make some financial decisions almost a month ago, but preparation of the cash-flow report was delayed to compare information and charts obtained from the city's computer with the actual municipal budget for inaccuracies.

Neuckranz said he is hopeful the committee will be able to "get a handle" on the financial situation before the new city manager and finance officer are hired.

CITY MGR. JAMES Watson resigned last month and is scheduled to leave this week. Watson previously served as finance officer in addition to handling administrative duties, but the city council intends to hire both a city manager and a full-time finance officer.

Charles Green, administrative assistant, is expected to fill both vacancies until the new administrators are named.

Neuckranz said the finance committee, which has been appointed to search for and interview candidates for both jobs, has reviewed about 24 applications. Advertisements have been placed in municipal trade magazines to seek more applicants.

Neuckranz estimated it will "take about a month" for the committee to get a sufficient number of responses from the ads to begin interviewing.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Fredrick E. Jacobson, 5th, has said the committee will concentrate on selecting a city manager first.

State official says ambulance grant 'assured'

An Illinois Dept. of Public Health official Friday said the Rolling Meadows Fire Dept. is "virtually assured" of receiving a $14,000 federal grant to purchase a paramedic ambulance.

Anthony Marquez, field operations director of the Emergency Medical Services division of the state health department, said the department's application has been approved by the division and will be forwarded this week to the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, which provides the funding.

Marquez said transportation funds are contingent on recommendations by the division, which means that the fire department will get the money, he said.

"I would say the Rolling Meadows Fire Dept. should get a letter from the transportation department in about two weeks," Marquez said.

The $14,000 will provide about 70 percent of the total $20,000 estimated cost of the new vehicle and paramedic equipment.

FIRE CHIEF Thomas Fogarty said the department hopes to seek bids on (Continued on Page 5)

Inverness rejects library tie

by DIANE MERMIGAS
Inverness residents voted by an overwhelming 7-to-1 margin Saturday against entering the Palatine Public Library District.

About 80 per cent of the registered voters in Inverness went to the polls in the special expansion referendum, casting 407 "no" votes and 54 "yes" votes.

Current library district residents voted favorably, by a slim margin, to include Inverness. The district's estimated 28,000 residents cast only 273 "yes" votes and 228 "no" votes.

HOWEVER, IT required a "yes" vote from more than half of both Inverness and library district residents voting to validate the annexation.

The heaviest voter turnout in the library district was in Precinct 1, east of Hicks Road and north of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks, where 127 residents voted "yes" and 99 voted "no."

In Precinct 2, west of Hicks Road and north of the North Western tracks, 81 residents voted "yes" and 71 voted "no."

The lowest showing was in Precinct 3, south of the North Western tracks, where 65 residents voted "yes" and 58 voted "no."

There was only one Inverness voting precinct.

Palatine library officials attributed the close vote of library district residents to a last-minute campaign by several Palatine village trustees to defeat the referendum.

TRUSTEES BRYAN P. Coughlin and Richard W. Foste Saturday distributed flyers door-to-door in parts of the village that recommended a "no" vote to "stop unfair higher taxes."

An Inverness resident, with an average home assessed at $30,000, would have paid about $78.80 more in annual taxes if the village had entered the library district.

However, annual taxes for current library district residents would not have been affected by the expansion of library boundaries, library officials said.

"People get confused when they see something like this at the last minute," Library District Chairman Judith Gamoran said in reference to the opposition pamphlet.

MRS. GAMORAN said that people who had not studied the expansion issue might have read the flyer before going to the polls, getting the impression that their taxes would be increased if Inverness came into the library district.

"I'm glad enough library district residents understood the issue to vote in favor of the expansion," she said.

"I'm glad I live in a community that wants a library," she added.

Library officials also said that the poor turnout of library district residents indicated that people are tired of referendums, to which Coughlin agreed.

"It looks to me like a Mexican stand-off and no one won," Coughlin said.

"THERE'S NO question in my mind that people are tired of referendums. But, I think what we did had some effect since in the library district's last expansion referendum in June, Palatine residents voted by a 2-to-1 margin in favor of letting others into the district," he said.

Coughlin and other officials opposed the referendum in protest of the library board's recent decision not to spread a $1.3 million bond debt on the new library among all district residents. Currently, only Palatine village residents pay about $8 a year, in addition to regular library taxes, to retire the 20-year bonds.

Coughlin said Saturday "I'm leaving my options open at this point," and added, "I think the next step is up to the library board."

Inverness residents will continue to have the option of paying a yearly $75 nonresident fee to use the new Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St.

LESLIE V. BJORK, president of the Inverness Assn., said the vote of Inverness residents was "a good representation of the people" and "a strong reluctance against increased taxes."

State official says ambulance 'assured'

The grant application was filed nearly seven months ago, and both fire department and city council members frequently expressed frustration over continued delays by the state agencies in making a decision.

Marquez said changes in personnel at the division were partly responsible for the delays, in addition to a lack of sufficient data submitted by the fire department.

Fogarty said he is anxious to get the vehicle, adding that the ambulance and new paramedic equipment was needed two weeks ago when Rolling Meadows firefighters and paramedics rescued a young woman who was critically burned in a fire at the Whispering Glen apartments.

Center offers help to suburban alcoholics

hospitalization for a four-week crash course on "getting along without alcohol" are some of the treatments employed when a client comes to ADD on his own, he said.

Most of the 429 clients the center has served during the past year have been successful at improving their situations, he said.

THEY PAY on a sliding-scale basis for weekly individual counseling and other treatment, depending on the client's financial situation.

A prevailing concern for Boekenauer now, however, is how to continue funding the center if the federal revenue-sharing program for townships and other municipalities is discontinued after next year.

The center's $80,000 yearly budget is mainly supported by revenue-sharing allocations from the four townships. Alternatives to this funding would be seeking tax revenue allocations from the townships or going to the community funds for help, he said.

Boekenauer said he would be "reluctant to fully charge clients for treatment" because ADD is a social service agency, operated by the Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois, that provides help despite a persons' income.

ASIDE FROM funding, there is little question about the future of the center.

Present clients, local police departments and schools continue to refer persons with an alcohol dependence to the center.

"We also make at least a dozen presentations to civic groups each month to tell them about our program and talk to them about alcoholism," Boekenauer said.

"It's something that people are learning to talk about and because of it, they are learning to help themselves," he said.

Heavy turnout

Inverness votes no to joining library

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Inverness residents voted by an overwhelming 7-to-1 margin Saturday against entering the Palatine Public Library District.

About 90 per cent of the registered voters in Inverness went to the polls in the special expansion referendum, casting 407 "no" votes and 54 "yes" votes.

Current library district residents voted favorably, by a slim margin, to include Inverness. The district's estimated 28,000 residents cast only 273 "yes" votes and 228 "no" votes.

HOWEVER, it required a "yes" vote from more than half of both Inverness and library district residents voting to validate the annexation.

The heaviest voter turnout in the library district was in Precinct 1, east of Hicks Road and north of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks, where 127 residents voted "yes" and 99 voted "no."

In Precinct 2, west of Hicks Road and north of the North Western tracks, 81 residents voted "yes" and 71 voted "no."

The lowest showing was in Precinct

3, south of the North Western tracks, where 65 residents voted "yes" and 50 voted "no."

There was only one Inverness voting precinct.

Palatine library officials attributed the close vote of library district residents to a last-minute campaign by several Palatine village trustees to defeat the referendum.

TRUSTEES BRYAN F. Coughlin and Richard W. Fouts Saturday distributed flyers door-to-door in parts of the village that recommended a "no" vote to "stop unfair higher taxes."

An Inverness resident, with an average home assessed at $30,000, would have paid about $78.50 more in annual taxes if the village had entered the library district.

However, annual taxes for current library district residents would not have been affected by the expansion of library boundaries, library officials said.

"People get confused when they see something like this at the last minute," Library District Chairman Judith Gamoran said in reference to the opposition pamphlet.

MRS. GAMORAN said that people who had not studied the expansion issue might have read the flyer before going to the polls, getting the impression that their taxes would be increased if Inverness came into the library district.

"I'm glad enough library district residents understood the issue to vote in favor of the expansion," she said.

"I'm glad I live in a community that wants a library," she added.

Library officials also said that the poor turnout of library district residents indicated that people are tired of referendums, to which Coughlin agreed.

"It looks to me like a Mexican stand-off and no one won," Coughlin said.

"THERE'S NO question in my mind that people are tired of referendums. But, I think what we did had some effect since in the library district's last expansion referendum in June, Palatine residents voted by a 2-to-1 margin in favor of letting others into the district," he said.

Coughlin and other officials opposed the referendum in protest of the library board's recent decision not to spread a $1.3 million bond debt on the new library among all district residents. Currently, only Palatine village residents pay about $8 a year, in addition to regular library taxes, to retire the 20-year bonds.

Coughlin said Saturday "I'm leaving my options open at this point," and added, "I think the next step is up to the library board."

Inverness residents will continue to have the option of paying a yearly $75 nonresident fee to use the new Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St.

LESLIE V. BJORK, president of the Inverness Assn., said the vote of Inverness residents was "a good representation of the people" and "a strong reluctance against increased taxes."

Under state guidelines, Inverness residents must wait three years before voting to join the Palatine Public Library District in a second referendum.

Fremd to present musical

'Matchmaker' this weekend

Thornton Wilder's comedy "The Matchmaker" will be presented Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. at Fremd High School, 1000 S. Quentin Road, Palatine.

The comedy centers on the adventures of Dolly Levi, played by Carla Lombardo, who is a self-appointed matchmaker at the turn of the century. Dolly schemes to strike a match between three young ladies and three young men, but her best efforts are spent in manipulating the stern Horace Vandergelder, played by Glenn Killoren, into marriage, with herself as the bride.

The play, upon which the musical "Hello Dolly" was based, is produced by Margaret Duer and directed by Thomas Smith with Curt Brewer as technical director.

Tickets are $1 for students, $1.50 for general admission and $2 for preferred seating which includes refreshments and the illusion of involvement in the play.

Fear vandalism, tennis lights

Residents seek buffer between homes, park

Several Palatine Township residents are seeking a landscaped buffer between their homes and a five-acre park under construction at Home Street and Oak Avenue.

Residents of the Home Garden Acres subdivision, who live on Elm Street just north of Home Avenue, plan to request the buffer from the Palatine Park District to keep people from short-cutting across and vandalizing their property.

George Limberg, 1520 N. Elm St., said the residents "don't mind seeing the park go in there, but we want to be assured that we won't have any problems because of it."

LIMBERG SAID construction crews, who began work on the park several weeks ago, uprooted large trees that had "shielded" the homes from the park site.

"We've heard about the vandalism they have in other parks in Palatine and we just don't want the same thing. We would like something to shield us from the lights on the tennis courts and to keep people from coming over on to our property," he said.

The $448,000 park, scheduled to open next spring, will include a bathhouse, swimming pool, four lighted tennis courts and a baseball diamond.

LIMBERG SAID the residents are also concerned about flooding that could result from the park construction.

The park site has served as a natural water retention site in the past. The residents fear the construction will force the rain waters to drain on to their properties.

"The park officials have told us that the park has been planned with the water situation in mind and that there should be no problem with flooding. But, we just want to make sure that any changes made in the plans won't change that," he said.

Limberg said he plans to discuss the buffer and flooding situation with the park board at a 7 p.m. meeting Tuesday at the Palatine Hills Golf Course clubhouse.

Utility rate increase topic of panel meeting

A proposed increase in utility rates for the Palatine Park Estates subdivision will be discussed tonight by the administration, finance and legislation committee of the village board.

Palatine officials have recommended an $85 average annual increase in utility rates for the $68 homeowners. Another proposed rate structure prepared by a bond consultant also will be reviewed tonight by the committee.

Residents of the subdivision in Palatine Township have been receiving utility services from the village since 1973 when the village purchased L & K Utility Co.

Palatine officials have said the village is losing $5,800 annually under the present rate structure on utility services for the subdivision. The proposed rate increase would cover the village's annual cost of more than $17,000 to maintain, amortize bonds and realize a 8 per cent return on the investment.

LAST SUMMER the subdivision was connected to the village's water system at Northwest Highway when one of two shallow wells serving the area broke down. The estimated cost of repairing the well was $18,000 so the village decided to hook the subdivision into its own water system.

Palatine Park Estates residents have challenged the village's figures on the cost of repairing the well. The village is expected to present a statement from a well driller tonight on the estimated cost.

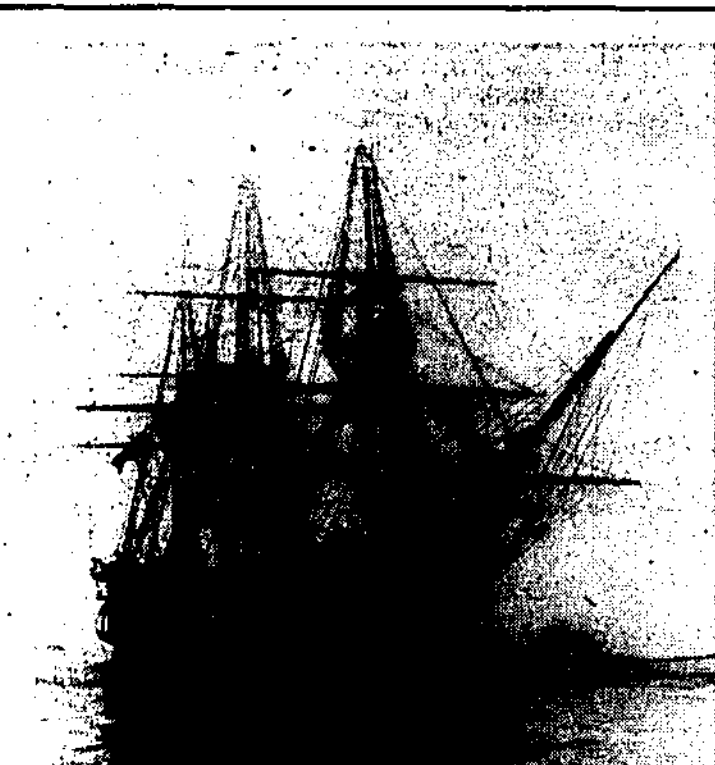

The second well in the subdivision was capped because village officials said it was not a dependable water source.

The cost of capping the well and making two connections to the village's water system was estimated at $10,000. This figure will also be substantiated tonight, officials said.

The meeting is at 8 p.m. at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

Center treats 150 each month

Suburban alcoholics find help

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Roger Boekenbauer and his staff have been working for one year to bring alcoholism out of its dark, quiet corner in suburbia by offering counseling and treatment to those who want it.

Clients have tripled since Boekenbauer first opened the Alcoholism-Drug Dependence Program outpatient center in Rolling Meadows in October 1974.

The increase indicates that "alcoholism does exist in the suburbs, and that there is need for a place where people can talk about the problem and get help," he said.

ABOUT 150 residents of Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling townships receive counseling each month at the center, 5005 Newport Dr., Suite 210.

The center is open Mondays through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Most of the clients are middle-aged men who have steady jobs and families. But, they come in as young as 16 and as old as 70. Some of them are in the late stages of alcoholism and require medical attention; others find themselves compelled to drink on the weekends or at parties, Boekenbauer said.

The person who is compelled to drink more than he wants to, when he doesn't really want to, has an alcoholism problem and needs help, he said.

"PEOPLE ARE reluctant to come in here because they feel there is a lot of stigma attached to alcoholism. They see it not as an illness, but as a weakness or a moral problem. Yet, they don't realize how many people it really touches," Boekenbauer said.

He's estimated that about 72 percent of the people in the four-township area drink alcohol, and that about 1 out of every 12 has or will develop an alcoholism problem.

"Some people will argue with figures, they can be frightening," he said, but so are some of the cases.

ONE COUPLE, married for 20 years, has a poor relationship. The husband often comes home late from work drunk, beats up on the children and yells at his wife. The local police have responded to civil disturbance calls at their house and have picked up the children, who are doing poorly in school, for truancy.

IN ANOTHER case, a housewife who is "bored" with her daily chores finds herself drinking a few too many before her husband gets home from work, at which time she's irritable and depressed.

"It's always the family members, who are being hurt by the alcoholic problems of their loved ones, who come into us first looking for help," he said.

Individual counseling, group sessions, membership in national organizations like Alcoholics Anonymous or hospitalization for a four-week crash course on "getting along without alcohol" are some of the treatments employed when a client comes to ADD on his own, he said.

Most of the 429 clients the center has served during the past year have been successful at improving their situations, he said.

THEY PAY on a sliding-scale basis for weekly individual counseling and other treatment, depending on the client's financial situation.

A prevailing concern for Boekenbauer now, however, is how to continue funding the center if the federal revenue-sharing program for townships and other municipalities is discontinued after next year.

The center's $80,000 yearly budget is mainly supported by revenue-sharing allocations from the four townships. Alternatives to this funding would be seeking tax revenue allocations from the townships or going to the community funds for help, he said.

Boekenbauer said he would be "reluctant to fully charge clients for treatment," because ADD is a social service agency, operated by the Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois, that provides help despite a person's income.

ASIDE FROM funding, there is little question about the future of the center.

Present clients, local police departments and schools continue to refer persons with an alcohol dependence to the center.

"We also make at least a dozen presentations to civic groups each month to tell them about our program and talk to them about alcoholism," Boekenbauer said.

"It's something that people are learning to talk about and because of it, they are learning to help themselves," he said.

Other churches help families

Two Vietnamese families sponsored by the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago have been placed in Palatine and Wheeling and are busy adapting to life in the suburbs.

The Bul Vanlinh family, locally sponsored by St. Theresa's Catholic Church, Palatine, has been in the village about three weeks.

Both parents and a 20-year-old son are employed at St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly, Rev. James Kehoe said. The working son is learning English at Conant High School, Hoffman Estates, while the younger children are "picking up English as they go" while attending St. Teresa's School, Kehoe said.

The Pham family, is sponsored locally by St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling.

"This family came into the U.S. through Catholic Charities and already had jobs and an apartment lined up when they came to Wheeling," Rev. Donald Simpson said.

The younger children attend St. Joseph the Worker School while a teenage daughter attends Sacred Heart of Mary High School and is learning English two mornings each week at Harper Junior College.

'It will be tough to sell'

Negotiators reach accord in Dist. 23

Board and teacher negotiators in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 have reached a tentative agreement in a teachers' contract for the 1975-76 school year.

Kenneth Bates, chief negotiator for teachers, said Saturday a "tentative agreement" was reached by the teams after a 4½-hour negotiating session Saturday morning.

"Both negotiating teams agreed, but both teams feel it (the contract) will be a tough thing to sell to our respective groups," Bates said. Bates refused to give details of the contract but said it was "very different dollar-wise than what the teachers had expressed they wanted earlier."

Teachers unanimously turned down a board offer of an $85,000 increase for across-the-board and merit salary raises Sept. 27. Teachers then indicated they would stand firm on their request for a $106,500 increase which would maintain the present merit raise levels and provide a 7 per cent across-the-board raise for teachers.

Alan Krinsky, chairman of the board team, said "Things are not really settled yet. We have to go back to our respective groups and let them see it (the contract). There's still work to be done."

Krinsky, who also refused to release details of the contract, said the board would discuss the terms of the proposal in a special closed meeting Oct. 21.

BATES SAID teachers will learn of the details at a meeting Wednesday. Negotiating teams are expected to return to the table with their groups' decisions Oct. 22.

"I think we're going to have an easier time selling it to our people than they will," said Bates. "It was tough sledding on both sides" to reach an agreement.

Bates did disclose one area the negotiators settled on. A mini-grant program, which will cost the district $1,000 a year, was approved by both teams. Bates said teachers will be able to submit a proposal for a program to the superintendent's advisory committee for consideration. The committee will be able to approve a grant of up to $100 per program.

"The purpose of the mini-grant program is for teachers to be able to try out things in the classrooms," Bates said. The grant program will take effect in the 1976-77 school year if the contract is approved.

BATES SAID he was "very relieved" that negotiations went so well Saturday. "There was a lot of give and take — a lot of talking," he said.

The teams have been meeting since February. Negotiators previously agreed to a number of contract items including district reimbursement for professional fees, increased extracurricular and summer school pay, sick leave accumulation and professional travel allocation. Also agreed to is a new base salary of $8,950.

Commission prepares for village tax review

Mount Prospect's new finance commission will begin work on an inventory of the village's tax base in an effort to raise more revenue. The board's first meeting is set for Oct. 22.

Named as chairman of the new nine-member commission was Gary Johns, 503 Go-Wanda Ave., vice president of the American Bank and Trust. Johns was appointed to the commission along with eight other village residents by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

Teichert said the group would take inventory of both "the village's assets and liabilities" in a long-range effort to secure more revenue.

"We want to find out for sure exactly what our assets are," said Teichert. "We want to know if the tax load is spread equitably."

THE INVENTORY will determine how much each piece of property contributes in tax money and how much it costs the village to service it.

The panel also has been charged with assisting officials develop the village budget for the next two years. Officials believe the budget-making process will be improved with additional citizen involvement.

Others appointed to the commission include Richard Bachhuber, 625 S. Edward St., a High School Dist. 214 board member; Carl Byer, a retired assistant controller for Commonwealth Edison Co.; William Haase, 1650 Camp McDonald Rd., chairman of River Trails Dist. 26 finance committee; Marshall Theroux, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Wheeling Township assessor; Jack Ronchetto, 514 S. William St., vice president of Investment Securities Associates, Inc.; Erwin Linkman, 508 N. Elmhurst Rd., a cost and marketing research consultant; and William Norris, 220 S. Edward St., an engineer for Motorola.

The long-range financial planning commission was first suggested this spring by Teichert as a means of gathering financial information currently not available to the village.

Chicago man nabbed in chain saw theft

A Chicago man was arrested Friday for allegedly stealing a pair of chain saws worth $229 from the Venture Store, 1500 S. Elmhurst Rd., said Mount Prospect police.

Stephen A. Freer, 1223 Greenleaf, was charged with theft after store security agents told police Freer was seen leaving the store without paying for the saws about 6 p.m.

He was released on $2,500 bond. He is scheduled to appear in court on Oct. 22 in Mount Prospect.

THE PRELIMINARY POSSUM. Mrs. Henry Schroeder, were over when she trapped this fellow a year ago. of Mount Prospect, thought her opossum problems. Not so. Since then seven others have been snared.

Possum power!

She's spittin' mad over a bevy of hungry possums who are spreading the word on her 'backyard buffet'

by JOE SWICKARD

Let Mrs. Henry Schroeder tell you, there is nothing worse than having possums in your zucchini unless it is when they are spitting out cucumber seeds.

Mrs. Schroeder, 402 S. Emerson, Mount Prospect, should know. For the past year, her garden has been a backyard buffet for just about every hungry possum that ambles by.

"We caught the first one last October. Now, the number's up to eight. They eat our acorn squash, the zucchini — and you should see what they do to the cucumbers," she said.

NOT ONLY ARE her vegetables getting eaten, but the beasts have taken to trampling her flowers on their way to the free feed.

They step all over everything. They've just crippled the zinnias," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder, who's lived there for 25 years, at first suspected dogs or cats were damaging her plants and vegetables. The droppings and paw prints in the lawn each morning lent support to such theory.

Upset by the nocturnal attacks on the garden and garbage cans, the Schroeders invested $15 in a live trap to see what was causing the ruckus. One morning, they found they had snared one very large possum.

On the advice of a naturalist, the possum was turned loose in a forest preserve so he could be with his own kind and raid an occasional litter basket.

THE SCHROEDER'S troubles were far from over, however. Soon the little visitors were back again, and the live trap was again put to use.

The possums have come in all sizes and both sexes, ruling out repeat performances by the original possum.

Now Mrs. Schroeder wonders if her garden is being passed along as a bit of possum family tradition.

"How many babies do they have? I'll bet they have 10 or 12," she said.

IF THE POSSUMS are passing the word to their friends about her garden, she's wishing somebody would tell them to knock it off already.

"We've taken them up to the Fox River and all the forest preserves.

We've even given them to friends who are going some place," she said.

Not surprisingly, Mrs. Schroeder has become somewhat of an expert of the possum palate.

"Some policemen told me to use old chicken bones in the trap. But I found out what they like best. They love liver sausage on rye bread. I can tie that to the trap so they can't steal it without setting it off," she said.

SOME POSSUMS, though, turn up their snouts at liver sausage and go right for the vegetables.

"They just hollow out the acorn squash and we know they like cucumbers because they spit out the seeds all over," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder is just a little tired of catching possums, turning them loose somewhere only to have their cousin, or whoever, show up for a snack the next night.

Perhaps there is a possum repellent on the market that will keep the critters at bay. It's either that or Mrs. Schroeder is going to have to call out a possum posse and make those varmints vamoose once and for all.

Seeks purchase of water, sewer lines

Village opens talks with utility firm

Mount Prospect has formally opened negotiations for the purchase of the Citizens Utilities Co. water and sewer lines in the northeast section of the village.

In a letter to the company's president and chief operating officer, Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley asked to meet representatives of the utility "at any reasonable place or time you might suggest."

Eppley said the meeting would be beneficial since it would allow both sides to "commence negotiations for the ultimate acquisition of that system by the village or at least to make it possible for you to make your position clear to us . . ."

THE LETTER is dated Oct. 9 and was addressed to the Connecticut office of the firm, which is locally based in Addison.

Eppley took action on the matter after the village board last week directed him to contact Citizens Utilities officials about the purchase.

The village already has had indications that the firm is not anxious to sell. Walter S. Larson, general manager of the utility, last year said the system was not for sale. Eppley said the company's annual report also states the firm will resist all attempts to purchase any part of its system.

Mount Prospect officials have been studying the possible purchase for more than a year after residents complained the utility was charging exorbitant rates for poor quality water and service.

STUDIES HAVE included a feasibility study prepared by an outside consulting firm, which recommended a purchase price of $4.9 million. The board's finance committee and public works committee both have recommended that negotiations begin for the purchase so they can have some working figures.

They system serves some 2,350 homes in the New Town area and another 4,000 residential meters in Prospect Heights and unincorporated Wheeling Township.

Village officials have said any purchase of the system will be financed through extra charges to residents using the system. These charges would be added to residents' water rates.

At present, the difference between Citizens Utilities rates and village rates would leave about $660,000 a year to pay off the purchase. Over a 20-year period this amount would support a $5.5 million bond issue, said Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr., finance committee chairman.

Village officials say a door-to-door survey of the area will be conducted before any decision is made.

Bicentennial listings in demand

A six-part bibliography of books, film and tapes on the American Revolution has been in demand at the Mount Prospect Public Library.

Mary Jo Hutchings, head librarian, said the bibliography, compiled over the last year, has been reprinted several times because of demand by Mount Prospect civic organizations and interested individuals.

"We've passed out 300 or so of the bibliographies, and the response has been really gratifying," said Mrs.

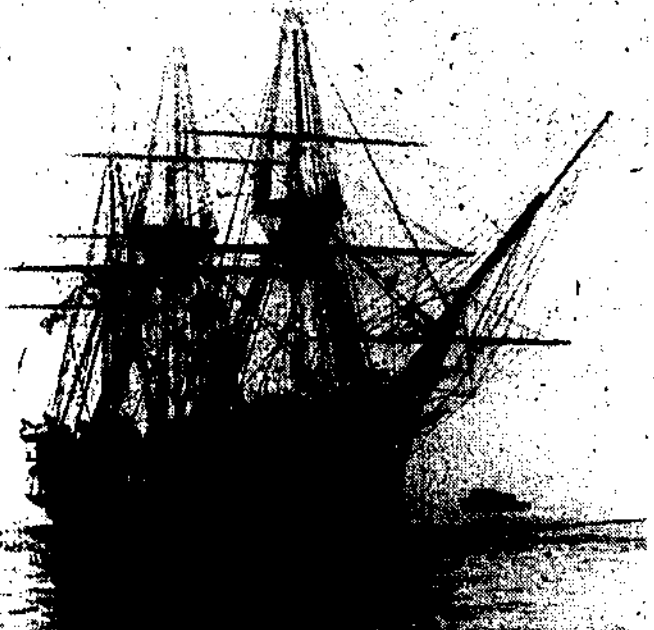

Hutchings. Mrs. Hutchings said the library started circulating the bibliographies by mailing them to 119 organizations in Mount Prospect.

Bibliographies available include: "1776: A Great Time, A Great Place;" "1776: A Chronology;" "Revolutionary Life and Times in Fiction;" "Colonial Art and Music;" "Turn on to the Bicentennial;" and "Colonial Literature."

Mrs. Hutchings said films are available from the library on a rotating basis.

Officials study signal at Busse and Lonnquist

Mount Prospect officials are considering installation of a traffic signal at Busse Road and Lonnquist Boulevard to help make the crossing safe for school children.

The study was prompted by a letter from the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education, which endorsed the signal proposal.

Dr. Arthur V. Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services, said the signal was suggested by residents in the area who were concerned about the safety of their children.

"The need arises in part due to the need for elementary and junior high-age children to cross Busse and walk along Busse where there are no sidewalks in order to attend the Forest View and Holmes schools," Perry said.

PERRY SAID school buses contribute to the general traffic congestion in the area. "As both Busse and Lonnquist are heavily traveled, the need for traffic control has greatly increased," he said.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said the matter will be sent to the traffic engineer, safety commission and eventually the village board's fire and police committee.

Eppley said the village may cooperate in the installation of the signal, but said the village only has jurisdiction over half the intersection. He said two of the corners lie in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, requiring the participation of the county. Moreover, he said, Busse Road is a county highway under county jurisdiction.

Bensenville man, 19, charged in burglary

A Bensenville man was arrested early Saturday after Mount Prospect police said he burglarized Lee's Draperies in the Mount Prospect Plaza.

Robert Wells, 19, of 419 Mason, was charged with burglary and possession of a hypodermic needle, reportedly

Carnival restrictions weighed tonight by panel

An ordinance restricting carnivals in Mount Prospect will be considered by the village board's judiciary committee tonight.

The restriction on carnivals is being sought by the Mount Prospect Jaycees who contend there are too many carnivals and other fund-raising events sponsored in the village each year. The group believes limitations are needed so locally sponsored affairs can be more effective.

The judiciary committee was to have reviewed the ordinance last week, but its meeting was postponed.

"There are a lot of groups in the country which go about sponsoring carnivals to raise money for worthwhile causes," Jaycee Pres. Joseph Vais said.

"We have nothing against that except where scheduling might interfere with our events or events sponsored by other groups in the village," Vais said.

Vais said the proposal would take care of local groups before outsiders.

"The village has very little control over carnivals," said Vais. "All a group has to do is apply for a permit and set up a carnival. If that happens just a few days before a carnival or event planned by a local group, we're out of luck."

From the library

Books on investing, earning money and fashions are among the new collections at the Prospect Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St.

"Value Line Investment Survey," an investment rating service, attempts to predict future behavior of public corporations through an analysis of their past performance.

"Keep It Simple, Salesman," by Earl Nightingale, is a 12-volume cassette tape course on basic sales techniques such as phone prospecting, securing commitments and overcoming buyers' reservations. Instructional manuals accompany each cassette and provide review and exercise material.

"Estate Planning Review" is a Commerce Clearing House service with monthly issues discussing topics pertaining to personal financial management. Included are discussions of trusts, life insurance and individual pension plans.

New reference department material available in the business field include "CCH Employment Practices Guide," the Chicago Board of Trade "Commodity Trading Manual," and the "Thorndike Encyclopedia of Banking and Financial Tables."

Christmas cards available

Christmas cards to benefit either Countryside Center or Clearbrook Center are available. Both agencies serve handicapped children and adults in the Northwest suburban area.

Countryside is offering two cards this year, one religious and the other with general seasonal greetings. Cost is $5 for a box of 25 cards, available by calling Lois Bach, 253-6373.

Clearbrook has four cards designed by individuals enrolled at the center. A packet of 25 costs $5, available by calling the center, 255-0120.

ONE OF THE advantages of living in the Harper College district is the opportunity for anyone, not just students, to participate in many of the extracurricular activities of the school. One such item coming up is a ski trip to Vail, Colo., — airfare, eight days of accommodations and lift tickets — for a low fee of $299.

More information from the Student Activities Office at Harper, 397-3000, or from Pat, 259-6038.

THE SUBURBAN Singles, 20-to 35-year-olds, have a volleyball-and-pizza party scheduled at St. Mark Center Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The center is at 204 S. Willie St. For more information, call Rich Henderson, 259-2404.

GALS! For an exciting volunteer job, be a "uniform lady" for the Prospect High School band. Women are particularly needed to help keep band outfits in tip top shape, but the gals can also get in on the fun of traveling with the musical group for outside performances and can get generally involved in all of the group's activities. To volunteer, call Mae Swanson, 255-7956, or Nancy Schmid, 258-4451.

CONGRATULATIONS to Roger and Bea Johnston, 900 S. Lancaster, who recently celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary.

FRIENDS OF former Mount Prospect resident Dorothy Lamberg will be interested to know that she is currently active in public restoration in Kane County and involved in antique shows in the St. Charles area.

MOUNT PROSPECT Camp Fire Girls will attend the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus today at Chicago International Amphitheatre. The girls and their families have reserved 500 seats.

By the way, the Floros attended the circus last weekend. It's super!
